Ground broken on new Oneida Market and One Stop

By Dawn Walschinski

Kalihiwisa

Oneida Retail Enterprise hosted a ground breaking Friday, May 11 for its new venture the Oneida Market and One Stop which will be built on the corner of Packerland Road and Larsen Road. Members of the Oneida Business Committee and Green Bay Mayor Jim Schmitt pitched into turn the sandy soil for the new store. Retail Operations Director Jack Denny stated the building will house an Oneida One Stop store and will be the new home for the Tsyunhehkwa store, to be renamed the Oneida Market.

"The market will be a place where the consumers can buy the Oneida tribally produced products," said Denny.

The One Stop side will sell fuel, convenience store items, and tobacco products.

The Oneida Market will sell bison and beef from the Oneida Farm as well as products from the Tsyunhehkwa Farm such as white corn and canned goods. The Tsyunhehkwa Retail Store has been undergoing restructuring in hopes to make it profitable. Denny stated the move from the Ridgeview Plaza at 3759 West Mason to the new corner location will make it more accessible.

"Basically, trying to increase the target mark, because (Tsyunhehkwa) is kind of stifled where it is. There's just a lot more traffic counts, a lot more people in this area," he said.

Partying leads to teen stabbing in Site I

By Nate Wisneski

Kalihiwisa

A 16 year-old female is in custody after allegedly stabbing an 18 year-old female with a kitchen knife after a night of partying lead to a heated argument Tuesday morning.

Just before 6:00 a.m. the Oneida Police Department (OPD) responded to a home on Commissioner Street in Site I for a possible stabbing. According to OPD, eight adults ranging from 18 – 30 and four juveniles ranging from 10 – 17 were involved with no parents being present for the juveniles.

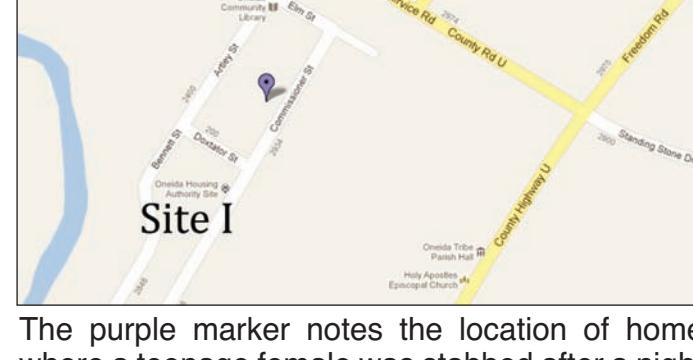

"With any party that's going on at 6 o'clock in the morning there is bound to be some alcohol involved and folks just don't get along at that time in the morning after they have been drinking all night," said OPD Chief Rich Van Boxtel.

Police are recommending charges including felony recklessly endangering safety and misdemeanor disorderly conduct.

This is the second incident within the last two weeks in Site I. Last week a lengthy standoff was resolved peacefully just feet away from where the stabbing took place. The location of the incidents has caught the attention of OPD.

"Where these things are happening, there's two buildings that are provided for our youth, where our kids are playing and it's absolutely a concern," Said

The purple marker notes the location of home where a teenage female was stabbed after a night of partying.

Van Boxtel. "We will be taking some steps to ensure our kids are safe in our buildings."

An increase in neighborhood watch programs along with increased police presence in the community is planned.

The victim underwent surgery Tuesday for stab wounds on her right side. She is expected to make a full recovery.

OPD is still investigating the incident and has not ruled out more charges for others involved.

OPD canine officers receive protective vests

Area donor and Vest-A-Dog program make vests possible

By Travis Cottrell

Kalihwisaks

Dogs have been a prevalent force for nearly all law enforcement agencies across the country. What most people don't know is that nearly all of these canines work without the benefits of protective vests.

Within the state of Wisconsin there are over 250 canine officers, two of which call the Oneida Police Department home. Bo and Kano are the two canines that patrol the Oneida Reservation.

Thanks to a generous donation from Erica Alderson through the Wisconsin Vest-A-Dog program Bo and Kano are now equipped with bullet and stab proof vests.

"Every year we pick a different charity to work with and they are almost always animal related," said Alderson. "I had enough money to supply five dogs with vests and I picked the two here partly because when they do concerts at the casino I work with the company that does sound and lights so I do spend some time in this area and I wanted to pick the ones close to home."

The Wisconsin Vest-A-Dog program is a non-profit, tax-deductible organization that was started in 2005 to supply every canine officer in Wisconsin with a protective vest. One hundred percent of all donations made to the program go towards the purchase and shipping of these vests.

"I became involved in this program after the incident in Fond du Lac where the officers and the one dog were shot. I guess it never occurred to me that dogs would need a vest and I was also surprised that almost all law enforcement agencies weren't able to provide them because of the cost," said Alderson.

The cost per protective vest is $840. The cost in most cases is multiplied because law enforcement agencies will have more than one canine they need to supply vest for.

Considering the costs and efforts that go into housing and caring for canine officers makes the protective vests a worthwhile investment.

"The thing I really liked about the Vest-a-Dog program is that, according to them more dogs are injured from stabbing than shooting because they are so close, and these vests are stab proof as well as bullet proof," Alderson added.

The Oneida Police Department is certainly appreciative of the donation they have received.

Oneida Assistant Police Chief Eric Boulanger said of the donation, "A lot of the times depending on the nature of the call, when we don't want to go in we'll send the dogs in.

When they go in unprotected they can be harmed easily. So we're very grateful to be receiving these vests. Makes us feel better knowing they have protection."

Although the protection is there, Alderson hopes that it is never necessary.

"I told all the officers I spoke to so far that I really hope you never need it but if you do need it I want it to be there to protect them because these guys (canines) are part of your family," Alderson said.

Oneida Post Office Offers Tips During Dog Bite Prevention Week

Oneida, WI — A dog might be a man's best friend, but is it a letter carrier's? Warmer weather introduces the sights and sounds of local neighborhoods; filled with children playing, letter carriers delivering, and dogs barking. Many of these dogs are safely behind a fence or on a leash. However, there are some situations when a dog can be potentially dangerous.

"Letter carriers know first-hand about the prevention and the pain of animal attacks, and we want to help educate the community — especially parents and pet owners," said Oneida Postmaster Cheryl Koenig. "Several of our

More than 4.5 million people are bitten annually by dogs. Last year, nearly 5,600 letter carriers were bitten by dogs across the country. In the Lakeland District, which the Oneida Post Office is part of, there were 180 dog incidents. These numbers pale in comparison to the more than 2 million children who received dog bite injuries in a single year.

"Dog attacks are the most commonly reported childhood public health problem in the United States," adds Koenig. "Dog bite victims account for up to 5 percent of emergency room visits."

The following tips will help people avoid being bitten by a dog and offer advice on how to be a responsible dog owner.

How to Avoid Being Bitten

• Don't run past a dog.

The dog's natural instinct is to chase and catch you. If a dog threatens you, don't scream. Avoid eye contact. Try to remain motionless until the dog leaves, and then back away slowly until the dog is out of sight.

Neutered dogs are less likely to bite. Humane Society of the United States (HSUS) statistics reflect that dogs that have not been spayed or neutered are up to three times more likely to be involved in a biting incident than neutered or spayed dogs.

• Obedience training can teach dogs proper behavior and help owners control their dog in any situation.

• When the letter carrier comes to your home, keep your dog inside, away from the door, in another room, or on a leash.

• Dogs can be protective of their territory and may interpret the actions of letter carriers as a threat.

• Please take precautions when accepting mail in the presence of your pet.

• Spay or neuter your dog. Neutered dogs are less likely to bite. Humane Society of the United States (HSUS) statistics reflect that dogs that have not been spayed or neutered are up to three times more likely to be involved in a biting incident than neutered or spayed dogs.

• Dogs that haven't been properly socialized, receive little attention or handling, or are left tied up for long periods of time frequently turn into biters.

• If you believe a dog is about to attack you, try to place something between yourself and the dog, such as a backpack or a bicycle.

How to Be a Responsible Dog Owner

• Obedience training can teach dogs proper behavior and help owners control their dog in any situation.

• When the letter carrier comes to your home, keep your dog inside, away from the door, in things, all these elements that make up a store or a site," he said. "We just want to own this area ... people say the heart of Oneida is in Oneida out by Norbert Hill (Center), but the people live here, and the people shop here. This is a busy area, there's enough traffic to sustain the stores."

The new Oneida One Stop and Oneida Market will be completed towards the end of this year.

"We looked at traffic counts, (Wisconsin Department of Transportation) construction, we looked at everything; concentration of tribal enrolled members, where they live, where they shop, where they work, where they play. We looked at all these

BUSINESS

Peace Stone Studios

By Nate Wisneski

Kalihwisaks

Like many artists Ken Metoxen struggles with creating pieces for his enjoyment or tailoring them for clients or the tastes of buyers. He admits this probably will always be a challenge he needs to overcome.

"I made this for me, this little one for myself, this one for myself, this for my son and everything else for other people," said Metoxen pointing to some clay pots on display in his home studio. "You pay a price, you have to sell your soul to the highest bidder."

Metoxen's main focus now is Iroquois pottery but he also has dabbled in wood sculptures, wall hangings, stained glass, drums, and cornhusk dolls. His business is called Peace Stone Studios.

"It really is a little bit of everything. It just depends where I want to take it and I am not really sure where that is," Metoxen said.

Metoxen holds multiple college degrees but the schools never seemed to drive him to create.

"I didn't feel inspired about our culture (during school) it was more about abstract (art)," Metoxen said.

Metoxen then apprenticed under accomplished potter Rose Kerstetter in New Mexico.

Ken Metoxen stands in his studio surrounded by his pottery.

"I moved there and studied under her for about a year before she convinced me to go to the Institute of American Indian Arts (IAIA)," Metoxen said.

Metoxen thrived at IAIA as more emphasis was put on learning about culture when creating art.

After IAIA Metoxen spent time in the Army and had served as the Museum Director at the Oneida Museum along with multiple positions in the tribe's language department. The final straw that moved Metoxen to open his own business was a position in the Green Bay School District.

"I got sick of the work and listening to someone else," he said. "I was let go and focused on my pottery."

Kerstetter was still guiding Metoxen and he is quick to point out that he would like to use his business not only for profit but for the better of Oneida art.

"She keeps telling me she is not teaching me to win awards and get in galleries. She is teaching me to teach kids to revitalize traditional Iroquois pottery," Metoxen said.

Metoxen now is in flux as he navigates his way through the process of owning a business. He admires many business owners as he has realized the heart and soul that goes into starting one.

"I almost have more respect for people who have started a business and failed than people that have been successful," he said.

He also is working on getting Oneida art in Oneida places, a process he has found challenging.

"I have a product, I would like to sell it and I wonder how I can get the tribe to buy it. How do I find myself and where does Oneida pottery fit into Oneida," he asked.

For more information call Peace Stone Studios at (920) 869-1920 or visit peacestonestudios.com.

Some students work to avoid huge college debt

DULUTH, Minn. (AP) ~

Roughly three-fourths of college graduates in the Duluth area are likely to carry debt. But the Duluth News Tribune found that some have been working hard to avoid it.

The newspaper reports that students graduating with little or no debt say planning, hard work and creativity have helped. Some have taken advantage of scholarships, others have found friends willing to share meal plans that don't get used. Some say saving at a young age also helped. Some clip coupons or find other ways to save.

But for those who can't avoid loans, debt can be huge.

University of Minnesota Duluth students who took out loans graduate with an average debt of $31,000. Students at the University of Wisconsin-Superior are graduating with an average debt of $24,000.

Tribal lawyer charged in construction projects kickback scheme

LOS ANGELES (AP)

~ A tribal lawyer and three others have been indicted for a kickback scheme involving construction projects at a Southern California desert Indian casino.

Federal prosecutors in Los Angeles say attorney Gary Edward Kovall, who represents the Twenty-Nine Palms Band of Mission Indians, was paid kickbacks to convince the tribe to hire three co-defendants for projects at the Spotlight 29 Casino in Coachella.

Kovall lives in Ely,

Minn.

Other defendants in Wednesday's 48-count indictment are Rancho Cucamonga contractor Paul Phillip Bards, David Alan Heslop of Templeton and Peggy Anne Sham Baugh, also of Ely.

Prosecutors say the bribery and kickback scheme was hatched by Kovall, who told the tribe to create a limited liability company to purchase real estate. Kovall then convinced the tribe to hire Heslop as company manager.

Childcare and Local Media

It is important we discuss the state of the Oneida Tribe and our children regarding the most recent events surrounding the Oneida Daycare Program: the employees, the parents and families, and most importantly, the children.

NBC news covered a story on concerns of parents about our Oneida Daycare Program, and many of you have questions about the news report and the quality and safety of our Daycare Program. Preceding the news report, parent concerns were heard by members of the Oneida Business Committee; allegations were investigated by both the Tribe's Education Department Director and Oneida's Internal Audit Department; and videos recorded at various locations within the daycare facility were thoroughly reviewed. At any point during the investigation process, if any child was identified as being abused, State and Tribal law requires that such abuse be reported to law enforcement authorities. To date, as the Internal Audit Department closes in on completing their investigation, my Office is not aware of any Police complaints being filed by any Tribal personnel responsible for conducting the investigation.

Throughout this whole process, the Oneida Business Committee has insisted that established Tribal law be complied with. Tribal law protects the fundamental right of all children to be protected against anyone who might endanger their safety. As stated above, all Tribal employees have the responsibility to report incidents of children being abused and neglected. In addition, Tribal employees also have rights and the Oneida Business Committee has insisted that any allegations against employees must be thoroughly investigated in accordance to our Tribal laws, and that no teacher or daycare personnel will be negatively impacted unless there is sufficient proof that wrong doing has taken place.

In closing, I am confident that we will get through this ordeal. And it is painful and the weight of protecting our children weighs heavily on all members of the Oneida Business Committee, Daycare personnel, and of course the parents who deserve to know that their treasured little-ones are in good hands when they drop them off in the care of the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin.

2013 Budget Development

The Oneida Business Committee continues its efforts to present a balanced budget to the General Tribal Council by the end of September. We have a ways to go. For too long, we have not adequately addressed Tribal spending habits and responsible return on investments. As Councilman, and now Chairman, I take my share of blame for not addressing these serious issues earlier. But we must move forward. This Business Committee must insist on responsible spending and responsible business/spending decisions.

Our Division Directors must do the same and insist that directors under their supervision cooperate. Our businesses, both corporate and internal, must perform more efficiently. And our land, thousands of acres acquired at a price of tens of millions of Tribal dollars must be used effectively to serve the needs of the Oneida people, and for those lands designated for economic benefits (the farm) must be profitable.

There is no reason that our farmlands to continue to be a drain on the Tribal economy.

Operation Greatest Generation

The recent honoring of World War II Veterans at the Operation Greatest Generation event, was attended by Indian and non-Indian veterans who participated in that war that took the lives of hundreds of thousands Americans. Attending the event were Tribal members Rose Kerstetter, Roy Huff, Warren Skenandore, Jim Begay and Ken Hill. Also attending, representing the Oneida Business Committee was David Jordan. All generations should remember of sacrifices of that generation, so many lives left unlived.

Thanks for reading.

Sincerely,

Ed Delgado

relative of mine.

For the record: Brandon Stevens stated that the Chairman in his recommendation, recommended Bruce Danforth to serve on the OTIE board and with the OTIE board, this is essential that the board has consistency in the make-up of their board of directors. Especially with the 8A status that they hold, it shows a stability within the organization and the board, to be able to make their decisions. I understand Leslie Wheelock is very qualified. The consistency that we talked about up here as a committee we all agreed upon, the vast majority of us, had agreed upon and that we are changing that decision and I just want that to be noted.

Writer's conference celebrates Indigenous arts

Returning the Gift, the national writer's conference which for 20 years has been a major instrument in Native writing, will be held this year on September 5-9 in Milwaukee.

Joseph Bruchac and Joy Harjo, two of the original founders of the conference, will be present as keynote speakers. Bruchac's sons, James and Jesse will also be present.

The theme of the conference will be "A Gathering of Words at the Gathering of Waters."

Events of Wednesday and Thursday will take place in and around the Heftner Center of the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee; Friday through Sunday's activities will take place at the Indian Summer Festival Grounds along Milwaukee's lakefront. At Heftner, there will be panels, workshops and presentations. There will be opportunities for individual manuscript evaluation and (weather permitting) an outdoor skills/writing from nature session. Harjo and Bruchac will also be giving readings around Milwaukee.

Friday attendees at the RTG tent on the Festival grounds will participate in Indian Summer's "Education Day." In the evening, the Returning the Gift awards banquet will include music by Wade Fernandez. On Saturday and Sunday, Bruchac, Harjo and Fernandez will be among the featured Indian Summer performers. Other RTG participants will have the opportunity to perform at several of the Indian Summer venues throughout the festival. A National Indigenous slam competition will be featured, and sales of Native-written books will be anchored by Woodland Pattern Book Center.

Indian Summer is a spectacular festival that annually attracts 50,000 people over the three days. It includes music performance, a contest pow-wow, traditional villages from Wisconsin tribes such as Menominee, Oneida and Ojibwe; the ISMA Music Awards, lacrosse demonstrations, an artists' circle, traditional craft demonstrations, vendors, food, children's activities, fireworks, and much more. Performance run simultaneously on three large stages and other smaller stages and tented venues feature a wide range of events from fire dancers to puppeteers.

We invite you to be a part of this wonderful celebration of Indigenous arts. The Returning the Gift Conference is being sponsored by Yukhikala-tuhse (She tells us stories), the Native writer's journal published by Oneida Nation Arts Program. The website Yuhkika-luhse.org will provide more information, and it is here you can register. We hope to see you this summer!

Wisconsin

News

Wis. leaders can ban hidden guns at polls

MADISON, Wis. (AP)

Wisconsin elections officials have shifted their rationale for banning concealed weapons at the polls.

Local election clerks have asked the Government Accountability Board whether voters can pack at the polls. GAB attorney Mike Haas concluded local governments can ban concealed weapons at the polls because elections qualify as special events.

Haas told the board Tuesday his staff has adopted a cleaner analysis from the state Justice Department. That agency concluded a provision in the concealed carry law that allows local governments to ban weapons in spaces they occupy extends to polling places, whether the sites are on government property or not.

Haas says his staff will advise municipalities to develop their own policies. He wasn't sure they would have time to make decisions ahead of the June 5 recall, however.

Plexus to build $50 million plant in Neenah

NEENAH, Wis. (AP)

Plexus Corp. says its new $50 million high-tech manufacturing plant in Neenah will create 350 jobs.

Plexus says construction of the plant that will manufacture high-tech electronic components will begin in July. The company will receive up to $15 million in tax credits over a seven-year period through the state's Wisconsin Economic Development Corp. The tax credits will be tied to the company's capital investment, job retention and creation.

Neenah community development director

Chris Haese tells the Appleton Post-Crescent (<http://post.cr/JebX01>) the new plant will also retain 1,000 jobs. Plexus will also build a $7 million data and development center near its global headquarters in downtown Neenah in 2013.

Native American women seek protections from abuse

By Suzanne Gamboa

Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — Diane Millich's ex-husband was never arrested for any of the more than 100 times he slapped, kicked or punched her before showing up at her Colorado workplace and firing a 9 mm pistol, wounding the co-worker who pushed her out of the way.

When he was finally arrested in New Mexico weeks after the shooting, he was treated as a first-time offender.

Why? Because while Millich is Native American, her ex-husband is not and all the domestic violence took place on the Southern Ute reservation.

Under a 1978 Supreme Court decision, non-Indians cannot be prosecuted by tribal courts for crimes committed on tribal land. Last July, the Justice Department recommended that Congress give tribes local authority to prosecute non-Indians in misdemeanor domestic and dating violence cases. The pending renewal of the Violence Against Women Act seemed a good chance to do that.

But the act has become entangled in election-year politics, with each party adding language on other issues that infuriates the other. Although the version the Senate passed 68-31 would follow the Justice Department recommendations and give tribes the power to prosecute non-Indians in tribal courts, the House so far has not. The House could change its mind and add the provisions as soon as this week when it is expected to consider the bill.

Millich said a change in the law certainly would have helped her deal with the abuse in her marriage, which began with slapping and pushing when she was a 24-year-old newlywed. After a year, Millich filed for divorce and sought a protective order, which her ex-husband mocked because he knew it would not be enforced.

"American Indian women do not have the same protections as non-Indian women. Federal law ... has a large gaping hole in it for abusers who are non-Indian," Millich, 49, said in a briefing for Capitol Hill staffers last week.

She said tribal and county authorities routinely refused to arrest her ex-husband, whom she did not identify by name. Once, she said, he called the county sheriff himself "to show me that no one could stop him," and indeed, two deputies came to their home and confirmed that they did not have jurisdiction to arrest him.

"I felt like I was walking on eggshells and knew inside that something terrible was going to happen ... After I fled he broke into the house, breaking windows, furniture and dishes. He cut the knuckles of his hands during the violence and smeared his blood over the walls, floor and my bedroom sheets," Millich said.

The day after destroying her home, Millich's ex-husband showed up at her Bureau of Land Management workplace with a gun. Although officials responded, he escaped and was at large for two weeks while she hid in a women's shelter, fearful he might find her, she said. Her ex-husband ultimately was offered, and took, a plea deal on an aggravated traffic offense.

"In the end, he was right in that he was above the law," she said.

Statistics on domestic and dating violence involving Native Americans and non-Indians are vague both because of varying ways tribes collect the information and because much of the violence is unreported. There is hope to improve collection of data.

A recent Census report found about 77 percent of people living on Native American and Alaska Native areas are non-Indian. About half of Native American women are married to non-Indians, according to the Justice Department.

Lisa Boothe, a spokeswoman for Rep. Sandy Adams, R-Fla., herself a victim of domestic violence who wrote the House version of the Violence Against Women Act that excludes the tribal provisions, said laws already exist to deal with non-Indian domestic violence against native peoples that takes place on tribal land.

Although the federal government has authority to prosecute domestic violence involving non-Indians, the cases often are not priorities, said

John Harte, who has been lobbying in support of the provisions on behalf of Native American tribes. He said that in 2007, the Salt River Pima, Ariz., tribal police responded to more than 400 acts of domestic violence, many involving non-tribe members. That same year U.S. attorneys prosecuted only 21 misdemeanor crimes on Indian lands across the country, Harte said.

Another law gave some states all federal prosecution powers held by the federal government over non-Indians. The law originated in the 1950s as the country was enacting "termination policies" to assimilate tribes into the broader society and do away with reservations and tribes themselves, according to the Justice Department.

Though some local officials have good working relationships with tribes, the isolation of tribal lands and the lack of resources - states don't collect taxes within Indian Country - usually mean misdemeanor domestic and dating violence take a back seat. Often domestic and dating violence steadily worsens if the abuser is goes unpunished until the victim is seriously wounded or killed.

"Is it working on the ground? The answer is no," said Terri Henry, a tribal council representative for Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians in Charlotte, N.C.

The legislation also grants defendants the right to counsel if they can't afford an attorney, an impartial jury that includes non-Indians and a right to appeal. Non-Indian defendants would have the same rights in tribal courts as they have in state courts, according to the Justice Department.

House Passes VAWA with Weakened Tribal Provisions; NCAI Voices Serious Concerns Regarding HR 4970

Washington, DC — Today, (May 16) the U.S. House of Representatives voted and passed a version of the Violence Against Women Act (VAWA) reauthorization - HR 4970 - without any of the key tribal jurisdictional provisions intact. The National Congress of American Indians (NCAI) has serious concerns about the alternative provisions contained in the House bill and is calling on the House and Senate to restore the bipartisan and constitutionally sound tribal provisions in the Senate version of the bill, S.1925, that create local solutions to the epidemic of domestic violence experienced by Native women.

"Native women aren't safer as a result of the passage of HR 4970. In fact, the tribal provisions included in this bill create additional hurdles for Indian women seeking protection from violence on tribal lands, and that is unacceptable," said Juana Majel-Dixon, 1st Vice President of the National Congress of American Indians (NCAI) and co-chair of the NCAI Task Force on Violence Against Women. "Indian Country supports the bipartisan Senate VAWA bill, which contains constitutionally sound tribal provisions that provide local solutions that will deliver long-overdue justice to Native women and safety to tribal communities."

Passed by a vote of 222-205, the tribal provisions included in HR 4970 would be a step backward in contrast to the bipartisan Senate VAWA bill, supported by NCAI and tribes across the country. Over the past few days, H.R. 4970 has been amended to include provisions that have the potential to cause great confusion surrounding tribes' authority to issue civil protection orders and that could further endanger Native victims.

HR 4970 would "federalize" the issuance and enforcement of protection orders for Native victims, authorizing Indian victims of domestic violence or Indian tribes on behalf of Indian victims to seek protection orders from U.S. district courts against suspects of abuse. This approach fails to address the crux of the problem - a lack of local authority to handle misdemeanor level domestic and dating violence when the perpetrator is non-Indian. The legislation passed by the House is drafted in a way that undermines the safety and autonomy of victims.

On the other hand, S.1925 contains key tribal provisions that would empower the governmental authorities closest to the alleged criminal activity - tribal police and courts - to intervene early in acts of domestic violence committed by non-Indians within the tribe's territory, before the violence escalates to the point of serious assault or homicide. These provisions are limited in scope, do not infringe on existing federal or state court jurisdiction, and defendants who stand trial before a tribal court would have the full panoply of constitutional rights.

Stevens helps bring Crooked Arrows to the big screen

able to bring passion for film making and his favorite sport together with first ever studio film about lacrosse
Crooked Arrows

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwiaks

Much like the underdog lacrosse team it portrays, the movie Crooked Arrows beat the odds to get released into select theaters starting Friday, May 18. For seven years, producer Mitchell Peck shopped the story about Native Americans and lacrosse to studios that weren't interested in either topic.

About two-and-a-half-years ago, Peck was introduced to Ernie Stevens III by a mutual friend. As co-producer Stevens contributed his knowledge about Iroquois culture and history to flesh out the story of the fictional Senequoit Tribe of the film.

"My soul job at the beginning was to make it culturally, socially, politically accurate as it relates to Native Americans," said Stevens.

The movie focuses on Joe Logan (Brandon Routh) who manages a small casino on the Senequoit reservation.

Logan wants to expand for more economic growth, but to get support of the council, he's asked to coach the high school lacrosse team which struggles against better equipped elite prep schools.

"Native people will understand it and enjoy it, lacrosse players will definitely enjoy it," he said.

Stevens was also drawn to the film due to his background playing lacrosse.

"It's about us, it's about all the people who love and play lacrosse, but the spirit lies within where it came from, which is our people," he said.

Stevens' is hoping the movie will get a boost from the growing popularity of lacrosse as a sport, and vice-versa.

"Part of the goal of this film, I think it will happen, is getting kids of all ages, all nationalities, all countries to pick up a lacrosse stick," he said.

Stevens said he got a little frustrated when he felt the production team was focusing too much on collegiate style lacrosse.

"I told them to get up to Six Nations, see how they play, because the other goal was to figure out a unique, specific way that they win the ... against the bad guys so to speak," he said. "It has to be done playing rez ball."

While Routh is an athletic actor who learned to play lacrosse for the movie, most of the Crooked Arrows team were lacrosse players learning how to act.

"The whole goal at the beginning for me was to both the story aspect to also just seeing it on screen was to employ lacrosse players and to turn them into actors, and I think they did a great job," he said.

Stevens was able to bring in Oneida lacrosse player Lakwaho McLester to play a historical role.

"He's actually in one of the opening shots," said Stevens. "He speaks in Oneida in that scene ...

we had a collaboration of languages."

Stevens hopes to delve deeper into the story of the Crooked Arrows, their nation, and their game in films to come.

"Knock on wood, sequel, there's a lot more story to be told," he said.

The movie will open primarily on the east coast on May 18, and will open in New Berlin, Menomonee Falls, and Madison on Friday, June 1.

Oneida Housing Authority

Community Update

The Oneida Housing Authority is having an OPEN HOUSE to show the community the type and size of housing being offered to community members. You continue to read in the Kalihwisaks what OHA is not doing, come see for yourself. Do not believe the misinformation people are placing in the paper, see for yourself and you be the judge. Remember it's your community and you have a say in the quality and type of housing being offered.

You need to speak out at the next Community Development Planning Committee to be held on June 7, 2012 at 9 a.m. in the OBC conference room. This is especially important for elders because decisions will be made regarding the type and style of unit offered in the proposed Elder Village.

What do you want your community to look like?

The Oneida Housing Authority has received notice that a petition is being considered to reduce rents at OHA. In order to make an informed decision on this petition, you need to know what the rental income is used for and what a reduction in rents would mean. The rents are used to maintain and repair the units so that they are in top condition. The funds that the rent reduction, as proposed by the petition, would reduce revenue by $73,000 a year. This money also offsets other expenses, so we have more money to use in building more homes. We currently have 156 families on our waiting list, so reducing available funding to build more units does not seem to be in the best interest of the membership. This money would have to be made up by Tribal Contribution or a reduction in maintenance standards. At this point OHA is 100% GRANT FUNDED; we receive no Tribal Contribution.

Additional Housing Opportunities available to the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin

- HUD Section 184 Loan Program – $6 million
- HUD Title VI Loan Guarantee Program - $12 million
- USDA Rural Development Loan - $2 million for infrastructure
- USDA Rural Development Section 515 Multi-Family Housing Loan - $1 million
- HUD Section 202 Elderly Program – Cash Advance for $1 million
- PILOT (Payment in lieu of taxes) Tax Agreement - Hobart

The Oneida Housing Authority (OHA) is the proud recipient of a $600,000 competitive FY 2012 Indian Community Development Block Grant. The OHA grants team scored 94 out of 100 points for this competitive grant. OHA has submitted three competitive grant applications; FY 2009, FY 2011, FY 2012 and have been awarded three grants for a total of $2.4 million dollars (IHBG $600,000 and ICDBG $1,800,000) for infrastructure at Green Valley, Elder Village and Overland Road. All these infrastructure funds has been raised by OHA to provide water, sewer and roads at these development sites. There have been no Tribal dollars committed to any of these development sites. It has been funded by OHA Indian Housing Block and Indian Community Development Block Grants.

Summary of Grant Activities by Oneida Housing Authority

In the past three years OHA has accomplished the following:

ARRA FY 2009 $3 million – Competitive stimulus funds for the rehabilitation of 100 rental units. Activities includes, roof replacement, energy star appliances, energy star furnaces and water heaters, insulation upgrades, lighting, windows, etc.

ICDBG FY 09', FY 11' and FY 12' $1.8 million – water, sewer and roads for Green Valley, Elder Village and Overland Road infrastructure.

ROSS $210,403 – A three year grant to hire a service coordinator to provide initiatives to bring tenants self-sufficiency through education, job skills, budgeting and coordination of social services available in the community.

FY 2010 - $3,938,288

FY 2009 - $3,524,653

Total of $14,969,232

Where does all the money go that OHA receives?

Families that now have housing from these past three years average over 20 units per year.

Native American Actor Chaske Spencer' Video Sparks 2012 Native Vote Campaign

Star of Twilight Movies Releases New Native Vote Video to encourage Native Voters to "be the shift, be the Native Vote."

WASHINGTON, DC—Native American Actor Chaske Spencer, best known for his role in the Twilight movie saga, is the star of a new video released to inspire Native Americans to get out the "Native Vote." Native Vote, a non-partisan initiative of the National Congress of American Indians, released the video almost exactly six months before national Election Day on November 6, 2012. The video highlights the power and importance of the Native Vote and encourages voters in tribal communities to understand that every voice—and every vote—counts.

"Native American voters are one of the country's most under-represented and disenfranchised group of voters. Native Vote is focused on turning out the largest Native Vote in history in 2012. Estimates show that over one million eligible Native voters are unregistered. It's going to take people like Chaske Spencer stepping forward to help spread the word," said NCAI Executive Director Jacqueline Pata. "This is a true grassroots effort and we need everyone to be involved to spread the word. We hope that Indian Country and non-Native people alike are inspired, especially young people, to get more involved in civic activities such as voting."

"Nothing is more important to me than the future of our people. I started an effort called 'Be the Shift' to encourage young people to be involved, that's why I support Native Vote in encouraging American Indians and Alaska Natives to vote in federal, state, and local elections," says Chaske Spencer in the video, making its way around social media site and can be viewed on YouTube. Spencer continues, "In 2012, people all over the United States will be voting for the next President and Native people cannot be left out of the process. Be the shift, be the Native Vote. Every voice counts."

Recent data suggests that over one million eligible American Indians and Alaska Natives were not registered to vote during the last election cycle; 34 percent of the total Native population is over 18 and eligible to vote.

NCAI's Native Vote initiative works to inform Native voters of key deadlines, registration guidelines, voting locations and process, candidates, ballot measures, and more. The 2012 campaign has four main focus areas: Get-Out-The-Vote (GOTV) and Voter Registration, Voter Protection, Voter and Candidate Education, and Access to Data. The campaign provides trainings, webinars, and informational resources to tribally-appointed Native Vote coordinators and local self-appointed coordinators to support voter engagement efforts.

Chase Spencer, Actor First Nation descendant of Lakota (Sioux) Nation

Chaske Spencer is actively involved in raising a national awareness of Native issues, especially through his organization, United Global Shift. United Global Shift empowers people from around the world to create sustainable, lasting change in their communities and countries.

About Native Vote: Native Vote was founded as a nonpartisan initiative of the National Congress of American Indians (NCAI) in response to low voter participation and severe infractions against Native voters. For more information or to get involved in the 2012 Native Vote campaign, visit www.NativeVote.org. To learn more about United Global Shift, visit www.UnitedGlobalShift.com.

About the National Congress of American Indians: Founded in 1944, the National Congress of American Indians is the oldest, largest, and most representative American Indian and Alaska Native organization in the country. NCAI advocates on behalf of tribal governments and communities, advances strong tribal/federal government-to-government policies, and promotes a better understanding among the general public regarding American Indian and Alaska Native governments, people, and rights.

In the News with... Cultural Heritage

Cultural Heritage staff attends Culture Keepers conference

Staff from the Oneida Cultural Heritage Department was able to attend the Convening Culture Keepers Conference, May 3 - 4, 2012. Anita Barber, Rita Lara, Sara Summers-Luedtke, Nicolas Reynolds, Eliza Skenandore, and Kymberley Pelky attended.

Convening Culture Keepers is a group sponsored by an IMLS grant to UW-Madison—SLIS that meets around the state of Wisconsin. Members are employees of different tribes and nations from around the state of Wisconsin that work for tribal libraries, museums, and cultural centers. The conference is a great training for the staff and creates networking with the other tribes in Wisconsin. They just had the fourth of six meetings. The first one was here in Oneida two Octobers ago. The IMLS grant covered travel, room, and two meals for the conferences, so there is little if no cost to the tribes.

They gathered in the afternoon and toured the facility. They have a conference room where they video conference with other Potawatomi tribes for language, a photo studio and dark room, an archival storage room, computer lab, gift shop, a craft & activity walk-in storage room with shelves to the ceiling, a community room with a kitchen for tribal and tribal member use, a really nice museum that the director, Mike Alloway, wishes was bigger, and a library with Native American materials available for checkout. There are many features in the building that have cultural relevance, which is always wonderful to see. Then everyone learned about the Forest County Potawatomi database for all sorts of archival records. The Potawatomi use a program called Stellent and a GIS program from mPower Integrations. These programs work much like the Oneida's PastPerfect program and their GLIS information systems.

Then they made black ash baskets. The bottoms were already completed so they could get the baskets done in few hours and they did. It was so cool the way all of them turned out differently! While everyone was finishing up the baskets, they served dinner.

Group Photo of Convening Culture Keepers at Forest County Potawatomi Cultural Center, May 4, 2012.

The next morning the day started with stories and words by Jim Thunder, a Potawatomi elder. The day's sessions started and everyone learned about "Meaningful and Relevant: Interpretation for Museums, Libraries, and Archives," "Advocating for Your Institution," and "Developing Your Oral History Program." All the sessions were valuable and informative, and worth the drive up to Potawatomi!

Oneida Cultural Heritage Departmental Meeting for May

Nodding Trillium (trillium cernuum) a rare species of trillium. It is considered by many websites to be an Ontario wildflower.

The curriculum for the Cultural Heritage Department's monthly staff meeting was about traditional medicines for May. Members of Cultural Heritage, History Department, Cultural/Wellness, Language House/ANA, Museum, and Library met at the Museum and had a session with Sylvia Cornelius about the upcoming book about Culturally Significant Plants in Oneida, Wisconsin. After that presentation, we took a nature walk on the Oneida Museum trails. Loretta Metoxen was there to give us plant knowledge. Randy Cornelius also shared plant knowledge and language words for some of the plants, and Kymberley Pelky and others shared what knowledge they knew as well.

Some of the plants identified were white pine, cat mint, dandelion, Virginia Creeper, gooseberries, chokecherry, mushrooms, sumac, jewelweed, maple, white ash, lady fern, and the rare nodding trillium. Even with the overcast weather, it was a great walk and a very satisfying departmental meeting!

The trails are now open at the Oneida Nation Museum! See how many of these plants you can find—you can find them all by staying on the trails. Wear proper gear and protect yourself from mosquitoes.

The First Lady's Let's Move! Child Care Initiative Recognizes BIE FACE Program

WA SHING TON, D.C.— The Bureau of Indian Education Family & Child Education Program (FACE) has received national recognition for its exceptional work in promoting young children's health and preventing childhood obesity. The recognition came from the first lady's Let's Move! Child Care initiative, Acting Assistant Secretary-Indian Affairs Del Laverdure announced today.

"Incorporating Let's Move! activities into our own Let's Move! in Indian Country is already having a positive impact on our students in BIE schools," said Laverdure. "I am grateful to the first lady for initiating and leading the effort to reduce childhood obesity in Indian Country. Healthy students are key to Indian Country's future."

The Bureau's FACE Program was recognized at the Let's Move! Child Care Recognition Luncheon, which took place on May 9, 2012 at the Omni Shoreham Hotel in Washington, D.C. White House Assistant Chef and Senior Policy Advisor for Healthy Food Initiatives, Sam Kass, gave keynote remarks and highlighted FACE's efforts.

The FACE program was recognized for carrying out exceptional work to promote and implement the goals of Let's Move! Child Care. FACE includes using creative strategies, engaging families in obesity prevention efforts, and overcoming challenges to get children moving and encourage healthy eating in early care and education settings. FACE was one of twenty programs nationwide selected for recognition out of a multitude of groups including early education and child care programs and networks, communities, and states.

"It is extremely exciting and pleasurable to have been nominated and selected for this great honor and achievement," said BIE Director Keith Moore. "The BIE is truly dedicated to being at the forefront of the movement to build a healthier and more sustainable future for our children across Indian Country. This award acknowledges our perseverance to achieve greatness, and inspires us to keep pushing forward."

Let's Move! Child Care is a nationwide call-to-action to empower early education and child care programs.

YOUR PARTNERS FOR SUCCESS

Healthy Vision: Make It Last a Lifetime

Vision plays an important part in our lives. It enables us to care for our families. We also use our sight to watch our families and our communities grow, to perform our day-to-day activities, and to get around. It is important to make sure your vision is healthy so it can last a lifetime. And that takes wise choices.

Research studies have found that diabetes is common among American Indians and Alaska Natives, and has increased substantially over the past two decades. Because American Indians and Alaska Natives have a higher risk of getting diabetes, they also have a higher risk of getting eye problems resulting from diabetes, such as diabetic eye disease. Diabetic eye disease is a group of eye problems that includes diabetic retinopathy, the most common eye disease in people with diabetes.

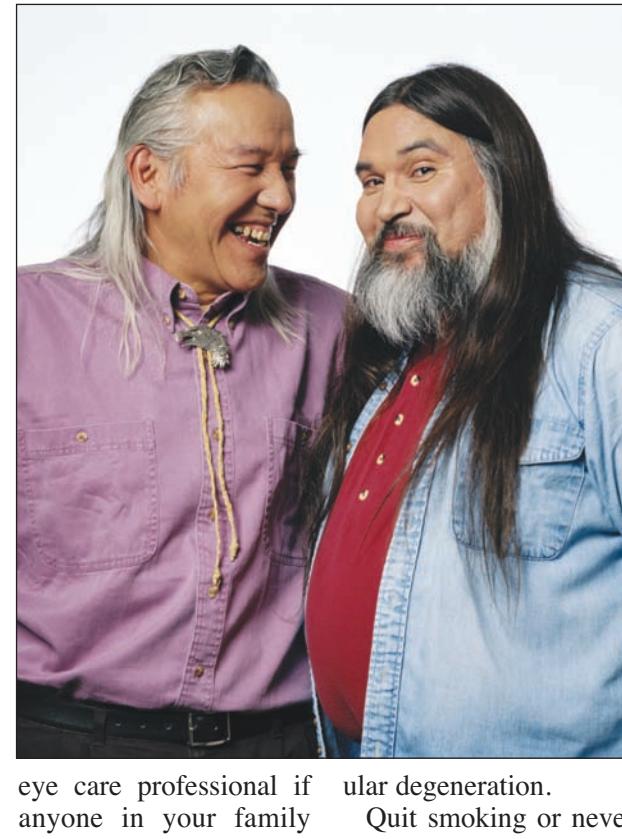

One of the most important things you can do to protect your vision is to get a comprehensive dilated eye exam. In this procedure, an eye care professional places drops in your eyes to dilate, or widen, the pupil to allow more light to enter the eye the same way an open door lets more light into a room. This allows your eye care professional to examine the back of the eyes for any signs of eye disease. Early detection and treatment can help to reduce your risk of vision loss and blindness.

"Diabetic retinopathy, glaucoma, and age-related macular degeneration [AMD] affect millions of Americans," says Dr. Sieving, director of the National Eye Institute (NEI) of the National Institutes of Health.

"These conditions were once untreatable, robbing people of their vision, mobility, and independence. Thankfully, in the last decade, medical researchers have developed highly effective, sight-saving treatments. However, these treatments are only effective if the disease is diagnosed before it causes vision loss. Since there are often no warning signs, regular dilated eye exams are important to early detection and treatment."

Your past is just as important as your future. Many eye diseases and conditions are hereditary and knowing your family history can help to determine if you are at higher risk. Make sure you pass on your history to the next generation so they can take care of their eyes, too. And, tell your eye care professional if anyone in your family has an eye disease or condition.

Other simple steps to keep your vision at its best include the following:

Make healthy food choices—A variety of vegetables, especially dark leafy greens such as spinach, kale, or collard greens, should be an important part of your diet. Researchers have found that people with diets that contain higher levels of vitamins C and E, zinc, and omega-3 fatty acids (found in salmon, tuna, and halibut) are less likely to develop age-related macular degeneration.

Quit smoking or never start—Tobacco smoking has been linked to an increased risk of AMD, cataract, and optic nerve damage, all of which can lead to vision loss.

Wear eye protection—if you play sports or even work on home projects, it is critical to wear appropriate eye protection to prevent eye injuries.

For more information about eye health and tips for finding an eye care professional or organizations that provide financial assistance for eye care, visit <http://www.nei.nih.gov/healtheyes>.
