An opportunity to teach community members how to grow their own food was one that Jamie Betteres and Kyle Wisneski couldn't pass on.

Betteres, who works in the Cannery, wants the focus to be on traditional foods, such as the Three Sisters, grown in traditional ways. The Three Sisters are corn, beans, and squash.

"The purpose for the initiative is to strengthen our relationship with our Three Sisters, focusing on our heirloom white corn. Our community consumes thousands of pounds of white corn each year due to the amazing work of community members who fought and worked hard with their hands in the soil to revitalize our traditional foods," said Betteres.

With assistance, families plan, plant, care, and harvest their gardens.

"We have community members concentrating on traditional Three Sister mounds and we have families that are doing traditional rows of heirloom white corn. The amazing thing about these family plots is they are all different. Each plot represents the family who is taking care of it," added Betteres.

For many of these families, this is their first attempt at growing their own food.

Alebra Cornelius and her family have little experience gardening but are growing white corn, tomatoes, and peppers. The experience has been so positive her son begs to visit the garden to check on the growth.

20th Annual Relay for Life hits milestone

On Friday, July 29, Oneida's Norbert Hill Center played host to the 20th annual Oneida Relay for Life walk for cancer research. The 2016 installment of the walk saw cancer survivors, supporters, and nine teams of walkers gather together to participate in the annual event that helped raise approximately $21,000 this year alone.

The goal for this year's Oneida Relay for Life was to raise at least $21,000 to help achieve a 20-year milestone of $500,000 in total money raised in Oneida for the American Cancer Society. These goals were reached with the hard work of a dedicated team of volunteers that included Doris Yelk-Wilberg, Ryan Engel, Lisa Metoxen, Jennifer Webster, Laura Laitinen-Warren, Pogi King Desart and Heather Krawinkel.

Get the Most out of your Money:

By Dianne Zubella
Bay Bank

Summer may be in full swing, but fall will be here before you know it. That means back to school shopping is on its way. Have you budgeted for school supplies and new clothes yet? The average family will spend an estimated $673 on back to school expenses, according to a recent survey from the National Retail Federation. However, creating a strategic budget and planning ahead can help you keep your family's costs down. Here are a few simple tips to help you stick to your budget during this year's trip through the "back to school" aisles.

Make a list (or get one from the school) and stick to it.

Just like having a list for grocery shopping can prevent buying items you don't need, starting your back to school shopping trip with a complete list of items your child needs for the upcoming school year will save you time and money. A related tip: Take inventory of what you already have. Once you have your shopping list, check off any items you already have around the house. Notebooks, pens and pencils, and scissors are examples of items you don't need to purchase every year. This tip also applies to clothing. Basics never go out of style, so you don't need to buy your child a whole new wardrobe every year. When you do need to get them new clothes, buy sizes they can grow into.

Tips for Back to School Savings

Shop Smart.

Sometimes quality trumps price. One example: backpacks. Spending a bit more upfront to purchase a good backpack will save you money in the long run, because the higher-quality item will last for years, whereas a cheaper one may need to be replaced in a matter of months. Clothes and shoes are on the other end of the spectrum, however. Children outgrow clothing so fast it doesn't make sense to spend extra money on brand names.

Start looking for sales and coupons early.

Going back to school shopping last minute is a sure-fire way to spend more than you need to. Start going through that pile of "junk mail" flyers you get every week for school supplies you'll need. Spreading out the shopping over several weeks not only makes it easier on your budget, but is a good way to make sure you buy as many items as you can while they're on sale, rather than getting everything in one giant trip and only buying a few discounted items.

Finally, use this opportunity to teach your kids about personal finance topics such as budgeting and price comparing. Give teens a set budget for their items, and then go through their list with them to separate the "wants" from the "needs" before shopping. Have younger children participate by decorating plain binders, folders and notebooks (which are cheaper than character-decorated items) to personalize them.

Judge blocks N. Dakota's voter identification law

By JAMES MacPHERSON
Associated Press

BISMARCK, N.D. (AP) ~ A federal judge on Monday blocked North Dakota's voter identification law after a group of American Indians said it unfairly burdens them — the latest court ruling against voting laws that critics say disproportionately affect minorities.

U.S. District Judge Daniel Hovland issued a temporary restraining order and criticized the state for its 2013 repeal of provisions that let people without valid IDs vote if someone vouched for them or if they signed an affidavit swearing they were a qualified voter.

"The public interest in protecting the most cherished right to vote for thousands of Native Americans who currently lack a qualifying ID and cannot obtain one, outweighs the purported interest and arguments of the State," Hovland wrote.

He added: "There are a multitude of easy remedies that most states have adopted in some form to alleviate this burden."

It was the latest setback in the courts for Republican efforts that critics say are intended to restrict voting rights but that supporters tout as anti-fraud measures that keep non-citizens from voting. In three separate rulings Friday, a federal appeals court blocked North Carolina's law requiring photo ID, a federal judge in Wisconsin ordered changes to make it easier for voters to get a valid ID, and a Kansas judge said the state must count thousands of votes from people who didn't provide proof of citizenship when they registered. Earlier in July, a federal appellate court ruled that Texas' voter ID law was discriminatory.

The North Dakota lawsuit was filed in January by seven members of the Turtle Mountain Band of Chippewa.

North Dakota doesn't have voter registration, but the state has required voters to provide ID since 2004. Before that, casting a ballot was an informal process in most precincts, and identification cards were seldom requested.

North Dakota accepts a driver's license as identification or identity cards issued by the state, long-term care facilities or North Dakota's American Indian tribes. All must have a valid address.

The state argued that its requirements were reasonable and that the tribal members who sued hadn't shown that the burdens for them to obtain a valid ID were any more restrictive than for non-Native Americans.

Before 2013, if a voter lacked an ID card but a poll worker had firsthand knowledge of the person's identity and residence, the voter was allowed to cast a ballot. The voter also could sign an affidavit attesting to his or her eligibility to vote in the precinct.

Tom Dickson, an attorney for the north-central North Dakota tribal members, said the 2013 change by the GOP-controlled Legislature amounted to having people "pay to vote." He said some tribal members can't afford the required identification, and others had to pay to get their tribal IDs updated with a valid address.

"This was blatantly discriminatory," Dickson said. "The point of these laws is to keep people from voting and suppressing the Native American vote, who generally vote Democratic in North Dakota."

Secretary of State Al Jaeger, North Dakota's top election official, said the state will follow the federal judge's order.

"We'll just have to go back to how it was prior to 2013," Jaeger said. "That's all we can do at this particular point."

Hovland wrote that "undisputed statistics and studies support the finding that, given the disparities in living conditions, it is not surprising that North Dakota's new voter ID laws are having and will continue to have a disproportionately negative impact on Native American voting-eligible citizens."

He cited expert witness who testified that almost one-quarter of eligible Native American voters do not have proper voting identification, compared with 12 percent for non-Native American Indians. The judge also wrote that only 78 percent of Native Americans have a driver's license that they could potentially use as voter identification, compared with 94 percent of non-Natives.

Governor Walker Approves Austin Straubel Improvement Project

Madison ~ Governor Scott Walker approved $165,000 for an improvement project at the Green Bay – Austin Straubel International Airport, contributing $132,000 in state funds. Brown County will also contribute $33,000 to the project.

“The Green Bay – Austin Straubel International Airport is a hub of activity,” Governor Walker said. “Whether it’s getting the Green Bay Packers team to their away games or getting local flyers to and from their destinations, the airport serves the people of Green Bay and Wisconsin every day. This project allows for the reconstruction of a road, providing better access to several private businesses, the airport’s new International Arrivals Terminal building, and the airport’s rental car parking facilities. The project also helps maintain access to significant public and private investments on the eastern side of the airport terminal building.”

The project will study the environmental impact of the proposed construction and draft plans and specifications for the reconstruction and rehabilitation of the east service road, which runs from South Point Road to the terminal building.

Green Bay – Austin Straubel International Airport is one of 98 facilities included in the Wisconsin State Airport System Plan, which makes it eligible for state and federal funding. The Bureau of Aeronautics at the Wisconsin Department of Transportation (WisDOT) administers all airport improvement projects.

Governor Walker has also proclaimed the week of July 25 – July 31, 2016 as Aviation Week.

Oneida Seven Generations Corporation's Managing Agent offers update

Submitted by Pete King III

OSGC Managing Agent

Oneida Seven Generations Corporation (OSGC) was established to protect the assets of the Oneida Nation, diversify its economy through commercial real estate, and protect tribal sovereignty. That one simple sentence sums up OSGC.

That sentence is also important to remember as misconceptions and misinformation continues to be circulated about OSGC. Take a few minutes to learn about OSGC's history; what it is, their success story, and why it is so vital to the Nation's future.

OSGC was established as a for-profit Tribal Corporation in order to enter into business opportunities and contracts without any threat to the Tribe's sovereignty or assets. Prior to this, the Oneida Nation missed business opportunities because it was unwilling (rightfully so) to waive some or all of its sovereignty. This new entity could enter into contracts, leases, operating agreements as well as other documents and meet requirements by financial institutions in the case of default or contract dispute. In addition, it could be used to provide loan financing for Tribal projects.

OSGC History

In 1995, the Oneida Nation was approached by two local businessmen who wanted to form a partnership with the Nation in order to develop a medical clinic to be located on Tribal land. At that time, there was no tribally owned business that would lend itself to such a development, so it was decided a new Tribal corporation would be formed to act as a holding company for this business venture. In October 1996, the Oneida Seven Generations Corporation was established by the Oneida Business Committee, with the goal of developing the property. That historic development is known today as the Bellin Hospital property.

What OSGC Is

OSGC's charter has changed over the years, however since the 2013 dissolution petition, the Oneida Business Committee has amended OSGC's charter back to its core competency: "OSGC's primary function and purpose is to engage in business activities solely for the purposes of commercial real estate."

There have been, and will always be, some risks associated with business deals, but OSGC is not about individual projects. It's not waste-to-energy, it's not Nature's Way, and it's not Oneida Nation's Electronics (ONE). Oneida Seven Generations Corporation is about commercial real estate development and leasing for the benefit of, and protection of, the Oneida Nation.

OSGC's Proven Success

OSGC has had overwhelming success, and it's time to focus on that success. In the span of 21 years, OSGC has realized the benefit of commercial real estate development, as we grown from managing one property, with a value of $1 million, to managing 15 properties and 30 leases with more than $50 million in assets. We have established a business park, a Foreign Trade Zone and a Hubzone. OSGC is an extremely important company when real estate developers or real estate opportunities present itself to the Nation. Over the years OSGC has developed strong business partnerships with Bellin Health, Schneider and Badger Sheet Metal. Plus, we have been involved with several Tribal projects including the Oneida Tower Foods Building, the Oneida Post Office, 29/32 Truck Stop, as well as the Packerland and West Mason malls, to name just a few.

Progress Stalled

During the past three years, the OSGC dissolution process has:

- Cost the Oneida Nation millions of dollars in lawsuits, attorney, financial and accounting fees,
- Caused the Oneida Nation to miss approximately $150M in business opportunities
- Hurt our credibility and brand in the business community (both locally and nationally)

Our Neighbors Are Moving Ahead

While OSGC and the Oneida Nation's commercial real estate activities have stalled from the uncertainty, the business and economic development activities of our neighbors have increased dramatically. Just look around. The City of Green Bay is growing at a rapid pace. Ashwaubenton has been developing land on the west side of its boundaries. Hobart continues to develop its Southeast Business Park. The Green Bay Packer's are developing the Titletown District Development. There is construction and development – and the revenue that goes with it – all around us. We have current business partners that have indicated they'd like to expand, but OSGC can't even discuss new business opportunities with the uncertainty of dissolution.

Your Support Is Needed

The Oneida Nation needs to continue to diversify its economy to sustain the needs of the General Tribal Council. Just as the foresight of our elders before us, we understand the need to responsibly develop our land, as it is our most important asset. OSGC will be on the August 10th GTC agenda; we ask that you come to the GTC meeting with an open mind and understanding of the importance of this tribal corporation for the future of our Nation.

SEOTS Summer Youth Programs Target Fitness Education

By Mark W. Powless
SEOTS Director

Each summer South-eastern Oneida Tribal Services (SEOTS) provides two six-week youth programs targeting two different age groups. Ages 7-11 meet each Wednesday and ages 12-16 meet each Thursday, 9am-3:30pm, starting in June. Space is limited to fourteen youth in each group.

This summer the theme focused on fitness, but included other components. Two 'real talk' sessions tackled serious youth topics. One was facilitated by Indian Council on Alcoholism and addressed marijuana use. The other was facilitated by staff from Gerald L. Ignace Indian Health Center and dialogued self esteem.

Every summer includes cultural education and 2016 was no different. The youth learned about running within Haudenosaunee culture, basic beadwork, Longhouse dancing and singing, Oneida Long Ball, Indigenous Foods Bingo, and an understanding of the good mind.

Fitness related content included a basketball clinic led by Tribal member Derick Denny, a joint activity with Oneida Longhouse visitors, and Ho-chunk Nation youth to play laser tag, a canoe trip down the mighty Duck Creek in Oneida, an introduction to mixed martial arts, and a lacrosse clinic.

The summer concluded with a trip to Six Flags Great America on Wednesday, August 3.

The summer youth programs could not be successful without the help of our summer intern. The SEOTS summer intern is funded by the Oneida Nation. This year the intern hailed from Dartmouth

Summer busy at Oneida Cannery

Submitted photos

Community members enjoyed learning the ins and outs of strawberry jam making at a workshop held by the Tsyunhehkwa Cannery.

Shekoli Swakweku,

With our 2016 Summer seemingly flying past us, I wanted to share updates of the Work our Tsyunhehkwa Cannery has been providing since our Calendar Year began. This was an article I was late to submit to the Kali this Spring, and adding some quick notes the majority was supplied to us by Vickie Cornelius our Tsyunhehkwa Cannery Supervisor! My apologies for the delay, but it is worth sharing and recognizing!

The Tsyunhehkwa Cannery has been hosting a number of Community Workshops this Fiscal Year! As with the years in the past they have concentrated on those areas that they receive the most request by Community Members. The workshops have included areas on White Corn such as hulling process, Corn Bread, Flours and Corn Mush. Community members learned two ways to hull white corn using hardwood ashes and baking soda.

Cooking corn with hardwood ashes enhances the balance of essential amino acids and frees the otherwise almost unavailable niacin in the corn. This is one of the essential human nutrients. Insufficient niacin in the diet can cause nausea, skin and mouth lesions, anemia, headaches, and tiredness. The Cannery also hosted a corn bread workshop. Community members learned how to hull the white corn with wood ashes, dry, grind and make a corn bread traditional way with beans and a corn bread replacing the beans with strawberries and maple syrup.

The Iroquois used a variety of berries and nuts in making corn bread. The strawberry corn bread is used in the traditional wedding ceremony. Two small corn breads were placed in corn husk, tied together and boiled. These were placed in the wedding baskets. Strawberries were used because they represent the shape of the heart.

Our cultural knowledge was shared through the Creation Story. Dr. Carol Cornelius shared her knowledge of the white corn history, uses of corn and the very rare Mother Corn she grows. Each kernel has its own husk. Dr. Carol has written a booklet titled "The Three Sisters" and written a book titled "Iroquois Corn, In a Cultural Based Curriculum."

They also provided Workshops on Strawberries, Dehydration, Pickles and they are always focusing on Food Processing and Preservation, targeting seasonal products. Key areas included for these workshops are the products, regardless if they are growing and harvesting in your own gardens or if you are picking them up from a local Farmers Market or retailer.

Overall our program is looking to share with our Community the resources we can provide, the knowledge you can have on your own food needs. We are targeting these areas because we want to have an impact on the food security of our/your Community Members. We work to establish a solid footprint in the Food Sovereignty of the Community, specifically the responsibility we have toward our White Corn.

Our next Tsyunhehkwa Article will concentrate on the efforts that have been taking place to increase the yield of the White Corn we plant and the work that goes into it. If there are any questions on the Tsyunhehkwa program of this article or any of our services and products please contact my office. Jeff Metoxen, Director Tsyunhehkwa.

Zika outbreak prompts travel warning for area of Miami

By KELLI KENNEDY
and JOSH REPLOGLE
Associated Press

MIAMI (AP) ~ In a highly unusual travel warning, health officials advised pregnant women to avoid a part of Miami where mosquitoes are apparently transmitting Zika directly to humans.

Health officials last Friday announced that mosquitoes have apparently started spreading Zika on the U.S. mainland, citing four cases they strongly believe were caused by bites. Ten more cases were announced Monday, even though Florida authorities have yet to find any mosquitoes actually carrying the virus.

Of the 14 people infected, two are women and 12 are men. Eight patients showed symptoms of Zika, which can include fever, rash, joint pain and red eyes. The others had no symptoms. The disease is often so mild that most people don't know they are infected.

All 14 cases are thought to have occurred in Miami's Wynwood arts district, a trendy, fast-gentrifying neighborhood of warehouses, art galleries, restaurants and boutiques.

Rosemary LeBranch was doing laundry in Wynwood when health officials came to her house a few days ago and took urine samples from her, her daughter and her father. Her father, Gabriel Jean, tested positive for Zika, she said Monday.

He had already spoken with a doctor and was advised to wear long shirts and pants outdoors.

"He said nothing hurts; he doesn't have any pain. He doesn't feel anything," she said.

More than 1,650 cases of Zika have been reported in U.S. states. Nearly all have been the result of travel to a Zika-stricken country or sex with someone who was infected abroad, but now more than a dozen people have been infected in the U.S.

Florida health officials said they have tested more than 200 people in Miami-Dade and Broward counties since early July. An emergency response team from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention will help Florida authorities investigate the outbreak, collect samples and control mosquitoes.

Scott asked for a CDC emergency team to help Florida combat Zika, which has been sweeping Latin America and the Caribbean in recent months and now may be gaining a long-dreaded foothold in the U.S. The White House said a team will be sent quickly.

"We will continue to keep our residents and visitors safe utilizing constant surveillance and aggressive strategies, such as increased mosquito spraying, that have allowed our state to fight similar viruses," Florida

Gov. Rick Scott said in a statement Monday.

Government health officials warned pregnant women Monday to avoid the Zika-stricken part of Miami and told couples who have been there recently to put off having children for at least two months, after the number of people feared infected through mosquito bites in the U.S. climbed to 14.

The CDC also said expectant mothers should get tested for the virus if they have visited the neighborhood since mid-June.

Jordan Davison and Melissa Felix work for a cruise line and were enjoying their day off Monday looking at Wynwood's spray-painted murals.

"It's not like a big thing, right?" the 25-year-old Davidson said. "It's kind of freaky. There's so much going on we didn't know, didn't really think about it. ... I might wear bug spray going forward."

CDC officials said they could not remember another time in the 70-year history of the disease-fighting agency when it told members of the public not to travel someplace in the U.S.

Zika infections in pregnant women can cause severe brain-related birth defects, including extremely small skulls. The

Noted Ojibwe author has died of cancer at 73, family says global outbreak has led to more than 1,800 serious defects.

The virus can linger in the blood and urine for weeks and has been found in sperm for months. As a result, the CDC said men and women who have recently been in the affected area should wait at least eight weeks before trying to conceive a child. And men who have had symptoms of Zika should wait at least six months, the CDC said.

The travel warning covers an area of about one square mile in Wynwood to the east of Interstate 95 and south of I-195. It's large enough, health officials said, to provide a buffer around the suspected hot zone. The tropical mosquito that spreads Zika travels less than 200 yards in its lifetime.

Dr. Peter Hotez, a tropical medicine expert at the Baylor College of Medicine in Texas, said the CDC should be more cautious and expand the travel advisory to all of Miami-Dade County.

"If you're pregnant or think you might be pregnant, avoid travel to Miami, and possibly elsewhere in South Florida," he said. "I'm guessing most women who are pregnant are doing that. I don't think they're sitting around waiting for the CDC to split hairs and fine-tune it to a specific area."

CDC Director Dr. Tom Frieden said the narrowly drawn warning was dictated by science and not by any concern for Florida's crucial tourism industry. He said it was based on the nation's ability to contain previous outbreaks of other diseases carried by the same mosquito.

"There wouldn't be a technical or scientific basis to give a broader recommendation," Frieden said.

Speaking Tuesday morning on ABC's "Good Morning America," Frieden said officials were finding it hard to eradicate the mosquito in the affected area.

"It could be that the mosquitoes there are resistant to the insecticide being used," he said, adding that it could take weeks for federal and state officials to figure that out.

He also said mosquito control is difficult in that neighborhood.

"This is an unusual neighborhood, or an emerging neighborhood," Frieden said. "It's mixed use. It has industrial, business and residential and that makes mosquito control very complex."

Kennedy reported from Fort Lauderdale, Florida. Associated Press writers Mike Stobbe in New York; Tamara Lush in Tampa, Florida; and Josh Lederman in Washington contributed to this report.

National Railroad Museum in Green Bay plans $20M expansion

ASHWAUBENON, WI (AP) – The National Railroad Museum in Green Bay is raising money for a $20 million expansion project.

Fundraising will take about a year and construction will take at least two years, said Jacqueline Frank, the museum's executive director.

Wisconsin, Minnesota farmers could struggle to profit

LA CROSSE, WI (AP) – Wisconsin and Minnesota farmers could struggle again this year with a return on their crop investment, despite above average corn and soybean yields.

The La Crosse Tribune (<http://bit.ly/2aMyc0I>) reports that agriculture experts are predicting a executive director.

"What you're going to be able to see is basically a big room with multiple bays in it and each bay will have two to three, maybe up to four different pieces of rolling stock. Each one you'll be able to enter into," Frank told WLUK-TV (<http://bit.ly/2aSVXAR>).

She said in the center of the room visitors will be able to see a turntable that will turn all of the pieces.

The museum, which celebrated its 60th anniversary Saturday, is looking to Green Bay and beyond for funding.

"We're also talking to bumper crop of corn with more than 94 million acres of the grain planted across the country, an increase of 6 million acres from last year.

But the Department of Agriculture says crop prices haven't recovered much after dipping to $3.40 per corn bushel and $8.50 per soybean bushel in 2015, which resulted in losses for many farmers.

Trempealeau County Extension Ag Agent Steve Okonek says many farmers will struggle to see a return on their investments for the second year in a row because the cost of fertilizer, fuel and labor is $4 or more per acre.

"That's the aim of the design here is to provide an appropriate environment for the trains that they do have, that there isn't continued deterioration of the rolling stock that they have, that they can restore and preserve them and keep them in an environment that is museum-like," said Ian Griffiths, an architect at

Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks
Managing Editor

When I became the Managing Editor of the Kalihwisaks about a decade ago, I threw open the door to any and all letters for any topic or length. I reasoned that people would understand that these were letters, opinions, not necessarily fact, and that people would attempt to maintain a semi-civil tone in their letter writing.

Dang, was I wrong.

So, back came the word limit of 500 words and some controls on what could and couldn't be printed. For example, if you were accusing someone of specific actions or misdeeds, there had to be documentation. Want to talk money? We need documentation. Want to engage in name calling? That's what the internet is for.

Eventually, it was requested that the letter limit go to 250 words. I didn't fight it because people were still calling letters "articles".

Now there's a petition by Frank Cornelius that will be presented to the General Tribal Council on Wednesday, August 10 to throw open the doors to all letters 400 words or less. I have no problem with the word length, but hard experience has taught me that there has to be limits on what can be printed in the paper.

As written, the Kalihwisaks would be obligated to print any letter sent as long as it was 400 words in length. There are no provisions for swear words, name calling, or out and out lies – what's referred to as libel when done in print form.

I imagine there are certain letters that we can all agree shouldn't get printed. For example, once in a while we get letters that consist of four pages of loops, like someone was writing a cursive lower case L repeatedly. My question is – how many words is that? We had a person upset that someone called her a name in our letters (back in the wild no rules era) but her letter in response was worse than a Trump Tweet.

While most of us could agree those letters shouldn't be printed in the Kalihwisaks, some of the petitioner's letters tend to fall in a grey area. On occasion, Mr. Cornelius throws out dollar amounts without documentation, and accuses the former administrators of Oneida Seven Generations Corporation of theft and felonious activities without proof. Potentially, some of his letters rise to the level of libel which could result in himself and the Kalihwisaks being sued. You might be saying "but you can't sue a sovereign tribe." No, but it still costs money to send a lawyer to court to tell the judge that.

Mr. Cornelius is using "free speech" to force his opinions on the pages of the Kalihwisaks, but free speech doesn't mean using Oneida's resources for one's own personal crusade. It's being able to say and write what you wish, but you may have to pay for the ink and paper (or computer and WIFI connection).

Mr. Cornelius can share his opinions in many ways; he can make copies and distribute them at meetings, submit them to other area papers such as the Green Bay Press Gazette or the Oneida Times, or he can publish them online such as on the Oneida Eye or social media sites like Facebook. The ways one can get into trouble with free speech are endless; let's not drag the Kalihwisaks in there.

Letters Policy

Letters must be limited to 250 words. All letters are subject to editing and must have your signature, address and phone number for confirmation. Confirmation of letters will be needed before publication. Kalihwisaks has the right to refuse publication of submitted letters.

Effective January 1,

2001 per Kalihwisaks Policies & Procedures, Section I (c)(4), "Individuals will not be allowed to submit more than eight (8) letters per year regardless of topics." For more information on Kalihwisaks Policies & Procedures, please contact (920) 496-5636

Guest articles and editorials that appear in the Kalihwisaks are not necessarily the views or opinions of the Kalihwisaks staff or the Oneida Nation of Wisconsin.

Although we require a signed submission for letters, you can e-mail us now – and send the hard copy through the mail – to ensure we get your submission by the deadline.

E-mail your letters to: dwalschi@oneidanation.org

The Annual Clean Sweep was held on Wednesday, July 13, 2016. In order to provide this service to the community, there is an awesome amount of collaboration and cooperation from all tribal departments and volunteers. 156 customers were served and an additional 136 elders were served via a "pick-up" program. The extreme heat did cause safety and health concerns, so the event closed at 3:30 p.m. Environmental Health & Safety will provide an alternative date for this Fall.

Yawáko to the coordinators, staff, and volunteers for making this annual community program a huge success, despite the heat.

FY2016 Budget Update:

On December 14, 2015, General Tribal Council adopted the Fiscal Year 2016 budget. As of June 30, 2016 (End of 3rd Quarter), I am pleased to report that we have a positive variance of Tribal Contribution Sources. Tribal Contribution Sources include Gaming Revenue, Retail Revenue, and General Fund Interest. In addition, expenses are less than what was proposed in the FY 16 budget. This is due to oversight provided by the Finance Division and Operations. Please note that any remaining funds at the end of each fiscal year are appropriated once G.T.C. accepts the "Annual Audit." The annual audit is provided at the January Annual meeting. Therefore, positive variances will skip a budget cycle. Yawáko to the hard work within all of our operations of the Oneida Tribe.

Ya'teswalihwaká-nle? (You All Look Forward) Community Budget Meeting Dates

On April 11, 2016, G.T.C. provided the following directive: "...the Treasurer and Oneida Business Committee to continue improving our budgeting actions and making those processes more open to input from the membership;"

I am working with a Communications Team to provide pertinent FY 2017 budget information to Tribal membership. Please watch for "Info Cards" as well as the Kalihwisaks, which will be featuring budget articles and information throughout August and September 2016.

I am pleased with the diligence, patience, and dedication of everyone involved to developing a budget. Each year, we improve the financial systems in order to better serve the people and support our Tribal governance. We continue listening to our stakeholders to "create a strong Nation built on Tsiniyukwalihotá and a strong economy for all of us." Sustainability is not an easy achievement, but by working together sustainability is attainable.

Goals and Objectives for this year

At the start of my term, I planned and executed my 90-day objectives including: reviewing the support system for all standing Business Committee meeting, developing a plan to address inter-office design, developing a plan to strengthen personnel relations, and reviewing Board, Committee, and Commission reporting alignment.

Along with my office's goals and objectives, the Oneida Business Committee (OBC) has had various goals and objectives we've work on as a team these past two years. These include: reviewing and amending the OBC Agenda submission process, and creating a functioning Community Calendar.

Looking forward to the last year of this term, I'm requesting input and feedback from the community. Through the month of August I encourage anyone, with an idea or with a plan, to forward it to my office at TribalSecretary@oneidationation.org. Please use the subject line "Year 3 Feedback and Input". You may also call my office at 920-869-4478. Thank you for your participation and interest.

Tribal Cemetery

OBC Resolution 05-19-89-E adopted the Cemetery Law which established the Oneida Tribal Cemetery on the Oneida Reservation. With Business Committee Resolution 01-14-09-E, the Cemetery Law was amended. This amendment transferred the administration of the Cemetery to the Enrollment Department. Per Oneida Land Commission resolution 05-11-15-J, the Tribal Cemetery was named "Oneida Sacred Burial Grounds".

Over the past few years, there have been various concerns from the Community regarding the cemetery and its maintenance. To address the cosmetic issues, the Enrollment Department entered into a contract with a professional landscaper who has done a great job in maintaining the appearance of the cemetery. To address the non-cosmetic concerns, an inter-

Hey Oneida youth, take the Generations Indigenous challenge with me.

I first took the Gen-I challenge in 2015 when President Obama called on tribal leaders to work with youth, ages 14 to 24, on something to improve our communities. I pledged to recruit youth to help me pick up trash and litter to keep our reservation clean. Wow - when I put out calls for help, I was blown away by the willingness and eagerness of our youth who showed up to help me.

While picking up garbage is hard, messy work, we had fun. In the spring, we walked along ditches picking up trash; this summer, we met up at community events like the lacrosse tournament and powwow to pick up trash and empty garbage bins; and this fall, we will help employees in Oneida's Environmental Health & Safety Division to pick up trash on Aug.

30 along roadways as part of the Adopt-A-Highway Clean Up project.

If you are reading this and you were one of those youth who helped me or if you are the parent, grandparent or older sibling of one those youth who you probably had to drive to a volunteer site, please accept my sincere thanks for giving your time and energy to help keep our reservation looking beautiful. You are awesome.

Since the Gen-I challenge was so fun, I want to accept the Gen-I challenge for a second time. This time I want Oneida youth to accept the challenge as a team. As a team, we will learn about the Gen-I challenge, accept the challenge and then work together to figure out what we will do.

If you are 14 to 24, you can sign up by calling me at my office at (920) 869-4428, sign up on my Facebook, or attend my first organizing meeting at 3:30 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 30, at the Little Bear Development Center, immediately following our cleanup work that day.

At our first meeting, we will talk about the different projects we could work on together, from helping make a current community activity better, like helping with the annual Relay for Life fight against cancer held at the end of every July behind the Norbert Hill Center, or volunteering at the library to read books to children, or volunteering with the Tribe's Development Division to beautify the reservation by helping to plant flowers, pull weeds and care for trees, or we could start a youth entrepreneurship business camp. As volunteers, we have so many opportunities to do something positive when we work together. So sign up and join me for the Gen-I challenge. To learn about Gen-I, go to: <https://genindigenous.com/>

On a different note, the end of summer means its back to school. For many native youth, achieving success at school means having to overcome some unique challenges and obstacles. A 2014 Native Youth Report from the White House found that Native students succeed when their Tribe is able to work collaboratively with public schools to incorporate culturally trained staff and teachings in the system, with targeted support to Native students by staff trained to address critical needs.

Our tribal nation provides an array of resources to help our students achieve. For example, tutoring services can be found at the Community Education Center (CEC); our Nation's YES program (Youth Enrichment Services) puts a staff person in some of the surrounding public schools - Green Bay, Seymour and West De Pere; under the federal Title VII program, there is a staff person in public schools in Appleton, Ashwaubenton, Pulaski, Green Bay, Howard-Suamico, Seymour, West De Pere, and Freedom.

And for the first time starting this fall, our Nation will send eight Oneida students through the Youth Apprenticeship Program via Northeast Wisconsin Technical College (NWTC) and the state of Wisconsin Department of Workforce Development. High school juniors and seniors will attend regular school classes in the morning and spend 10 to 15 afternoon hours employed in a business, either in Green Bay or by the Nation. These students will earn high school and college credits as they explore careers and gain hands-on work experience in a skilled trade. To learn more about this opportunity, call the Oneida Education and Training Department at (920) 869-4037 or (920) 869-4345.

Finally, if you are an adult reading this column and you have a student in your life, you are a very important resource to help your child achieve success in school. All it takes is encouragement and being interested in your child's school studies and activities. Read together, even for 20 minutes each evening or before bed. Help your student manage their time to ensure they get their homework done. Be sure your student attends school every day and is on time. Good luck to all the students. I wish you the best.

departmental team was formed. The Cemetery Working Group, which includes members of the Trust and Enrollment Departments, Trust and Enrollment Committee, Development Division, Land Management Division and Environment Health and Safety, work together to provide recommendations to the Trust and Enrollment Committee as well as the Business Committee. A sub-team, known as the Technical Team, provides the technical expertise.

To address the concerns, a Capital Improvement Project (CIP) was presented and approved by the OBC. Since the start of 2016, monthly updates are provided to the OBC at the second regular meeting of the month. Most recently, a Hydrogeology Study was completed at the cemetery. A draft was presented to the OBC at the July 27, 2016, meeting. Once the final report is submitted, the recommendations will be reviewed and a decision will be made on how to move forward.

Special General Tribal Council Meeting – Wednesday, August 10, 2016

The next Special General Tribal Council (GTC) meeting agenda will include discussion on Oneida Seven Generations Corporation (OSGC). I'd like to provide you a quick overview of the Oneida Business Committee's recommendation regarding OSGC.

From December 2013 until today, the Oneida Business Committee has been working towards the dissolution of OSGC as directed by GTC. Although we would have liked this to move forward faster, it was not and is not possible due to litigation issues.

However, a change was made by the current OBC earlier this term – we took steps to limit the corporation's role to simply acting as a commercial leasing company. We are also working with the current agent to resolve the litigation and financing agreements. What we have found is that the corporation, as a commercial leasing company, is a viable operation. Once all of the other issues are resolved, there are valuable tenants that continue to lease the property, and the corporation continues to utilize its relationships to identify new tenants and increase the existing landlord-tenant relationships.

The realization of corporation's foundation being solid should lead us to the next natural question; is the current singular proposed role ripe for General Tribal Council to look forward and determine a future direction which preserves these existing landlord-tenant relationships? The Oneida Seven Generations Corporation is now limited to commercial leasing only and with GTC's support, the corporation can be permanently and formally restructured so it is in the best position to lease the Oneida Nation's commercial properties. I ask all of us as GTC to consider the following recommendation (recognizing that it will take a two-thirds vote to accomplish) at the Wednesday, August 10, 2016, special GTC meeting: Motion to rescind the December 15, 2013 action dissolving the Oneida Seven Generations Corporation and restrict the corporation to commercial leasing activities.

340B Drug Pricing Program Update

I've provided two articles with information on the 340B Drug Pricing Program (page 24 of the May 5 and page 25 of the June 2 issue). At the August 24, 2016, regular OBC meeting, the Comprehensive Health Division is scheduled to provide their next quarterly report. This report is expected to include a final total cost of the Nation's ineligibility for the 340B Drug Pricing Program from April 1, 2016, through June 30, 2016. I encourage everyone with questions on the impact to come to the meeting. You may also email or call and I will do my best to ensure questions about process or total costs are addressed.

Back to School

Lastly, with only one more month of summer to look forward to, we need to prepare for Back to School! Education is the key and I encourage each student, Head Start through college, young and returning adults, to take full advantage of every educational program and service the Nation has to offer. With education and life experience, we can we truly keep moving this Nation forward with a good mind, a good heart and a strong fire.

D. Adopt resolution titled Implementing Per Capita Plan for Fiscal Year 2017 to Fiscal Year 2021 Adopted by General Tribal Council on June 13, 2016

Sponsor: Lisa Summers, Tribal Secretary
Motion by Lisa Summers to adopt resolution titled Implementing Per Capita Plan for Fiscal Year 2017 to Fiscal Year 2021

Adopted by General Tribal Council on June 13, 2016, seconded by Brandon Stevens. Motion ruled out of order by Chairwoman Tina Danforth.

For the record: Chairwoman Tina Danforth stated based on what Jo Anne said she said it is my discretion to call it out of order due to the grey areas and again I think due to the uncertainty of what the outcome of the June 13th because the main motion is the main motion and the main motion was $2,000 for 5 years. That stands. And if there's an amendment that is contradictory then we are not ready to move forward unless we are going to pay $2,000 plus $1,300 and I don't think that was the intent of the floor on that day. And I think from a procedural standpoint this needs to be addressed and it's not clear. It is totally not clear. A main motion passes, the entirety of the main motion passes along with its' amendments. Based on that, I am going to say it's out of order.

Motion by Lisa Summers to table this item to the July 27, 2016, regular Business Committee meeting, seconded by David Jordan. Motion carried unanimously.

Justice Dept. asks appeals court to stay ID ruling

MADISON, Wis. (AP) ~ State attorneys have asked a federal appeals court to temporarily block a ruling allowing Wisconsin residents to vote without photo identification.

U.S. District Judge Lynn Adelman issued an injunction last month allowing people struggling to obtain IDs to vote in the Nov. 8 election if they sign an affidavit.

State Justice Department attorneys filed notice of appeal July 22 with the U.S. 7th Circuit Court of Appeals. They asked Adelman to stay his ruling pending the appeal's outcome but Adelman refused.

The DOJ asked the 7th Circuit to stay the ruling Monday, arguing it's necessary to avoid voter confusion and the state would expend resources preparing an affidavit process.

Adelman's ruling is separate from a decision a federal judge in Madison issued last week loosening voter ID requirements.

How will the Per Capita affect your Benefits?

The Oneida Nation Elder Per Capita is right around the corner and all elders need to be prepared because the Per Capita payments will affect your SSI and Medicaid health care benefits. SSI and Medicaid eligibility are based on an individual or family's monthly income and assets. The maximum asset limit is $2,000 for an individual and $3,000 for a couple.

- The Oneida Elder Per Capita is considered income the month that it is received and will likely put most people over income for SSI and Medicaid. This means that you will not be eligible for:
- SSI & Needs-based Veterans Benefits

- Medicare Buy-In Programs
- Food Share or Commodities
- W-2, TANF, or Medical Assistance
- Section 8 Housing Voucher Assistance
- Title V
- To become eligible again you will need to spend the Per Capita money down until you are within the eligibility guidelines. You can always spend down your Per Capita to help meet the necessary asset limit on:

- home repairs (i.e. water heaters, A/C units)
- vehicle repairs or purchase a vehicle
- furniture
- pay rent ahead of schedule

- Remember loaning money to family or friends is not eligible & Keep all receipts to prove spend downs.
- After one month, any remaining Per Capita money that has not been spent down will be considered as an asset, not income. Once you are within the SSI and Medicaid assets limits, you will be eligible for SSI and Medicaid again.

If you have any questions or need assistance determining if the Oneida Per Capita will affect you, or reapplying for SSI or Medicaid, contact: Elder Benefit Specialist (920) 869-2448 or 1(800)867-1551 far. To watch the process of the corn growing from day one until now has been exciting. It's also been a lot of hard, hard work. We have gone out to the garden quite a few times to water and till the weeds; which can take a couple hours to get done each time," said Cornelius.

White corn stands in the sun at the Community Garden located off of Highway 54 just south of Green Bay.

The rewards the garden is providing Cornelius and her family far outweigh the work.

"The beauty of how fresh and clean the garden looks is so refreshing. More than that, the entire experience has definitely helped me to grow. Being in the garden with the corn is helping me to learn who I am culturally and spiritually, helping me to connect deeper with my family and helping to strengthen the relationships with everyone involved with the initiative. It has been a very healing and uplifting experience," Cornelius said.

For Apache Danforth and her family, cultural traditions drew her family to the garden program.

"I am doing it as a way to keep one of our traditions alive, provide sustenance for my family, to learn how to do it, food sovereignty," she said.

Danforth and her family are growing corn but her beans disappeared at the hands of wildlife.

"I absolutely love driving into the community garden area and seeing all of the family's plots. I can't help but think that this is how it's supposed to be, everyone working together," Danforth said.

Betters beams when she talks about the community commodore she sees at the gardens.

"Any given day you will see families working in their corn garden or three sisters garden. This is the time we share stories, learn from one another, and talk about how strong our corn is," said Betters. "We find our beautiful corn growing just strong and all around it are thistles trying to bring it down. So it's amazing when you talk about all creation and the relationships.

There is a powerful connection families are feeling and understanding when working in their garden and that is what it's all about."

The community gardens are located just south of Green Bay off of Highway 54.

University of Wisconsin to test diversity program

MADISON, Wis. (AP) - The University of Wisconsin-Madison is creating a diversity program for its incoming freshmen students after a series of race-related incidents have occurred on campus.

The campus will test the program, called Our Wisconsin, on up to 1,000 freshmen to allow students to learn about themselves and others, the Milwaukee Journal Sentinel reported.

"That's what the collegiate experience is all about," UW-Madison Dean of Students Lori Berquam said. "Some of our students are joining us from small towns and they're going to live in a residence hall that's bigger."

More than half of the university's students are from Wisconsin, which the U.S. Census Bureau said was nearly 88% white in 2015.

The campus is part of a national trend of colleges that believe mandatory cultural competency orientation can relieve racial tensions and help students navigate diverse work environments after graduation.

The program's creators said they consulted with other colleges that have implemented diversity programs, including University of Oklahoma, Oregon State University and the University of Michigan. A diversity consulting firm hired by the university wrote the program's curriculum.

University of Wisconsin-Madison has already hired an unidentified program director as well as an undergraduate student assistant. The program will also have 45 facilitators made up of students and faculty.

Chancellor Rebecca Blank set aside $150,000 to $200,000 from a special fund for the pilot program.

W. Lee Hansen, professor emeritus of economics at UW-Madison, has written several op-eds questioning the program and predicts there will be student backlash. He said the university's population of more than 43,000 will always include some people who have unshakable views on race and that diversity training only pits students against one another.

Last year, the university saw incidents in which swastikas were taped to a Jewish student's dorm room door, a Native American elder was heckled and a student of color received an anonymous note with racial threats.

Walker wants to continue tuition freeze

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Gov. Scott Walker wants to extend a tuition freeze at University of Wisconsin System schools through the next state budget but isn't planning to hand them any additional funding.

Walker sent a letter to state agency heads July 25 saying he wants to maintain the freeze to keep UW schools affordable. He also warned them not to expect any additional money in the two-year spending plan. The only exceptions to that will be K-12 education and the Corrections, Health Services and Workforce Development departments.

"To build on our commitment to student success, we must extend our tuition freeze," Walker wrote. "This will make our universities affordable and accessible."

Walker spokesman Tom Evenson said in an email that the governor is considering additional funding for UW that would be tied to meeting certain performance benchmarks. He declined to elaborate, saying only that the governor is considering "options."

Without offsetting state aid, the freeze would mean two more years of fiscal headaches for UW schools. Republicans froze tuition in the 2013-15 state budget after word broke that the system was sitting on massive reserves while raising tuitions year after year. The GOP extended the freeze for another two years in the 2015-17 budget while also cutting $250 million in funding to the system. The freeze and the cuts have led to layoffs, consolidations, reduced advising and fewer course offerings, according to system summaries of the cut's effect.

System spokeswoman Stephanie Marquis said a freeze without offsetting state aid could mean fewer classes and longer paths to graduation. System regents are set to consider their 2015-2017 budget request to Walker during a meeting later this month; Marquis said that request will include new initiatives to address student affordability.

"Should the Governor maintain a freeze, we hope he will fund our new initiatives so that college remains affordable for Wisconsin families," Marquis said in an email. She didn't elaborate on the initiatives, saying in a follow-up email that the request isn't ready yet.

Regent President Regina Millner didn't immediately respond to an email seeking comment. The United Faculty and Academic Staff didn't immediately respond to a request for comment. The union represents professors and staff at the state's flagship school, UW-Madison, where tuition has been locked at $9,273 for the last four years.

A message left for the Associated Students of Madison, the school's student government, also wasn't immediately returned.

Assembly Minority Leader Peter Barca, D-Kenosha, said in an email that telling state agencies to expect zero growth in funding reflects a lack of direction for the state. As for the tuition freeze, Barca said the freeze helps students only if the state offsets it with aid.

State agencies must submit their budget requests to Walker by Sept. 15. The governor will present his executive budget early next year. The Legislature's finance committee will then revise the document before sending it to the full Senate and Assembly for votes. The spending plan then goes back to Walker, who can use his veto power to tweak the document to his liking. The entire process will likely wrap up early next summer.

Oneida Nation introduces a Fruits and Vegetables prescription (FVRx) project

The Oneida Community Integrated Food Systems (OCIFS) group in collaboration with the Oneida Comprehensive Health Division has teamed up with the Oneida Farmers Market to introduce a new project entitled Fruits and Vegetables (FVRx) prescription project. With the help of the Physicians at the Oneida Community Health Center this project targets families and youth who are most at risk of health problems associated with food choices.

The thought behind this project is that people tend to trust and listen to their doctor more than the average person. Thus, five families will be chosen and identified by our Oneida Health Professionals and the physician/provider will write out a prescription for them to receive $20 worth of free fresh fruits and vegetables at the Oneida Farmers Market during the summer months.

"This project will assist the Oneida Nation in teaching about healthy local foods and the important role they play in our overall health and quality of life", stated Jeff Metoxen, the OCIFS Chairman. With the present and future health issues that are plaguing our youth, it is important to teach and share with them the roles food and nutrition play in their quality of life. We are all working to reach out to our youth their family and friends. The Oneida Nation is striving to address the diabetes and obesity issues that are a major problem over the Oneida Reservation. To learn more about what Oneida is doing in regards to food and education please visit us at www.oneidanation.org/ocifs.

Huge, once-hated fish now seen as weapon against Asian carp

By Tammy Webber
Associated Press

CHICAGO (AP) ~ It's a toothy giant that can grow longer than a horse and heavier than a refrigerator, a fearsome-looking prehistoric fish that plied U.S. waters from the Gulf of Mexico to Illinois until it disappeared from many states a half-century ago.

Persecuted by anglers and deprived of places to spawn, the alligator gar _ with a head that resembles an alligator and two rows of needlelike teeth _ survived primarily in southern states in the tributaries of Mississippi River and Gulf of Mexico after being declared extinct in several states farther north. To many, it was a freak, a "trash fish" that threatened sportfish, something to be exterminated.

But the once-reviled predator is now being seen as a valuable fish in its own right, and as a potential weapon against a more threatening intruder: the invasive Asian carp, which have swum almost unchecked toward the Great Lakes, with little more than an electric barrier to keep them at bay. Efforts are now underway to reintroduce the alligator gar in the northern part of its old range.

"What else is going to be able to eat those monster carp?" said Allyse Ferrara, an alligator gar expert at Nicholls State University in Louisiana, where the species is relatively common. "We haven't found any other way to control them."

Alligator gar, the second-largest U.S. freshwater fish behind the West Coast's white sturgeon, have shown a taste for Asian carp, which have been spreading and out-competing native fish for food. The gar dwarf the invaders, which themselves can grow to 4 feet and 100 pounds. The world-record alligator gar was 8 1/2 feet and 327 pounds, though they can grow larger.

Native Americans once used their enamel-like scales as arrow points, and early settlers covered plow blades with their tough skin and scales. But a mistaken belief that they hurt sportfish led to widespread extermination throughout the 1900s, when they were often shot or blown up with dynamite.

"Some horrible things have been done to this fish," said Ferrara, adding that sport fisheries are healthier with gar to keep troublesome species like carp under control. "It's similar to how we used to think of wolves; we didn't understand the role they played in the ecosystem."

Gar now are being restocked in lakes, rivers and backwaters - sometimes in secret locations - in several states. In May, Illinois lawmakers passed a resolution urging state natural resources officials to speed up its program and adopt regulations to protect all four gar species native to the state.

But the extent to which gar could control carp now is not well understood, and some people are skeptical.

"I don't think alligator gar are going to be the silver bullet that is going to control carp, by any stretch of the imagination," said Rob Hilsabeck, an Illinois biologist who says the best hope is that carp will sustain an alligator gar fishery to draw trophy hunters.

Others are more optimistic about the impact once the larger fish is established, which might require cutting notches in canals to give them access to spawning sites.

Asian carp reproduce more quickly but alligator gar also grow fast: Alligator gar stocked in one Illinois lake six years ago already are more than 4 feet long.

Quinton Phelps, a Missouri state fish ecologist, said the only way to effectively control carp is when they're smaller, before they can spawn. Which is where alligator gar come in.

"There is potential for them to be a wonderful weapon, but it's just potential right now," he said.

One challenge is that huge gar could become

Film Review by Justin Gauthier: "The Boy"

This review was originally published at <http://ylvoice.com>. Check out the site monthly for the latest work from Wisconsin's Native writers.

Set in 1984, Maori writer, actor, and director, Taika Waititi's film Boy is a poignant, comedic look at the nostalgia of childhood and the relationship between a son and an absentee father. The film captures a slice of time in the life of an 11 year-old boy nicknamed, you guessed it, "Boy", living in a completely rural part of eastern New Zealand. Relatable moniker aside, this film does an excellent job of welcoming viewers with modest production values that feel authentic to the place and time Waititi aims for.

Still, it's the characters in Boy that make the film.

From the strong debut of James Rolleston as Boy to the blustering, plucky performance of Taika Waititi as his father, Alamein, the film has two anchors that tug at the viewers' heartstrings. The aforementioned twin themes of nostalgia and relationship play themselves out in the starry-eyed hero-worship Boy endows upon his father. The father embodies the back-and-forth of arms-length distancing to reckless abandon that some young men mistake for maturity. These actors, performing Waititi's screenplay, transport the viewer to a time, place, and emotional release that's grippingly immersive. The film manages to strike a satisfying balance between comedy and drama. The laughs almost always spring from innocence and the drama is not overwrought, which is a difficult thing to achieve. Waititi shows the maturity of a seasoned storyteller in striking and maintaining this balance throughout.

Waititi is no stranger to the New Zealand film scene, as he's responsible for several masterworks in the country's emerging cinematic renaissance. His early efforts include 2007's romantic comedy Eagle vs Shark, a film that successfully carried the torch of the nerd comedy phenomenon sparked by Jared Hess' Napoleon Dynamite (2004) and was kindled by Tim Skousen's under-appreciated The Sasquatch Gang (2006). Beyond his home country, Waititi is a prominent figure in the global indigenous film circuit and has expressed at different times throughout his career a responsibility to portray Maori people in real and respectful ways.

In an interview from March 2015 on The Cuts, With Sterlin Harjo podcast, Waititi stated that he feels, "...a responsibility in that I don't want to embarrass my family, or Maori people. Even if, like, in Boy the dad is a complete idiot, it doesn't really paint Maori dads in a good light. I hope that people are mature enough to know that it's just about an idiot dad, it's not because he's Maori."

Within this quote, Waititi echoes the feelings of many indigenous filmmakers. It's insightful in the way it highlights the kind of internal vetting process that takes multiple levels of community into account. This attention to intention seems to be missing from the studio tent pole movies that have dominated theaters the past few years. The attention towards an honest portrayal of a specific character while keeping the image of family and people in mind is a fine example of what indigenous filmmakers should aspire to when practicing their art.

Menominee Tribal member Justin Eagle Gauthier has been featured in several literary journals. He is currently enrolled in the LoRez MFA program in creative writing studying screenwriting at the Institute of American Indian Arts.

Disabled Combat Veteran Hill assists Oneida Elder

By Yvonne Kaquatosh
 Kalihwisaks Page Designer
 & Advertising Coordinator
ykaquato@oneidanation.org

It's the little things that people do without being asked that make a world of difference in the lives of those who are the recipient of such great gestures.

One grateful citizen wanted to ensure the generosity of another didn't go unnoticed.

At 84, Noel (Summers) Clevon faithfully goes to the Oneida Family Fitness Center at the break of dawn to exercise in the pool. This is where she met her friend Mike Hill many years ago.

"Since this past winter 2015, I've had a rut in my driveway," explained Noel. Out of the goodness of his heart, she explained, Mike, a handicapped veteran, took it upon himself to repair a rut in her driveway.

She said he delivered "a bucket of stones on his scooter – on two separate occasions" to fill the hole in her driveway.

Hill was diagnosed with PTSD. His health is further compromised with diabetes and other health related issues. But that doesn't deter him.

He is a combat Veteran, who served our country during the Vietnam War from 1965 – 1966 in the U.S. Navy. He had high hopes initially while in high school, he says, when he was offered sports scholarships but had to pass on the opportunity when he was drafted at 18.

Upon his return home from the service, he worked at Procter & Gamble for 22 years. He said he invested wisely upon his retirement from the company and was able to take an '11 year break' throwing caution to the wind and living life in California.

With all the negativity during the Vietnam era, Hill shared the painful experience of coming home to a divided country, where he, along with other Vietnam veterans, were looked down upon for their service. It's an unfortunate memory that has stayed with him for the past 50 years.

Through the years, he says he came to understand and overcame the personal struggles that took hold of him for many years.

He's in a better place now, like a big teddy bear, doing what he can for others in the community. Despite lingering health issues, Hill is very active in the community, serving on the ONCOA Board for the last 5 years. He is a lifetime VFW member; he is a member of WIVA (Wisconsin Indian Veterans Association) and also serves as the Chairperson of ONVAC (Oneida Nation Veterans Association Committee).

He also shared that he is a proud father of three daughters, and a proud grandfather of 11 grandchildren and 4 great-grandchildren. And we can't forget his sidekick Noah. His longtime companion, Harley, a Lhasa Apso, passed on some time ago. His daughters saw how much he missed him and surprised him with another pet of the same breed.

Once the interview was completed, he was back at it, as he stepped outside to Clevon's back yard and asked her what else she needed done on her property.

With all that is going on in society today, it's always reassuring to hear about simple gestures that make a person's day and change the perspective that there is still a lot of good people in the community. That is what Clevon wanted to convey to the Oneida community.

Indigenous Comic Con Nov. 18-20 in ABQ

In children's and YA literature, we know that comics and graphic novels are a growth area. We know that there's momentum, too, to provide children and teens with work by Native people and people of color.

With that in mind, I hope that representatives from large and small publishers will head to Albuquerque in November of this year for Indigenous Comic Con. The list of special guests includes people who are very popular in Native circles. That means their work resonates with Native people, which means their work is legit. People within the industry who pay attention know that we love the 1491s! And, Arigon Starr! They are among the special guests for the conference.

Indigenous Comic Con is being organized by Native Realities publishing. Lee Francis is a key figure at Native Realities, and a leader in the comic book genre. He, and the work he does, was featured on PBS News Hour in 2015.

Most (all?) publishers tell us they want diverse voices. With this post, I'm looking at publishers and editors who proclaim their interest in Native voices. Indigenous Comic Con is an opportunity to meet Native writers and bring their work into greater visibility. An early-bird three-day pass is $45.

temptation for trophy fishermen, even before they're old enough to spawn.

"It will be interesting to see if fishermen have enough integrity to pass up a 7-foot fish that's 200 pounds," said Christopher Kennedy, a Missouri fisheries supervisor who's working on catch regulations. "We'd love to create a self-sustaining population that we can turn into a trophy fishery."

Still, the fish has a public relations problem in some circles, including a boating group in Illinois, whose members recently derided it as a "trash fish" and questioned reintroduction efforts.

But avid angler Olaf Nelson, who in 2013 was the first to catch an alligator gar in Illinois in 50 years — a 2-footer in a stocked lake — said they're important whether anyone wants to fish for them or not.

"Whether they're loved or hated, they're a natural part of the Illinois ecosystem," he said. "It's pretty rare that we can fix a mistake."
