Governor Doyle signs mascot bill

By Dawn Walschinski

Ritchie Plass, Menominee, witnessed something he never thought he would see in his lifetime on Wednesday, May 5 when Gov. Jim Doyle has signed a bill that allows the state school superintendent to ban American Indian mascots, nicknames and logos.

"That's history, not only Wisconsin history, Native American history, but it's history of the United States and it was just unbelievable for me," said Plass.

Under the new law, school district residents will be allowed to object to race-based names, nicknames, logos and mascots. The state superintendent will decide whether a hearing is warranted.

If the superintendent holds a hearing and finds the use promotes discrimination or stereotyping, he or she must order the school board

Relay for Life Kick Off

This year's Relay for Life theme is birthdays. The more people who can survive cancer the more birthdays that are celebrated.

By Dawn Walschinski Kalihwisaks

American At the Cancer Society Relay for Life Kick Off meeting held Tuesday, May 4, "Pogi" King-Paula Margaret Dessart, Danforth and other volunteers blew out candles on cupcakes as part of the birthday theme for this year's events.

"It's birthdays, it's celebrating life, so everybody's going to be partying it up big time," King-Dessart.

The Oneida Relay for Life (RFL) will celebrate its 14th year on Friday, July 23 through Saturday, July 24 at the Norbert Hill Center Powwow Grounds. Danforth and King-Dessart have been involved with the relay since 1996.

"One of the representatives from the American Cancer Society asked if we would be interested in it, and of course we were because so many of the people who were sitting at the table at the time were affected one way or another by cancer," said Danforth.

Participants in the relay usually organize teams who raise funds during the year and camp out over night at the event. Danforth's team is named for her father Everett who died from cancer.

"Our family decided to get involved again. We're coordinating a couple of fundraisers to happen in the next couple months," of said Danforth.

King-Dessart's family organizes King's Cancer Crusaders in memory of their father who also fell to cancer the first year of the Oneida relay.

"It's really been a pleasure to be able to work together like this Plass hopes that other states will follow Wisconsin's lead, and is looking forward to adding an item to his traveling exhibit on Indian mascots.

"I got one of the pens, it's really cool," he exclaimed.

Senate Bill 25 was sponsored by Senators Coggs and Hansen and Representatives Soletski and Pope-Roberts.

In the April 29 issue of the Kalihwisaks, on page 3B The Oneida Community Library was awarded a 300 Scholastic book giveaway not 50 books. On page 5A in the Background on Business, Loucinda Conway graduated from Silver Lake College, not UWGB. On page 1A Earl Schmidt was identified as Earl Smith. John, Danny (Biidanawakad) June 4, 1980 - May 9, 2010

John Danny (Approaching Bii-Cloud, danawakad), age 29, of Green Bay passed away unexpectedly in Milwaukee on Sunday, May 9, 2010. He was born June 4, 1980 in Milwaukee to Bonnie Hill and Porky John as a member of the Oneida Bear Clan.

Danny enjoyed singing and dancing at Pow-Wow's as a proud member of the Oneida and Stockbridge tribes. He was always visiting old friends and making new friends wherever he went. Danny was the lead singer of the Eagle Singers Drum Group.

He was a big guy with a bigger heart. Little children where drawn to him because of his soothing nature. Danny liked to hunt, fish and camp. He always enjoyed traveling with the drummers to different parts of the United States and Canada. His humor was very notable. Danny was cracking jokes or playing pranks every day.

Committee looking for more teams to participate

"It was really hard to get a team, it was really emotional," said King-Dessart. However, it's become a family tradition.

"We get together, everybody works together, cooks, puts the tents up, decorates, everyon has a role," she said. Some members take on additional roles as part of the event.

"My brother really likes the challenge, because he likes to win the Dude Looks Like a Lady contest," said King-

"He takes pride in that," added Danforth.

"Oh, he does. If he doesn't win, he's hurt, he's hurt bad," said King-Dessart.

The RFL has three sections: celebrate, remember and fight back. According to King-Dessart, remember is the heart of the overnight event. Paper bags called Luminaria are decorated and then placed around the track. Candles are put inside and lit in memory of a loved one or in support for a survivor.

"Remember is the Luminaria ceremony where we remember those and acknowledge and support those people who've passed, and we also acknowledge the survivors," said King-Dessart. She recalled a balloon release at last year's relay.

"They came out with the last name, and there was one baloon left and it flew away at the end," said King-Dessart. "It was pretty emotional."

The Oneida RFL is facing an extra challenge in that the Oneida Casino will not be sponsoring the event this year.

"That's $6000 that we committee is hoping to make up the difference by selling tee-shirts and holding additional fund raisers such as "Blue Jeans n' Sneakers" where employees can pay a dollar to dress casual on a Thursday. Mishicot doesn't plan to change Indian logo MISHICOT, Wis. (AP) – The Mishicot School District has no plans to drop its Indian logo and mascot because of a new state law signed recently by Gov. Jim Doyle.

The district is one of about a dozen in Wisconsin that have not dropped the Indian nickname.

Mishicot Superintendent Colleen Timm says the school district has written permission from the Hannahville Potawatomi to use the Indian nickname and logo. The community is named for Native American Chief Abraham Mishicott.

The law signed by the governor allows the state school superintendent to ban American Indian mascots, nicknames and logos.

Timm tells the Herald Times Reporter the district has had no formal complaints in the six years she has been principal and superintendent in Mishicot.

cation for a National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System (NPDES) permit for storm water discharges from the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

On April 28, 2010, the EPA issued a public notice of a draft NPDES permit to the Oneida Tribe's Municipal Separate Storm Sewer System (Oneida MS4) for storm water discharge within the boundaries of the Oneida Reservation. The EPA issued similar public notices for NPDES permits for Hobart and those portions of Green Bay and Brown County located on the Oneida Reservation. The EPA issues NPDES permits for storm water discharges on Indian reservations. Green Bay and Brown County have also applied to the State Department of Natural Resources for similar storm water permits, Wisconsin Pollutant Discharge Elimination System (WPDES) permits, for areas outside the Oneida Reservation.

EPA's goal in regulating storm water discharge is to reduce common pollutants found in storm water discharge such as oil and grease from roadways, pesticides from lawns, sediment from construction sites, and trash such as cigarette butts, paper wrappers, and plastic botfaces (paved streets, parking lots, and building rooftops) and does not percolate into the ground. As the runoff flows over the land or impervious surfaces it accumulates pollutants and is discharged into waterways. When left uncontrolled these discharges may impair the waterways, discouraging thereby recreational use of the resource, contaminating drinking water supplies, and interfering with habitat of fish, other aquatic

The NPDES permit will require the Tribe to develop and implement a storm water management program which includes best management practices (BMPs) and measurable goals for each of the following six minimum control measures:

Card Concepts Customized for You...

By Steven J. Gandy Kalihwisaks

Debit or Credit? Merchants have spoken those words across the globe in recent years with the advent of modern electronic funds transfers systems. More and more people are turning away from cash and checks and turning to the relative safety that credit and debit cards provide both consumers and merchants.

That safety and convenience isn't magic however, it comes from companies that tailor their products and services to meet these needs and in doing so creates an opportunity for entrepreneur's to meet the needs of their businesses.

Owned and operated by Jason and Tana Aguirre along with their minority partner Travis Rogers, Card Concepts is forging it's way into the merchant services market.

Card Concepts is one such locally owned and operated business that provides a full range of merchant services for customers.

In addition they also sell the products to go with those services. Products

"We sell the product, we sell the machines and we also customize a program specific for each business. If they need wireless, we can do wireless, if they have internet... online shopping, we can also do that," Tana said.

The group currently has its home base of operations here in North East Wisconsin and also has satellite offices in Alabama and Colorado.

They have 15 agents working for them and have already accumulated over 350 customers nation wide.

The have based their business on honesty and transparent pricing techniques. They offer a straight up product and service line with no hidden fees unlike some companies in their field.

"Many other compain the nies industry...were doing stuff to merchants that we didn't agree with, just bad business practices, in our opinion. So what we tried to do was try to figure out how to go about doing this on our own. It's a lot harder than people would imagine," Jason said.

The business was formed when Jason and Roger decided to leave the merchant services company they had been working for in 2006. Card Concepts was expanded in 2008 when Tana came on board.

The core of their business is in the Midwest of the United States although they do have the two regional offices.

The recent sluggish nature of the global economy has played well into their business model and has helped Card Concepts drum up new businesses and clients.

"(The Economy) has actually helped us because businesses are actually looking for ways to save money and we can help them identify hidden costs and help set them up with the right program for their business. The economy has also forced people to look for more innovative ways to make money. And we're basically helping them look for those ways.," Tana said. In addition to established businesses and companies. Card Concepts is also equipped to help start-up businesses get their feet wet and heading toward the right direction. "We are getting a lot more calls from people saying, 'hey, I don't know what's going on. I don't know anything about it. Can you explain everything to me?"" Jason said. Tana continued, "When we have a starter company we basically hold their hand through the process and say this is how you work with the card processing." Card Concepts is also looking to expand into Indian Country and build a successful client base among tribal enterprises and tribally owned and operated businesses. Future goals of the business are to expand and have offices in every state across the nation. "We are going to keep doing what we are doing," Jason said. More Grass Fed Beef Please

Recently my husband read "Anti Cancer, a New Way of Life", by David Servan-Schreiber, MD, PHD. In the book the author writes that what we eat has a lot to do with our chances of getting cancer.

On of the foods he talks about is beef. He indicates that grass fed beef is so much better for us than corn fed beef. After reading this book my husband and I set out to locate grass fed beef. We found out that the Oneida Tribe has two cattle operations for beef. The main farm raises corn and hav beef, while fed Tsyunhehkwa raises grass fed beef.

Tsyunhehkwa is a very small operation and only harvest 6 to 8 steers each year. The cattle harvested this spring is already sold out and we have to send $75 to reserve beef from the up coming fall harvest.

I feel that our tribe should expand the grass fed beef operation. We have a lot of land that could and should be put to good use.

I grew up on Isaiah and Genevieve Cornelius family farm on Moore Road. We farmed 60 acres and it provided a comfortable lifestyle for our family of nine. The land is owned by the Oneida Tribe. For some reason the tribe is just letting that 60 go back to brush. Maybe it's in soil bank.

Our tribe should use the land in the agricultural zone that is not tilled for grass fed beef. We could use a lot of the beef ourselves and also sell a lot to non-tribals looking buy. We should use the venture fund for this business venture.

animal and not surprisingly, our health.

Grass Fed Beef Facts: 1/3 less fat than corn-fed beef. The fat it does have is much better for you as well because it is much higher in Omega-3's; essential fatty acids (the good stuff) than corn fed beef. Thus, fish are not the only source of these important fatty acids. Significantly higher levels of vitamins A and E, which means it is better for you and it actually stays fresh longer than corn fed beef!

Contains high levels of Linoleic Conjugated Acid (CLA). CLA is one of the most potent cancer fighting compounds known. Corn fed beef does not contain significant levels of CLA.

If E-coli contamination scares you away from beef, take heart. Cornell University and the USDA has documented that e-coli contamination is a problem of corn fed feedlot beef, but not grass fed beef.

Doesn't like per capita

My husband Lester F. Medley died about ten years ago. He was half Indian, half English, so the children are 1/4 Indian as I am Irish and German.

We were married 50 years.

It breaks my heart every time you give checks out for the Indian blood my children have.

To honor their father, I agree as he was a true Indian, the best husband and father, but they look at me like a nobody and resent the fact I don't have much and I could use a little money from them. Every year this happens, and I'm sure their loving father would hate them for this. He probably looks down from Heaven and shakes his head. I just wanted you to know not everyone is happy when the checks come in.

Tsakoli,

Over the years, the Oneida Tribe has created and amended establishing documents that set out a decisionmaking entity. The culmination of these efforts and the document used today is our Administrative Procedures Act (the APA). Early on, the APA identified the process and procedures for a person or entity to follow when filing a grievance. Although the main purpose was to address employment grievances, it soon became apparent that the Tribe needed to expand administrative review to include judicial review and decisionmaking authority. In 1991, an amendment to the APA was adopted that recognized the Appeals Oneida Commission as the Oneida Judicial System. The amendment also recognized the Appeals Commission's Civil Rules of Procedure and Rules of Appellate Procedure. Through specific laws added since that time, the Oneida Appeals Commission has further been delegated authority as the entity to hear and decide many other types of grievances and matters affecting the Tribe, Tribal entities, Tribal businesses and Tribal members.

Today, we find that the current system, although working, could and should be enhanced to better support our Tribal infrastructure. We expand must the Appeals Commission's jurisdictional authority so that we can include a greater range of civil matters. Improving our Tribal court system is necessary for a number of reasons. One reason is that both our land base and the tribal population have increased since the current system was implemented, and as the grows Tribe and changes, so should our capabilities to meet the needs of our people. Another reason to improve our system is because it is always important to assert selfgovernance - history has shown that failure to exercise tribal sovereign authority is likely to result in an erosion and often, an ultimate loss, of that sovereign authority. Perhaps the most important reason to improve and update our court system is because a Tribal court system is best-situated to recognize the needs of Tribal people and to protect the rights, traditions, and future of the Tribal community. In response to these reasons the proposed Oneida Judiciary law enhances and formally adopts several changes; allowing us to restructure the current system into a stronger Tribal court system, separating the trial and appellate divisions, establishing a foundation for the use of peacemaking, adding a small claims court, and otherwise fixing flaws that have emerged as we outgrow our current judicial system. I think we are ready for Tribal Court. Some members, however, а

that we are not, raising the following concerns. I want to address those concerns here because I feel that fact needs to be separated from fiction. In addition, I invite the membership to contact me with any other questions or issues they might have.

Concern: The Oneida Constitution does not allow for a Court.

Response: This is not true. The Oneida Tribe is a sovereign that retains the right to have its own courts and other decisionmaking bodies. We have never lost the ability and authority to resolve conflicts over matters within our jurisdiction - without involvement by state or federal authorities. The Tribe has concurrent jurisdiction with the Federal or State government in some matters, but Tribal jurisdiction over a matter is a unique authority and is completely unrelated to whether the State or Federal government may also happen to have jurisdiction.

Article IV, section 1(f) Tribal of our Constitution specifically provides that the GTC has authority "To promulgate and enforce ordinances" for, among other things "governing the conduct of members of the Oneida Tribe of where a judge probably would not be able to remain unbiased. There are several safeguards in place to protect the integrity of the system. Judges are required to recuse themselves to avoid any appearance of impropriety, and even if they do not do this, any party may ask a judge to recuse him or herself if there is worry that a judge will not be able to remain neutral in a case.

Also, the Judges will be required to adhere to a very rigid set of standards regarding ethical behavior and appropriate decisionmaking, memorialized in a Judicial Code of Ethics, in the Judiciary Act itself, and in other foundational documents - if a party feels there is unfairness, that party can file a complaint, and the Judge can face discipline for wrongdoing, ranging from a verbal rebuke to removal from office. The Business Committee and the Judiciary will have a vested interest in ensuring that this court succeeds - reasonable complaints will be taken very seriously. In the event that the required number of judges to hear a case have conflicts of interest or if they all have some interest in the outcome of a matter, the Tribe will continue its current policy of bringing in pro tem judges (judges from other divisions or other Tribal courts) to hear cases.

be responsible for interpreting and applying our Tribal laws, and for making decisions based on fairness and logic, custom and tradition. The US and state systems have evolved to the current status through (forgive the pun) trial and error, by interpreting the laws applicable in those jurisdictions, by changing laws that do not work and by following the precedent set earlier, overturning it where necessary. Here, the goal is to allow our own tribal system to evolve one that takes into account our ways, our traditions, our laws, and our goals, not those of another sovereign. We have the right to build our own system, to change the things that do not work, to make permanent the things that do. We must exercise this sovereign right.

Concern: Our constitution does not allow us to develop a threebranch government, with a judiciary, legislative, and executive branch.

Response: This is also not true. The General Tribal Council is our government, and our people can set up our government in any way the people feel is appropriate. There is nothing currently prohibiting a tripartite (three-branch) government, and elevating the current judicial branch in this manner would only serve to create more fairness through a stronger set of checks and balances.

A three-branch government would require considerable direction from the GTC, making it a good topic for discussion and consideration in the future.

According to Tsyunhehkwa, the following are some of the reasons to raise grass fed beef:

Wisconsin". It would be rather difficult to enforce ordinances if there were no way to determine whether someone was in violation of an ordinance, and without providing a way to interpret those ordinances to determine which of two parties should prevail in a dispute. These responsibilities are those of a court.

Further, Article IV, section 1(g) states that the GTC may "appoint committees, delegates, and officials deemed necessary for the proper conduct of tribal business and relations". It seems rather clear by this language that our constitution provides for Tribal business and relations to be handled internally, not by a state court or federal court. As such, these matters belong before a Tribal court.

Concern: There is too much risk of nepotism with judges who are Oneida Tribal members.

Response: The proposed judgeship would be elected by the Tribal membership, and, as in any system, it is important that voters select judges based on who they feel are the most honest and fair; the most competent decision makers. With that in Concern: Our Judges are not educated enough to be real judges.

Response: Some people want the judges to be of the utmost highest caliber with no criminal records of any kind, as well as extensive education in tribal law. Other comments indicate a preference to allow for all persons to have an opportunity to serve as a judge - in other words, if enough people want a person in office so much that they are willing to elect him, we shouldn't put arbitrary rules on education. All courts deal with this issue, including the US Supreme Court. Many Tribes require their judges to at least have some type of training in deliberations and decision writing. Others don't have many criteria for a judge. So this is truly up to the electorate.

One thing that may be important to note is that a legal education – i.e. a law degree – is probably not a necessary requirement. Our judges will Concern: The development of a new Tribal Court Building is too expensive, especially with the economy struggling as it is right now, and the current space could not handle the new Judiciary.

Response: It would be so nice to build a brandnew judicial building. Unfortunately, economic indicators suggest that this will have to be addressed at some future date. However, just because we are hesitant to expand our external structures does not mean we cannot expand our capabilities. A judicial building is not necessary to have a court - we had a Business Committee long before we had the Norbert Hill Center, for example. Our current judiciary is in a location where it has been for several years. We recognize that this space even as it is today - is not sufficient for our Commissioners and the current support staff, and for all the offices and hearing rooms, etc. The new Judiciary would not require more than what is currently needed, so it simply becomes a matter of whether the current sys-

Adoption of Tribal Marriage and Divorce laws

On Wednesday, April Oneida 28th, the Business Committee Oneida adopted the Marriage Law and the Oneida Divorce, Separation and Annulment Law. These laws mean the Tribe will be able to exercise its authority as a sovereign government by regulating the rights and responsibilities relating to marriage - issuing marriage licenses and handling divorces, legal separations, and annulments, and making determinations as to how property will be divided when a couple separates.

These laws will go into effect ten days after passage, meaning the Tribe may start issuing marriage licenses or accepting divorce, separation, annulment and affirmation actions starting on Wednesday, May 12, 2010.

The State of Wisconsin offers full faith and credit to tribal court documents, rulings and judgments, which means that the State would recognize Tribal marriage licenses and other judgments. If the Tribe has jurisdiction over parties, it may grant divorces, annulments, legal separations, maintenance or property division even if the marriage license was issued by the State of Wisconsin or another state. Similarly, the State of Wisconsin or another state may grant divorces, annulments, or separations even where the marriage license was issued by the Tribe. These laws do not require Tribal members to apply for and receive marriage licenses through the Tribe or to have their divorces, separations, or property division heard through the Tribe; these laws simply provide another option for Tribal members, and other Indians living on the Reservation, to get married or divorced. State courts may still be utilized, although the state courts may transfer an action to the Oneida Appeals Commission if it is determined that the action is more appropriate in this forum.

Jurisdiction

For the Tribe to issue a marriage license, both parties must either be an Oneida Tribal member or a member of a federally or state recognized Indian tribe, band or community. If one of the parties meets this requirement but the other one does not, the Tribe can still issue a marriage license if that party consents to the jurisdiction of the Tribe to issue the marriage license.

The Tribe will have jurisdiction to grant legal separations or divorces where the filing party was a resident of the Reservation for 60 days immediately before filing and is either a Tribal member or other Indian, or was married to a Tribal member, or was married to an Indian who is a resident of the Reservation.

For the tribe to have jurisdiction to affirm or annul a marriage (legal actions to declare a marriage is valid or void) the party filing the action must have been a resident of the Reservation for 30 days immediately before filing. Also, the party filing the action must either be a Tribal member or other Indian, or married to a Tribal member, or married to an Indian who is a resident of the Reservation.

The Tribe would also have jurisdiction over actions transferred by discretion of a court of competent jurisdiction. This will allow the Tribal court to hear cases that Wisconsin courts determine are best heard in the Tribal forum, in accordance with the Discretionary Transfer Rule, Wis. Stat. 801.54.

Marriage

The Tribe can issue marriage licenses to couples that are legally competent and of the opposite sex, where neither party is currently married to another person, or legally divorced for less than six months. The parties must not be closer in relationship than second cousins, although both the Tribal marriage law and Wisconsin law permit first cousins to marry if both parties are 55 years old or older. The parties must also both be 18; but 16- or 17-yearolds may marry if they are legally emancipated or if their parent/guardian consents.

To become married, the applicants for a marriage license must appear in person to complete a marriage license application. The applicants must marry within six to 30 days after the license is issued. If neither applicant resides on the Reservation, the marriage ceremony must be held on the Reservation, but if one or both of the applicants reside on the Reservation, the marriage ceremony can be held anywhere on the Reservation or in Brown or Outagamie County.

The following "officiating persons" will be authorized to conduct a marriage ceremony:

- a traditional tribal practitioner or spiritual or religious leader who is registered with the Commission as such.
- Oneida Appeals Commissioners
- tribal, federal and state judges and commissioners authorized by law to solemnize marriages
- The Tribal Chairperson or anyone designated by the Tribal Chairperson at the request of the persons being married
- any ordained clergyperson of any religious denomination, society or sect
- any person licensed by marry under Oneida law because the other jurisdiction would consider the marriage void; the Tribe will not recognize such a marriage.

Annulments

Where certain circumstances exist, the Appeals Commission will be able to annul a marriage. Annulment is a legal declaration that a marriage is void – that a legal marriage never occurred. The Appeals Commission can annul a marriage where:

- at the time of the marriage, either party lacked capacity to consent due to age, mental incapacity, drugs or alcohol, or fraud, duress or force.
- at the time of the marriage, either party was not old enough to marry, or did not have any necessary consent from parents or emancipation.
- If either party was physically unable or unwilling to consummate the marriage.
- If the marriage occurred between relatives closer than second cousins or between first cousins where at least one is under the age of 55.
- If, at the time of the marriage, either party was married to another person.

Separation and Divorce

The Commission may grant a legal separation – an order acknowledging that a couple is living separate lives - if requested by a party instead of divorce. Legal separations remain in effect indefinitely unless further action is taken.

Parties can also file petitions for both a legal separation and a divorce. In such a case, the Commission could grant parties a legal separation that would remain in effect until the divorce is granted, or until both parties request the separation be revoked. If the parties agree, the Commission may refer the parties to peacemaking or mediation. However, the Commission shall not refer the parties if attending will cause undue hardship or endanger the health or safety of a party. Commission The would grant divorces where the 120-day waiting period had passed; if it finds the marriage is irretrievably broken, and if any necessary provisions for custody and placement of children, child support, maintenance and property division have been made. Divorce judgments would be effective immediately upon being granted, and the parties could not remarry for 6 months.

enter property division maintenance and/or orders to the extent it has personal jurisdiction over the parties to issue the order.

May 13, 2010 • (Tsya ták) 7A

Before making a property division or maintenance order, the Commission would consider a list of several factors similar to those considered in Wisconsin courts, including the length of the marriage, ability of the party seeking maintenance to become self-supporting, the contribution of a spouse to the education, training or increased earning power of the other, and the existence of any written agreement between the parties, such as a Marital Property Agreement (i.e. a prenuptial or postnuptial agreement).

Generally, property owned by either of the spouses would be divided equally. However, certain types of property are not "marital property" or subject to property division, including:

- Property acquired by a party before the marriage – as long it was kept separate from marital property and the party has records to prove it belongs solely to that party.
- Property (or funds or funds acquired from such property) received by reason of the death of another or received by one party as a gift from someone other than the other partysuch as life insurance proceeds, payments made under an IRA, inheritances.
- Per capita payments from a tribal government and Individual Indian Money (IIM) payments.
- An Indian's individual trust land or land assignment.
- The Commission could alter the presump-

The Tribe will maintain a marriage license docket, and will enter a complete record of all marriage applications and marriage licenses issued.

The Commission may "even" the distribution of marital property by requiring one party to compensate the other, such as for a share of marital property that went into the other party's individual trust land or land assignment.

OUR GAME

Gaming General Manager

Louise Cornelius

By Dawn Walschinski Kalihwisaks

Louise Cornelius has traveled a long journey from a bingo supervisor in 1985 to being Oneida's Gaming General Manager.

"I have 23 years of being in gaming management, that's including the regulatory (Oneida Gaming Commission). I've been involved in gaming the majority of my adult career," she said.

Cornelius was Oneida's gaming manager from 1991 to 1999 where she oversaw the expansion of the casino facilities. Later, she served on the Oneida Gaming Commission (OGC) as chairwoman from 2002 to 2005. She went on to work as the executive director for the OGC until she was asked to fill the shoes of outgoing Gaming General Manger Neil Cornelius in 2009.

"My predecessor before me instilled the strategy process in terms of focusing on developing initiatives to carry out the strategies that need to be done," she said.

One strategy was to create a list of values to commit to: being trustworthy, honest, genuine and having respect for fellow employees.

"That goes hand and hand with being successful," she said.

Cornelius has also made a commitment to getting her bachelors degree in business management from Concordia University this year.

"I'm looking forward to concluding my education," she said.

Cornelius believes excellent employees are at the core of success for the Oneida Casino.

"Without our employees offering to our customers the best service, we have nothing," she said. "I also believe that we have a very solid team here. Their commitment and dedication to the Oneida Casino is outstanding."

Cornelius is working having Oneida on Gaming retake the lead it enjoyed in the 1990's.

"The ultimate goal is I hope we can develop a master plan and be number one in the state of Wisconsin again," she said.

Cornelius has had opportunities to work in other places, but chooses to stay in Oneida.

"My heart is for the people, and it has always been for the Oneida Nation," she said. "When you're here working for your own people, you're a stakeholder, you have something at heart here."

"I'm glad I've had this opportunity, I'm glad that the Oneida Nation has considered all my years of experience and knowledge and expertise to be in this capacity to do the best that I can.'

Hssistant Gaming Manager - Profits

By Dawn Walschinski Kalihwisaks

Eric McLester went from working in Oneida Social Services to gaming and never looked back.

"I thought it was an exciting change from what I had been doing in social services," he said. McLester has worked for Oneida Gaming for the past 14 years.

Currently the Assistant Gaming Manger of Profits for Oneida Casino and Bingo, McLester started in gaming by serving a three year term on the Oneida Gaming Commission and then Assistant became Director of Employee Services at the casino.

"I liked the environment, I liked the challenges in gaming, there's always something happening," he said.

McLester enjoys working with the gaming directors to drive gaming revenue.

"I've got a great staff," he said. "They're just very creative, very motivated, very knowledgeable group ... they're just fun to work with.'

McLester has a Bachelors degree in Human Development from the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay and a Masters degree in Management and Organizational Behavior from Silver Lake College. He's is impressed with the wide range of jobs available for both the gaming and non-gaming sides of Oneida.

"Prior to gaming, we were pretty limited in the number of employees we had and the opportunities that were out there," he said. "Throughout the rest of the tribe, all different types of jobs are available that just weren't available before, so people can make a career with the tribe in whatever chosen path. There's a lot of opportunities here to apply those skills somewhere in the tribe."

McLester believes that bingo and casino employees don't get the recognition they deserve for their hard work.

"The job that we ask of our front line employees is very demanding, and we just don't give them enough credit for the work that they do," he said. "We try to do the best we can to recognize our employees, but I don't think there's appreciation throughout the rest of the tribe of how difficult the jobs are over here."

However, McLester says that turnover is down from 10 years ago.

"Those people that like this type of environment have stuck around became good employees. Those that find out this isn't the right fit for them have moved on, so we ended up with a lot of good employees over time," he explained.

McLester says he has no plans to turn over his position.

"I like living here in Oneida, and I've been here working for the tribe for 20 years. This is home for me," he said

Mailbox Improvement Week Arrives in Time for Spring Cleaning

ONEIDA, WI – The U.S. Postal Service® is asking all Oneida homeowners to inspect and repair their mailboxes during Mailbox Improvement Week, May 16-22, says Postmaster Koenig. Cheryl "Repairing suburban and rural mailboxes improves the appearance of our community and makes delivering and receiving mail safer for our carriers and customers," Koenig says. The Postal Service makes this annual request because of the wear and tear that occurs to mailboxes every year. "This especially is after important the effects of last winter," she adds. Some of the typical activities that may need to be done include:

• Remounting a mailbox post if loosened.

• Replacing or adding house numbers.

"If a homeowner plans to install a new mailbox or replace a worn one, he or she must use only Postal Service-approved traditional, contemporary or locking full/limited service mailboxes," said Koenig. "Customers should be careful when purchasing curbside mail receptacles because the use of unapproved boxes is prohibited. Customers may use a custom-built mailbox, but they must consult with my office to ensure it conforms to guidelines applying to flag, size, strength, and quality of construction." For more information on the use of names or numbers on mailboxes, or answers to any other questions, contact Postmaster Cheryl Koenig at 920/869-3710.

Adventures Sylvania Wilderness Awaits You!

Come join Oneida Adventures on a men's weekend canoe/fishing trip to the Sylvania Wilderness and Recreation Area located just North of Eagle River in the Upper Peninsula of Michigan. Sylvania was added to the National Wilderness Preservation System (NWPS) in 1987 by the Michigan Wilderness Act. This beautiful wilderness area is a smaller version of the Boundary Water Canoe Area in Northern Minnesota.

A short paddle across Clark Lake will bring us to Cedar camp site our home for the weekend. After setting up camp, you will have a chance to fish, hike, or just relax around the fire. The following morning, plan on fishing a couple of my favorite spots for Smallmouth Bass where the fishing has been great in the past. Fishing in Sylvania can be excellent at this time of year, but the wilderness canoeing experience seems to always be the favorite part. Visiting Sylvania gives you a rare opportunity to step back in time and see what it is like to walk under old growth virgin forests, along the shores of pristine waters.

Cost of trip: includes free rental of: Canoe, Paddle, PFD, Tent, Sleeping Bag, Guide, Campsite and Meals. Transportation is on your own. Men only trip! Cost: $150 for Non Fitness/Tribal Members—$70—Deposit $80 for Fitness Center/Tribal Members—$40—Deposit Dates: June 11th-June 13th 2010 Fishing License Purchased on your own when we arrive Contact: Kip Miller: 920-460-3810 or kmiller@oneidanation.org

I hope that this information has alleviated the greater concerns that have been shared with my office. You will be seeing more information as we move forward in the process of improving our current judiciary. The goal of the Committee is to introduce the improved Judiciary law to the Membership in July and to schedule a special GTC meeting in late fall for final adoption. This plan includes a transition period from our current structure and procedures to an enhanced structure with revised procedures.

As always, I invite any questions, concerns or comments from the membership. I would also like to thank those who have shared their views and wisdom with the LOC during the development of the Judiciary law. We are working to build a foundation to serve the seventh generation, and we cannot do it without hearing the voices of the people we serve.

Indian Cigarettes NY court nixes Indian cigarette sales tax cases

By Michael Virtanen Associated Press Writer

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) ~ New York's top court on Tuesday rejected prosecutors' cases against two Indian-owned convenience stores in central New York for selling taxfree cigarettes.

The Court of Appeals, divided 4-3, said the stores acquired by the Cayuga Indian Nation in 2003 qualify as reservation lands under state tax law and can sell the cigarettes to tribe members free of tax.

While sales to non-Indians should be taxed at $2.75 per pack, the court majority said that proposed state regulations aren't yet in effect and defending against county enforcement efforts is too burdensome on the Indians.

"The issue in this case is not whether sales taxes are due when non-Indian consumers purchase cigarettes from Indian retailers - they are," Judge Victoria Graffeo wrote. "The issue is whether Indian retailers can be criminally prosecuted for failing to collect the sales taxes from consumers and forward them to the (Tax) Department."

Graffeo, Chief Judge Jonathan Lippman and Judges Carmen Beauchamp Ciparick and Theodore Jones Jr. agreed that prosecutors cannot do that. Authorities in 2008 seized 176,000 cartons of cigarettes without tax stamps from the two stores in Seneca and Cayuga counties. Indictments were handed up but never unsealed. The Cayugas sued.

The court's ruling Tuesday ends those possible criminal cases, attorneys said.

In a dissent, Judge

Eugene Pigott Jr. wrote that it's "undisputed" that most of the cigarettes should be taxed, and the lack of regulations doesn't change the Indians' obligation to collect that money from non-Indian consumers. Judges Susan Read and Robert Smith agreed with Pigott.

Daniel French, an attorney for the Cayugas, said they've always been willing to negotiate these issues with the counties. "Now there's a half-million dollars of spoiled product and the Cayuga Nation fully intends to litigate for those expenses," he said of the seized cigarettes.

The U.S. Supreme Court has yet to determine if parcels of aboriginal lands like these two, later reacquired by Indians, actually constitute reservation property under federal law, Graffeo noted. The Court of Appeals is ruling only that the two stores have "qualified reservation" status for tax purposes, and the tribe does not argue it can exert full sovereign authority, she wrote.

The state court agreed that cigarette taxes are owed, and only ruled that they cannot be collected without state regulations in place, said attorney Philip Spellane, who represents the counties. "In essence, it's a very narrow holding saying these two prosecutions cannot go forward," he said.

The New York Department of Taxation and Finance is reviewing public comments on its proposed regulations, spokesman Brad Maione said. The comment period ended April 26.

Oneida Recreation would like to thank the Nation Oneida Art Program for the traditional dress making grant. We had 12 girls complete a traditional dress to showcase at the Honor the Youth Powwow 2010. We would also like to say thank you to Amelia Cornelius and her daughters for teaching the The classes. girl's learned basic sewing techniques, how to lay out patterns, and beading on their skirts and leggings. Over the 12 week session the girls were responsible to measure the amount of fabric needed to make their dresses, and to go to the store to shop for the fabric. They cut the fabric for the dresses with patterns. The youth started their sewing with the leggings and skirts. After completing the rest of the sewing, they put elastic in the leggings and skirts. They also decorated the outfits with ribbon on the yoke and back of the dress. The girls learned to do bead work on the leggings and on their skirts. They finished the project by learning to make the moccasins. The project was a success!

Youth selected to attend Milwaukee Buck's Game, expresses appreciation

By Mark W. Powless

Wednesday, On February 10, Southeastern Oneida Tribal Services hosted a teen event that focused on crime and violence in our community. The event was facilitated by Paulina de Haan, the Community Coordinator for Milwaukee's Safe Streets Initiative. Twentytwo Native youth attended the special event and shared their thoughts and experiences while the group sat in a talking circle.

The event was also graciously sponsored by the Milwaukee Bucks. As an incentive for participation, one of the lucky youth was randomly selected to receive a certificate for an autographed Buck's basketball and four tickets to a game. The winner of the certificate was Tribal member Yaluhyatikha (Bea) Ackley. Here is a letter that was submitted by

Bea:

I won four Bucks tickets and an autographed basketball from the SEOTS office for attending the "Working Together to Reduce Crime and Violence" event. I also got to watch the Bucks warm up before the game and get pictures and autographs after the warm up which was really cool.

The game was really exciting and it was the

By the Statistics Office

This is the next in the series of articles reporting on the Quality of Life Survey, a survey that gathers data on various social, cultural, health, economic, educational, governmental and other issues. The key finding discussed this month is: For the most part, Oneida members Tribal are somewhat satisfied with their government and how some of the issues are being addressed but there are areas survey respondents feel the government can do better.

Tribal members from all over the U.S. participated in this survey, although, an emphasis was placed on members living on the Reservation.

Respondents were asked several questions regarding the government. Below is a table of the questions with the corresponding responses. Please keep in mind the N/A responses when interpreting results. Off Reservation respondents had a higher percentage of N/A responses for all questions.

There was a majority agreement by respondents when asked about trusting Oneida community leaders to do what is best for Oneida, if they have an impact on decisions made by community leaders in Oneida, if they receive enough information to make good decisions at General Tribal Council meetings, and if it is important to attend GTC meetings. Respondents had the greatest amount of agreement when it came to the importance of attending GTC meetings at 89%.

It is noteworthy to also look at the level of disagreement from respondents, especially regarding trust in leaders, decisions impacting made by leaders, and the government being open and honest. These three issues received higher levels of disagreement than the other issues and had a small majority of agreement.

49% of respondents agreed they were aware of Tsi?niyukwalihó·tA, but there were also a signumber of nificant respondents in disagreement and who chose It should be N/A. assumed that those who chose N/A do not agree that they are aware of Tsi⁹niyukwalihó·tA, since Tsi?niyukwalihó·tA means "our ways" which includes our beliefs, our customs, and how we view things (past, present, and future). It also includes our history, language, and things in our environment (man-made and natural) that make us distinct from others as a people.

If you have any questions/concerns about the 2008 Quality of Life survey, please contact the Statistics Office at (920) 869-4564 or via e-mail at

So, following our dreams, we are going to visiting be the Governor's mansion in Madison, Wednesday, May 12, 2010.

As fourth graders we have been involved with a program this year called, "Read On Wisconsin." Mrs. Jessica Doyle, our First Lady of Wisconsin, gives us the name of a book to read month. each Mrs. Reckelberg has read the books to us each month and we have gone on line to answer questions that Mrs. Doyle posts on the "Read On Wisconsin" site. We get to choose one of the questions and respond to Mrs. Doyle. We also get to tell her whether we liked or disliked the book of the month. We all agree that almost all the books were really great this year!

If you would like to read some of our comments please go to the "Read On Wisconsin" site and read our blogs. We really appreciate our chance to meet the Governor's wife and let her read to us. Following her reading we will also be able to tour the mansion with Mrs. Doyle. Before we head back to school we will have time to visit the capitol building.

PUBLIC NOTICE OF DRAFT NPDES PERMITS TO DISCHARGE INTO WATERS OF THE UNITED STATES

U.S. Environmental Protection Agency Region 5, NPDES Programs Branch - WN-16J 77 West Jackson Boulevard Chicago, Illinois 60604 (312) 886-0981 Public Notice No.: 10-04-01-A

Public Notice Issued On: April 28, 2010 Comment period ends: May 28, 2010 Background

The United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) published Phase I of the national stormwater regulations in 1990 and required medium and large municipal separate storm sewer systems (MS4s) to apply for a National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System (NPDES) permit for their stormwater discharges (Federal Register/Vol. 55, No. 222, 11/16/1990, pg.47990). In 1999, EPA published Phase II of the national stormwater regulations. Operators of regulated small MS4 were required to apply for permit coverage by March 2003 (Federal Register/Vol. 64, No. 235, 12/8/1999, pg.68722). The NPDES permits issued to Phase II MS4s require small MS4s to develop and implement a Storm Water Management Program (SWMP) which addresses the following six (6) minimum control measures described in the rule:

- Public Education and Outreach
- Public Participation and Involvement
- Illicit Discharge Detection and Elimination
- Construction Site Erosion and Sediment Control
- Post-Construction Erosion and Sediment Control
- Pollution Prevention/Good Housekeeping

For each of the minimum control measures, the MS4 operator must develop and implement best management practices (BMPs) to reduce pollutants in discharges to the maximum extent practicable, establish measurable goals for each BMP and assign a responsible person to ensure the BMPs and measurable goals are met.

EPA is the NPDES permit issuing authority in Indian country. The permits described below will be issued by the Region 5 Office.

DESCRIPTION OF APPLICANT'S FACILITY AND DISCHARGE

The above-named applicant has applied for a National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System (NPDES) Permit to discharge storm water from its Municipal Separate Storm Sewer System (MS4) to waters of the US. Compliance with Endangered Species Act and National Historic Preservation Act

Section 7 of the Endangered Species Act requires Federal agencies to insure that any action authorized, funded or carried out by them is not likely to jeopardize the continued existence of listed species or modify their critical habitat. The USFWS concurred with EPA's determination that issuance of these permits will not affect threatened or endangered species

Section 106 of the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) requires that Federal agencies having direct or indirect jurisdiction over a proposed Federal or federally assisted undertaking or independent agency having authority to license any undertaking shall take into account the effect of the undertaking on any district, site, building, structure, or object that is included in or eligible for inclusion in the National Register of Historic Places Federal agencies shall afford the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation established under Title II of NHPA a reasonable opportunity to comment with regard to such undertaking. The Oneida Tribal Historic Preservation Office concurred with EPA's findings that issuance of these permits will have no impact on historical or cultural sites within the project area.

TENTATIVE DETERMINATION

On the basis of preliminary staff review and applications of applicable standards and regulations, the Acting Regional Administrator of EPA, Region 5 proposes to issue permits for the discharges of storm water from the municipal separate sewer systems located within the Green Bay urbanized area and the Oneida Reservation of following permittees to the waters of the United States: Brown County, the City of Green Bay, Village of Hobart and the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin

COMMENT PROCEDURES and PUBLIC HEARING

The determination to issue the NPDES permits is tentative. EPA's comment and public hearing procedures may be found at 40 CFR 124.10, 124.11, 124.12, and 124.13. The following is a summary of those procedures

Powless trains for 13.1

By Dawn Walschinski Kalihwisaks

John Powless III is running in the Cellcom Green Bay Half-Marathon on Sunday, May 16 for people in his family that can't run.

"I have a nephew who has cerebral palsy who's had numerous surgeries to try and correct the problems he has with this spine," he said.

Powless was encouraged to become more serious about running by his father Dr. John Powless Sr.

"He was telling me you got to be thankful and not take this for granted, because one day you might not be able to get up and go running," he said.

Powless started training for the 13.1 mile race in January braving Wisconsin's winter weather.

"You've got to bundle up. The whole treadmill thing is fine, but I'd rather be moving and seeing things even said. Powless is undeterred. He hopes to organize informal community runs to get families and children physically active.

"More important is the chance to get out and mingle with people and visit, socialize and then do something healthy," he said.

though it's pretty white out," he said.

Powless enjoys the physical and mental benefits from his training.

"I can do things, whatever the task is, throughout the day. I can do it for longer periods of time," he said. "I feel light, and as a result of that, I feel good, I feel like, hey, I'm going to go running."

It's been an activity that he's been able to share with his sister Jennifer Benally in Albuquerque, New Mexico.

"If I say I'm going to run Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday this week, she texts me at the end of the day and will be like, ok, how many miles did you do?" said Powless.

However, he's had less luck with his area relatives.

"I ask people to run all the time, and they look at me like I'm crazy," he Powless enjoys reading articles on running and nutrition.

"Hearing other people stories about running, that's inspiring to me, to hear other people and what they're going through and how it helps them. Running serves many different purposes for many different people," he said.

Powless recommends that first time runners set small goals at first and build on their successes.

"You don't have to have state of the art shoes, and you don't have to have state of the art equipment," he said. "Just get out and go."

Ultimately, his goal is to do a full marathon.

"You got to start somewhere and you just grow on that," said Powless.

ONHS Rocket Teams take lakefront

By Thunderhawk Times Staff

Ka-Boom! According the Sheboygan to Chamber of Commerce, that city's lakefront was said to be a "beehive of rocketry and aerospace technology" this past Friday, May 7.

Some 400 students from several states joined with various space agencies and government and military personnel to launch rockets built by teams of students.

The most fun I've ever had

By Brandon White

Thunderhawk Times The greatest place I went to was also the place where I had the most fun I've ever had.

It was an Indoor Paintball arena down the road from where I live for my friend's birthday party.

When Jade and I got out of the car it looked very small from the outside, like a generic little shed, but I was wrong. When I walked in, it was loud and huge! I could only smell the fumes of paint and hear the sound of rock music, people yelling, and the sounds of shots fired.

When my friend came out he asked, "Do you both want play? looked at him pretty nervous at first; it's something I had never done in my life. Then I said, "Okay." I wore two shirts with my football jersey over everything; I thought I wanted to look cool if I play. I choose my own mask; it had paint on the sides of the mouth, so it looked pretty cool.

for awhile, my heart was racing, I knew in a few moments I would be in live fire for a sport I had never played. I knew it would be nothing like when I was kid, shooting paintballs at trees pretending they were bad guys.

My friend got everything else ready and then said, "Well let's go then."

I took a breath, and walked with everyone inside the nets and into the arena.

I looked around for awhile looking at all the inflatables we could hide behind and all the broken paintballs on the ground. The teams were divided into 4 vs. 3; the high schools team vs. Average Joes. When we lined up at our post, I couldn't shake the edge off, I was so afraid I was going to freeze up when we start, so I took a deep breath as the ref asked, are you ready? GO! I shot in front of me as I sprinted for cover. When I stopped, all I could hear was yelling, shooting, paintballs smacking against the inflatable I was hiding behind, and my breathing.

I slowly looked around and saw Brad shooting towards Jade, so I pointed my gun and shot back a couple times, someone else shot in my direction so I got back down. I knew right there and then, I was right where I always wanted to be! I had a smile on my face for the rest of the round.

I put my hand on the ground and felt the smashed, mushy paintballs. Every round I got better and better, I was sliding to my positions, holding the gun right and watching my targets while I moved.

We won a couple, and I got hurt a couple times, but I always came back

Severe weather season is here

By Jordan Bain Thunderhawk Times

Along with spring come many things: baseball, flowers, leaves back on the trees, and... severe weather.

In Wisconsin, an average of 21 tornadoes touch the ground a year. In 2005, there were 62 reported tornadoes that touched down. The amazing thing is that 27 of them landed on Aug. 18. Imagine that all happening in one day.

Those numbers can be scary. It's why schools have severe weather plans in place. Wisconsin set aside the week of April 19 - 23 as Severe Weather Awareness Week and on Thursday, April 22, ONHS had a tornado drill. So did other area schools. Many students thought it was lame. I, myself, thought the same thing. But then I stopped to think about it, and realized it was for our safety. If a tornado really did touch down near the school, we would now know what to do. That's why we have the drill. An announcement was made and all high school students and staff reported to the hallway in the basement of the Norbert Hill Center as did others who work in the building. We stayed there until an "All Clear" announcement was made.

But it's not just schools that should be prepared. Everybody should always be ready.

So here's what you do: Go to the lowest level of your house (preferably a basement), and stay clear of all windows and doors. You do not need to be in the fetal position, but you should sit on the ground. If you only have a single-floor house, then go into the hallway and lean a mattress against the wall. Then place yourself underneath the mattress.

NAJA Project Phoenix

By Mason Powless Thunderhawk Times

There is a lot of news that goes around and sometimes we want to know how people get such info and how they are put it into the paper to send around the world.

The Native American Journalism Association is one way to get that done and NAJA's Project Phoenix is coming up this summer.

Each year more than twelve students get together in one city to help each other out with some news and give out their opinions and experience on how the newspaper industry works.

It has been active in more than 25 years.

Two ONHS journalism students, Salene LaRock and Mary Powless have completed the application process and are waiting to hear about whether or not they will be attending the workshop.

Students were required to complete an application, send samples of their writing, and put together a 500-word essay on why they want to attend.

Salene said, "Of all my goals in life, I am putting journalism at the top. I love to entertain people with my writing and I am interested in really today's media-oriented society." Mary said, "When you're a journalist, you have to have social skills to interview people. Project Phoenix would a perfect chance to work on those social skills by getting to know other people and getting the confidence to actually go talk to others."

I got my gun and loaded up. As I sat there for more.

In the end we all sat down at the couches there and had some soda and pizza.

After all of that adrenaline rush, a Mountain Dew felt so soothing and refreshing.

As Jade and I went back home, we couldn't stop talking about it. From that day on paintball was now my new favorite sport.

I hope that you will be safe during this severe weather season.

The moving rocks phenomenon

By Kalene Beechtree

Thunderhawk Times

Have you ever seen a rock move?

I haven't either, but in a place called "Death Valley" there is a place in which all the rocks on that surface move.

The rocks can be as heavy as 500 pounds to the size of a marble. Each one of the rocks on this place also leaves a oneinch deep trail behind it. Some of these trails can go on for tens of feet to hundreds of feet.

There is no human or animal contact to these rocks to explain why they are moving!

Their movement is unknown and to what causes it. Scientist studying this phenomenon are baffled and don't know how and what could be causing it. But, as of now one theory is that gravity is moving the rocks in a way.

you can see all the trails of the moving rocks.

Many people put down Oneida Nation High School for lacking something.

I, Jordan Thundercloud Bain, hereby categorize that as False.

I have recently transferred to Oneida from the West De Pere School District. For nine-and-onehalf years I thought, "West is best!"

Now my transfer has made me realize that you don't know what you're missing until you experience it.

In my opinion, Oneida High School is a better school. The learning environment is very fit for Native American students.

I have heard before that different races means different learning styles. I did not realize this was true until I transferred. I used to have the same attitude towards this school, but please realize that it is not true.

Childhood Obesity Task Force Unveils Action Plan:

Solving the Problem of Childhood Obesity Within a Generation

WASHINGTON, D.C. -Today, First Lady Michelle Obama joined Domestic Policy Council Director Melody Barnes and members of the Childhood Obesity Task Force to unveil the Task action plan: Force Solving the Problem of Childhood Obesity Within a Generation. In conjunction with the release of the action plan, Cabinet Members and Administration Officials will hold events across the country to highlight the importance of addressing childhood obesity.

"For the first time, the nation will have goals, benchmarks, and measureable outcomes that will help us tackle the childhood obesity epidemic one child, one family, and one community at a time," Mrs. Obama said. "We want marshal every to resource - public and private sector, mayors and governors, parents and educators, business owners and health care providers, coaches and athletes - to ensure that we are providing each and every child the happy, healthy future they deserve." In February, Mrs. Obama launched the Let's Move! campaign to solve the childhood obesity epidemic within a generation. As part of this effort, President Barack Obama established the Task Force on Childhood Obesity to develop and implement an interagency plan that details a coordinated strategy, identifies key benchmarks, and outlines an action plan to solve the problem of childhood obesity within a generation.

The action plan defines solving the problem of childhood obesity in a generation as returning to a childhood obesity rate of just 5 percent by 2030, which was the rate before childhood obesity first began to rise in the late 1970s. In total, the report presents a series of 70 specific recommendations, many of which can be implemented right Summarizing away. broadly, them they include:

- Getting children a healthy start on life, with good prenatal care for their parents; support for breastfeeding; adherence to limits on "screen time"; and quality child care settings with nutritious food and ample opportunity for young children to be physically active.
- Empowering parents and caregivers with simpler, more actionable messages about choices nutritional based on the latest

Dietary Guidelines for Americans; improved labels on food and menus that provide clear information to help parents make healthy choices for children; reduced marketing of unhealthy products to children; and improved health care services, including BMI measurement for all children.

- Providing healthy food in schools, through improvements in federally-supported school lunches and breakfasts; upgrading the nutritional quality of other foods sold in schools; and improving nutrition education and the overall health of the school environment.
- Improving access to healthy, affordable food, by eliminating "food deserts" in urban and rural America; lowering the relative prices of healthier foods; developing or reformulating food products to be healthier; and reducing the incidence of hunger, which has been linked to obesity.

• Getting children more physically active, through quality physical education, recess, and other opportunities in and after school; addressing aspects of the "built environment" that make it difficult for children to walk or bike safely in their communities; and improving access to safe parks, playgrounds, and indoor and outdoor recreational facilities. Like the Let's Move! initiative, the Task Force report recognizes that government alone cannot solve this challenge. Achieving the goal will require strong partnerships with the private sector. The First Lady will work with groups such as the Partnership for a Healthier America, a new foundation that will draw upon the experience of honorary vice chairs former Senator Bill Frist and Mayor

Cory Booker, to cement private sector commitments towards the shared goal of reducing childhood obesity, including but not limited to the action steps in the report.

Additionally, Federal agencies will be moving quickly to implement the recommendations in the report that require federal action.

In the coming weeks, Cabinet members and Administration officials will hold events that highlight the ways in which each respective agency can do its part to address the childhood obesity epidemic. For more details, please contact cabinet agencies directly hen they say it takes a village raise a to child, well, it takes a great team to make great Michelle animation. Danforth, Multi-Media Specialist, Stephanie Stevens, Graphic Artist and Charlie Doxtater, Language Assistant worked hard to roll out Oneida the latest Language Animation. Charlie the talking Bear is back with a new friend, Ernest his little wolf buddy. Basic Colors is now posted on You Tube under a general search of Oneida Language.

"This is a huge step for our Nation as a whole." said Danforth. "We can use new technology and fun techniques to get our kids and adults learning language. I personally know I will never become a fluent speaker, but I do know a little of our language and for me it is very rewarding and instills a sense of pride about what being Oneida should be."

Michelle Danforth created the animation, and edited the piece together which was no easy task. The project in whole took over three weeks to complete. Stephanie Stevens created the little wolf and flower pictures and also recorded her son saying the colors in Oneida. The character voices were created by Charlie Doxtater and Ernest Stevens IV.

Cultural Heritage's hopes to have a series of animated characters to help teach basic language through the internet. There are also possibilities of using puppets to create short Oneida story clips for the web. The museum will have the first 3 language animations available on DVD for $5 if you want a copy for your home or to send to a friend who doesn't have the internet. All these creations and more will be available with teaching modules, animated games, flash cards and more for the big reveal of the NEW Oneida Nation Language website in September 2010.

Seed Ceremony set for May 14th

On an annual basis, in May, the Oneida Long House fulfills its responsibility of the Seed Ceremony. The timing of this ceremony happens a few days after the New Moon. The reasons for this are the planting cycle for crops that grow above the ground would be planted with in about 10 days from that ceremony. Then when it is the Full Moon, the root crops would be planted. Seed Ceremony is significant because it has everything to do with a person's frame of mind prior to planting. The frame of mind is critical because we are renewing our honor, respect and love for the crops that sustain us through the winter. If the crops failed then the people would starve during the winter.

Why Buy Local? By the OCIFS label local food in the

What does food and a food system mean to us the community members? Food comes to most of us now through a global food system which is destructive of both natural and social communities. In this unstable, post-modern world, our food can be one vehicle through which we reassemble our fragmented identities and reestablish community not only to a place but to each other. We find this vision of people living well and responsibly with each other and with the land on which they are placed to be deeply appealing.

Coordinator

Local businesses and farms produce more income, jobs, and tax receipts for local communities than big box stores do. Local businesses and farms are more likely to utilize local ads, banks and other services. Local businesses donate more money to nonprofits and are more accountable to their local communities. Supporting local businesses preserves the economic diversity of our communities and the unique character of our neighborhoods. Supporting local businesses and farmers is good for the environment, because it cuts down on fuel consumption. The average American consumes 1 gallon of fuel a day just by the act of eating. Buying locally produced goods reduces the need to ship goods from thousands of miles away and also cuts down on the distance shoppers travel. Vine ripen - not truck ripen. Many of our foods are picked when they are not yet ripe and then ripen in the truck on the way here, or worse yet sprayed to look like they are ripe when they get here. By now you are asking, 'But what can I label local food in the produce aisle. (2) Shop at your local farmers' market. (3) Become a member of a community – supported agriculture farm. CSAs are a great way to support a farmer directly and get great local produce, meats, and more.

- Vote with your dollars. Know where your food comes from. READ LABELS. The average meal travels 1500 miles from the farm to your dinner plate.
- Meatless Mondays Go without meat one day a week. An estimated 70% of all antibiotics used in the United States are given to farm animals.
- Buy organic or sustainable food with little or no pesticides.

According to the EPA, over 1 billion pounds of pesticides are used each year in the U.S.

- Eat at home instead of eating out. Children consume almost twice (1.8 times) as many calories when eating food prepared outside the home.
- Stop drinking sodas and other sweetened beverages. You can lose 25lbs in a year by replacing one 20oz soda a day with a no calorie beverage.
