Tribe makes final payment on purchase of proposed mine land

By Robert Imrie
Associated Press Writer

WAUSAU, Wis. (AP) ~ Three years after it helped to buy the site of a proposed mine near Crandon ~ shutting down the disputed project ~ an Indian tribe has made its final $8 million mortgage payment to a mining company that will donate the money back to the tribe through a trust fund, a tribal official said Tuesday.

"It is a gift. It is basically a gift out of the blue," said Tony Phillippe, administrator for the Mole Lake, or Sakaogon, Chippewa band. "It is going to be a charitable trust."

In October 2003, the Mole Lake Chippewa and Forest County Potawatomi agreed to pay $16.5 million to buy Nicolet Minerals Co. and more than 5,000 acres associated with the proposed underground zinc and copper mine just south of Crandon. The purchase was from Northern Resource Group, a new company started by a Laona family.

Northern Resource, with expertise in logging and wood products, had acquired the project in April 2003 from BHP Billiton, an international metals company headquartered in Melbourne, Australia, which had also provided $8 million in financing to the Laona company, authorities said. But Northern Resource said it was unable to find other investors and a partner with mining expertise to proceed with the mine.

The two tribes, with new wealth from casino profits, opposed the Crandon mine project for years, warning it would pollute valuable water resources, including the pristine Wolf River nearby, and that the risk wasn't worth the mining jobs that would be created.

When the tribes bought the mine site, the Potawatomi paid cash for its share of the deal, and the Mole Lake made a $250,000 downpayment and acquired the mortgage from BHP. The $8 million payment was due in April, Phillippe said Tuesday.

The tribe borrowed all but $52,000 of the remaining debt as part of a $20 million, 20-

The Oneida Family Carnival gets bigger and better with each passing year. The weather was a bit misty on Friday evening but, the sun was more than accommodating throughout the whole day on Saturday. By mid-afternoon, the lines at the food booths were very long. At right: John Anderson had the crowd 'swingin' to a variety of his hit songs. Below: An additional ride was added to this years attraction which proved to be quite a hit with the young and old. Mock accident site sets scene for youth alcohol awareness

By Steven Gandy
Kalihwisaks

Every Fifteen Minutes a person in the United States is killed in an alcohol related accident. This statistic was the motivation for a recent reenactment at the Norbert Hill Center. On Wednesday, May 31, students at Oneida Nation High School, Oneida Police Department, Outagamie County Rescue and Oneida First Responders, along with others, all took part in an educational program designed to give teens a first hand look and the horrific reality of an alcohol related car accident.

The goal of the event, according to Cathy Delgado, one of the events planners, "was to educate the High School students, other community members and parents about the dangers of alcohol and driving."

Several students participated in the mock crash. Students were playing such realistic roles as, dead at the scene (Debbie Santiago), Paralyzed Victim (Twyla Danforth), Drunk Driver (Roland Christjohn), Injured Passenger (Yuntle>kala-u Delgado McLester) and Died-

OPD supports new booster seat law

Booster seats improve the fit of seatbelts by shifting the lap belt position from the abdomen to upper thighs and by lowering the shoulder belt from across the neck or face to the chest. Children wearing only an adult lap and shoulder belt are nearly 4 times more likely to sustain serious injury or die in a crash than children in safety seats.

Background Scope

A total of 3,082 child restraint citations were posted to driving records in 2005.

In the past five years, 53 children, ages 0 - 8, were killed in Wisconsin from motor vehicle crashes.

Another 8,207 children were injured over the same period.

Of those killed, 30% were unbelted and 59% were either unbelted or protected only by a seat belt.

General Provisions

- The law goes into effect on June 1, 2006.
- The 6 month written warning grace period for any child passenger violations under 347.48(4) will last until the end of the sixth month, December 2006.
- Citations may be issued starting in January 2007.
- Warnings issued during the grace period shall be sent to the Department of Motor Vehicles.
- Second and subsequent violations during the grace period are cite-able.

Core Provisions

- In basic terms, children must be in a car seat until they reach age 4 (this is not new).
- And in a booster seat until they reach age 8 (this is new).

Restraint structure

Less than one year old, OR less than 20 lbs.

Must be in a rear-facing child seat, in the back seat of the vehicle (if so equipped)

Age one and up to age 4, OR less than 40 lbs.

Must be in a forward-facing child seat in the seat of the vehicle (if so equipped)

Age 4 until they reach age 8, between 40 - 80 lbs AND no more than 4 ft. 9 inches

Must be in a high-back or no-back booster seat. Questions:

Oneida VFW salutes Veterans

By Steven Gandy

Kalihwisaks

Memorial Day is one of remembrance for those who gave their lives serving our great nation. Oneida Veterans were remembered this past Memorial Day Weekend by those who attended cemetery services sponsored by the Oneida VFW Post. On Saturday May 27th there was a G.I. breakfast and then with the help of the Oneida Boy Scouts, flags were placed in nine different cemeteries throughout Oneida. The Oneida Veterans revisited the cemeteries on Monday, May 29th to honor the deceased with the playing of Taps. A 21 gun salute followed.

Once finished, all returned to Parish Hall for a Booyah lunch and conversation.

Federal Judge rules in favor of New York Oneida SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) - A federal judge last Friday rejected Oneida County's efforts to foreclose on Oneida Indian Nation land.

U.S. District Court Judge David Hurd said state and federal laws prohibit the county from taking the land. Hurd's ruling was similar to one he made last year that prevented Madison County from taking tribal land.

Last year, the U.S. Supreme Court issued a ruling forcing the Oneida nation to pay property taxes.

That decision doesn't entitle the county to foreclose on Oneida land, however, and the county must find other means to obtain any taxes owed, Hurd said.

In a separate decision, Hurd also denied Madison County's attempts to decrease the size of the Oneida Indian reservation.

In Loving Memory of

Angeline M. Powless

Your memory soothes our spirits as we think of your smile and laughter.

We think about you when we see bingo daubers, chili, rummage sales and turquoise jewelry. Spring time brings thoughts about painting your rocks white, washing your lawn swans.

We think about you every day when the sun rises and our phone rings in the early morning.

We think about you on our birthdays, and give thanks for the life you gave us.

Mothers day was every day you were with us, not just one day a year.

We still get together for holidays, cookouts and whenever we need to, and we remember your special dishes, and we just can't cook the way you could, although we keep trying.

Wife, Mom, Gramma, you had all the bases covered and you did it all for everyone.

Washing, ironing, hanging your laundry on the line, a loving Indian woman for 80 years.

Raising children, grandchildren, great-grandchildren and taking in everyone else's kids to boot.

Sitting on Percy's porch, watching Oneida go by, day by day. "Who's that? Wave anyway."

Some stop to say hi and eat. Hope she has some chili, go right to the fridge. Remember that?

We miss you and remember you with love and laughter. A few tears, but they always turn into laughter, and we're so much better for having you in our world.

Missed, loved and remembered by husband, children and families.

In Loving Memory of

who passed on 6 years ago June 6th

Gone are the days we used to share, but in our hearts you are always there.

The gates of memory will never close. We miss you more than anyone knows.

With tender love and deep regret, We who love you will never forget.

Forever in our thoughts and prayers.

Sadly missed by Mom, Dad, Paula, Phil, Devonne and Family

At-Hospital (Eddie Metoxen). The actors were in make-up and costumes and played their roles with an eerie degree of realism. There was no shortage of props for the event which included two wrecked automobiles, fake blood and beer cans to name a few. Oneida police also participated in the event and gave the situation a sobering degree of realism.

As students looked down on the crash site they were shown the aftermath of a two car wreck involving alcohol. As a 911 call (Luwasanahawi Danforth) played over a P.A. system the actors began moving about, each playing their designated roles. Soon after, Oneida police came racing down Seminary Road with lights and sirens, and began to assess the situation. The members of OPD were miked-up so the student body could hear everything they were saying as well as the police dispatcher.

The Oneida First Responders were next to show up on the scene and began to administer life saving first aid to the victims. First responders are a vital link in the emergency medical services chain as they are typically closer to the accident and can get their first. They drive personal automobiles and respond day or night.

Shortly after the First Responders show up, Outagamie County Fire and Rescue vehicles approach the scene, once again lights and sirens are screaming as they come down Seminary Road. The jaws of life are used to remove a door from it's hinges to better get to an injured victim. Hoses are uncoiled from the fire engines and pressurized and one firemen even used a fire extinguisher to put out the "fire" that was starting in the back of one of the wrecked vehicles.

After someone was pronounced dead-at-the-scene and two others were taken to hospitals, a field sobriety test was administered to the driver of one of the vehicles. A hearse came to pick up the body and a wrecker was called to clean up the rest.

The repercussions for the event lasted all day for the students involved. They played their part for the remainder of the day going on to hospitals, court appearances and even remaining "dead." The students were barred from contacting friends and parents played a role by informing friends who may have called that night of each individual's fate.

This program was the culmination of months of planning by the Every Fifteen Minutes Committee which was headed up by Justine Souto who is also involved with the national CAPPs (Community Analysis Process for Planning Strategies) model. CAPPs is the national model used to mobilize the community to share ideas & information surrounding an issue.

mostly silent during the whole event. There was a sense of awe and intrigue about the audience. Souto said of the students, "It's really caused the kids eyes to be opened to the reality of what could happen when they choose to drink and drive and also not wearing a seatbelt."

A video is being produced as a resource tool for ONHS and the community but won't be available until its completion.

NWTC graduates largest May class

About 1,200 students received degrees and diplomas from Northeast Wisconsin Technical College this month, one of the College's largest May graduation classes ever.

NWTC's May graduate classes have set size records three years in a row, and this year's class is expected to be the largest ever. May graduation includes candidates who finish classes between Jan. 1 and June 30, 2006, so final numbers are not yet known.

Last year's full-year total (July 1, 2004-June 30, 2005) was 1,807 graduates, a 20% increase from the previous year. About 46% of those graduates were much-needed health care professionals. This year's full-year total is also expected to set a record.

New this year: NWTC's Chapter of Phi Theta Kappa, the national honor society for two-year colleges, encouraged participants to bring a children's book to graduation for the Project Graduation book drive. This has been PTK's first full year at NWTC.

Graduates from throughout the District were invited to march in commencement ceremonies Thursday, May 18 in Green Bay. In addition,

Tornado season has started

By Steve Gandy

Kalihwisaks

Along with warm temperatures and humid air, summer brings along another weather phenomenon, tornados. Tornado season is upon us here in North East Wisconsin and with that threat comes the need to examine whether you are prepared in case a tornado strikes your home or work place.

Wisconsin is in the middle of the pack when it comes to annual tornado strikes. According to the National Climatic Data Center, from 1950 - 1995 Wisconsin averaged 19 tornados per year, with the leaders being Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas which average 124, 52 and 47 per year respectively. However, in 2005, Wisconsin reported a record setting 62 tornados.

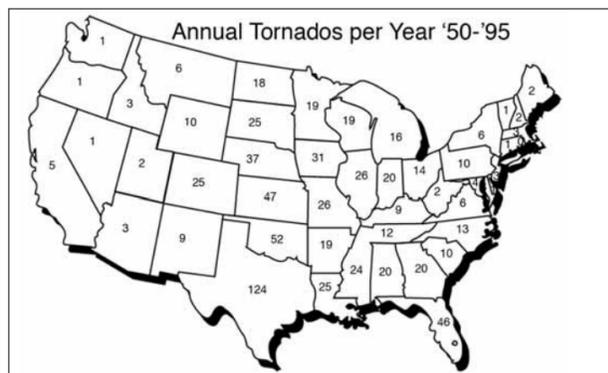

Tornados can strike any time and any where the weather permits. In Wisconsin, however, there is a time window where tornados are most likely to strike. "For Northeast Wisconsin, the hours between 3pm and 7pm, there's a greater chance of a tornado hitting," says Dan King, Safety Coordinator. The local weather man is a good source for information on stormy days. Watching the news or listening to the radio will keep you informed of any new weather changes.

Certain atmospheric conditions are more likely to cause a tornado. The roar of an oncoming thunderstorm does not mean there is going to be a tornado. The recipe needed to brew up a tornado is a precise one. Typically a storm needs two things, hot humid air from the Gulf of Mexico and cool dry air from the Rocky Mountains or Canada. "What we look for is a wall cloud, when you've got high humidity...and you've got a cold front and it shifts it can build a wall cloud high in the air like at 20,000 - 40,000 feet, and those you know are going to be a strong storm," King says. A wall cloud is a typical phenomenon located in a giant thunderstorm called that you are safe, atmospheric conditions are still ripe for another tornado to form. Stay indoors until an all clear is given by weather officials.

The safest place to be in the case of a tornado is roaring toward your house is in your basement. "If you have a stairway coming down into the basement, the best place is under those stairs," King advises. If you do not have a a "supercell" thunderstorm. A supercell is typically perceived as a tornado breeding ground, however only about 30% of supercells produce tornados, but if they do they can produce multiple tornados.

If a tornado is spotted in your area, a tornado warning will be issued via the National Weather Service on all public broadcast systems. "These people know what is going on and you should pay close attention to what they are saying," King said Listen for roads and intersections for the current funnel location, also pay attention to the direction and speed the funnel is moving. Remember that just because a tornado is moving away from you doesn't mean basement, then go to the most interior room in your house and get low. Cover your head with something to protect you from flying debris. It's the flying debris that causes most deaths from tornados according to the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA).

As the tornado plows through things it picks up debris, and this debris then starts flying around and hitting things at hundreds of miles per hour and that is what kills people.

The devastation path caused by a tornado can be hundreds of feet wide and miles long. It can disrupt emergency response and local first responders so it is best to be prepared for ones own survival. King emphasizes, "People need to have a survival kit in their basement with them." According to King a survival kit should contain a three day water supply (one gallon per person in the home) and food (nonperishable), a manual can opener, a change of cloths and shoes, flashlight and batteries, radio and batteries, a first aid kit with antiseptic, blankets and what ever else you might need to sustain yourself for three days. King also suggests tools and medication go into a survival kit.

Help will come eventually, but until it does you need to be prepared and able to survive. King says, "People have the image that help is coming right away, but they forget the emergency workers: police, fire, medical people, myself...may be involved in [the tornado]. In the case of a tornado you are going to have debris in the road, you are going to have trees down and it may take a while to get help out."

Until the help arrives, King recommends that neighbors help neighbors by coordinating among themselves who is best suited to perform certain tasks. "That's where your first aid comes in...learn that and only do what you are trained to do and nothing further," says King Tornados can be a devastating experience, but with proper planning and information they are survivable.

fails? Have you gone to that extreme with the project?" asked Ken Webster.

Many people cited concerns about the high water table in the landfill area and the lack liability for the paper companies.

"It's a very bad site and there's no guarantees for anyone when something goes wrong. I will be up to the residents of Wisconsin to pay to clean it up," said Laura Manthe in an interview following the hearing.

Sisters Olivia, age 12, and Lauren Hoefl, age 16, spoke as representatives of their generation.

"I have my whole life ahead of me and I don't want to be responsible for cleaning up this mess," Lauren stated at the hearing.

"I know this waste is very harmful and it can do extreme damage," said Olivia.

Lori Webster spoke of her concerns for her children and grandchildren living on her property near the landfill.

"I hope my family will raise their children there, but I want it to be safe and there's no guarantee and to me that's very frightening," she testified.

While the hearing was attended by members of the Oneida Business Committee (OBC), Lori expressed disappointment that a statement from the Oneida Nation wasn't presented at that time.

"I feel that it needed to be said by the tribe what our stand is on the issue. They need to have a voice and I want to know what our voice is," she said after the hearing.

OBC Chairman Gerald Danforth did speak but only to convey a message from Dr. Steven Kagan who was unable to stay for the meeting.

"Should PCB's be placed at this site or in close proximity to residential areas? Dr. Kagan says no, they should not," relayed Danforth.

Georgia-Pacific and state officials presented an overview of the plan at the beginning of the meeting, but time ran out for the question and answer session.

The PCB's would be placed in Cell 13 of the landfill. It would have a base liner made up of non-woven geotextiles, hard plastic sheets, clay liners, four feet of compacted clay and 10 to 16 feet of ash base to contain the material.

Many people supported sending the contaminated soil to a site in the Town of Holland which has a much thicker layer of clay.

Oneida Nation Opposes Modification of Landfill to Allow PCBs

Oneida Nation Official Statement
June 6, 2006

The Oneida Nation has taken formal action to oppose disposal of PCB contaminated waste in the Georgia Pacific landfill. Even though this site had been used as a landfill since 1964, in its natural state it is a wetlands, and is now surrounded by residential and commercial property. Under current state and federal laws the geologic conditions at this site would rule out licensing as a solid waste landfill, much less a toxic waste site. Oneida is urging the state and other interested parties to pursue other viable alternatives for toxic waste disposal.

The Government of the Oneida nation feels an obligation to its citizens and neighbors to protect and preserve the environment for future generations. For decades the Nation had worked very hard, along with other concerned parties to protect and restore the natural resources that we all value. Recent messages opposing the dumping of PCB contaminants at this site coming from local government officials and community members, mirror many of our concerns.

The Oneida Nation has a commendable track record of environmental preservation, restoration and education. As an injured party within the Fox River cleanup, the Nation is entitled to restoration support that will be dedicated to the development of a lake on the reservation. The Nation's efforts to restore wetlands and waterways, coupled with cooperative initiatives with local governments, the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources, and federal agencies, have dramatically improved the local ecological balance. We can't afford to regress from those accomplishments.

The Oneida Nation is committed to engaging with its neighbors and appropriate state and federal agencies to achieve a safe and timely solution to this challenge. By supporting the Fox River cleanup and calling for responsible and comparable assessment of the alternatives for toxic disposal, our region will be enhanced and the future health and well-being of subsequent generations will be more secure.

Senate schedules debate, cloture vote on Akaka bill

By The Associated Press

The U.S. Senate moved a step closer to a vote on the bill to grant federal recognition to Native Hawaiians, scheduling three hours of debate Wednesday and a vote Thursday on whether to take the bill to the Senate floor.

The bill needs the votes of 60 senators to open the way for full Senate consideration.

Late Tuesday, Senate Majority Whip Mitch McConnell filed a petition for a cloture vote on the so-called Akaka bill, which would set up some kind of Native Hawaiian governing body in Hawaii.

The vote would set the stage for possible further debate and a vote on the bill itself. Cloture ends the possibility that opponents could filibuster the bill and prevent a vote.

McConnell, at the same time, filed for a cloture vote on the Estate Tax, also known as the "death tax" Debate on that would precede consideration of cloture for the Akaka bill.

Senate Democrats, led by Sen. Daniel Akaka, D-Hawaii, appear to have near unanimous support for the Akaka bill, but several Republicans oppose it as an unconstitutional, race-based plan. Senate Republicans, on the other hand, support permanent repeal of the estate tax, also known as the "death tax," even though they appear to lack enough support to get past Democrats' objections.

Both issues are scheduled to be debated Wednesday afternoon with cloture votes on Thursday.

If the cloture vote succeeds, passage of either bill would require only a simple majority. While a cloture vote generally indicates support for a bill, it does not guarantee passage of any bill, because opponents sometimes vote for cloture and then vote against the bill itself after further debate.

"I am grateful to the Senate leadership for filing cloture on my bill," said Akaka, who has tried for years to bring the issue to a vote. "I look forward to the vote and am confident that many of my colleagues will support the motion to proceed."

The Trust - Enrollment Committee requests your approval for the development of a separation plan. The Plan would require General Tribal Council ratification. Since 1974, the functions of the Trust-Enrollment Committee have grown in complexity and scope. The Committee addresses issues on trust fund investment responsibilities with the Trust Department, and administers all Tribal enrollment responsibilities with the Enrollment Department. Each Department has its own focus separate from each. To better meet the growing needs of the Oneida Nation, the Trust Department, the Enrollment Department, and the Oneida Trust/Enrollment Committee recommend creating two (2) separate committees. The two Committees would still remain under the direct authority of the General Tribal Council.

I approve the development of a Plan to Separate the Oneida Trust/Enrollment Committee.

Supreme Court won't review Senecas' claim

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) ~ The U.S. Supreme Court Monday declined to review a lower court decision rejecting the Seneca Indian Nation's claim that New York's purchase of Grand Island in 1815 was illegal.

The nation's highest court refused without comment to review the case, which began in 1993 with a lawsuit seeking a return of the island, occupied by about 18,000 people, and several others in the Niagara River north of Buffalo.

The 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in September 2004 upheld a federal judge's findings that the state's purchase of the islands for $1,000 was proper.

While the legal options have been exhausted, an attorney for the Tonawanda Band of Senecas, who were plaintiffs along with the Seneca Indian Nation, said the tribe would continue to pursue the issue.

"The Tonawanda Seneca Nation isn't going to give up its efforts to find some measure of justice for the wrongful taking of its lands in the early 1800s," said Alex Page of the Indian Law Resource Center in Washington.

The lawsuit claimed that the state's purchase of the islands was not valid because it was not approved by Congress as required by a 1790 act. But the Court of Appeals said it appeared the state already held proper title to Grand Island before making the agreement with the Senecas, meaning any deficiencies in that transaction were moot.

Legislative Review

Vice-Chairwoman's Corner...

Vice-Chairwoman

ning and strategizing, not just talking. While no one wants to see a pandemic, all indications by the experts that be, say the likelihood is very real. Tribes are being encouraged to participate in the planning on a State level. The funding requirements for the State actually require for the Tribes to be included in this phase in order for the State to receive federal funding, so that is one major step in the right direction. The challenge to this that is a little worrisome, is the complex coordination that needs to take place to arrive at a truly workable plan. Oneida has been working on an emergency response plan as a result of Hurricane Katrina and the efforts from FEMA for better preparedness. The work on a Pandemic Plan will be a part of this overall plan. We have a group of staff whom I know are more than capable of putting these plans together.

The Tribe recently was made aware of a proposal to take the toxic waste removed from the Fox River and place it in a cell on the former Ft. Howard site, commonly referred to as the sludge ponds. The State DNR, working with Georgia Pacific, is supportive of this proposal. However, we feel a further analysis needs to occur and a review of appropriate regulations. The Oneida Tribe will formally state our opposition to this project and request the further analysis to be completed prior to a final determination by the DNR.

It's summertime, and the potential for projects to move forward is extremely likely. One that has been on the drawing board already for some time is the Packerland One Stop, a new facility to be located on the corner of Packerland and Waube Lane. As of discussions to this point, a temporary delay to construction will occur in order to allow parties to further discuss development possibilities near that location.

Another project is the new Townhouses to be built on the frontage road off of West Mason Street in Green Bay. It is my understanding some of these units may be made available for ownership. Anyone interested should talk to the Oneida Land Office for applications.

Land Claims continues to take up a lot of the Committee's time. We are back to our regular updates and I sincerely hope we have progress to report to the Community. However, the politics in New York leave me with a more pessimistic attitude. A lot is happening right now and mostly it involves attorneys trying to figure out how best to use the recent decisions to the favor of their clients. We are in the mix to make sure these interpretations are not made to the detriment of the Oneida Tribe.

Finally, with summer arriving, we also have the graduating Class of '06 to congratulate on their successful completion of their education. We hope serious consideration will be given to further those efforts but whatever you decide to do we wish you luck.

Letter, Opinion...

Good fences make good neighbors

First let's make it clear as to whose cattle you're talking about. I guess you could say that the cattle belong to the Oneida Tribe. I do believe those cattle are located on the Tsyunhehkwaw site in Oneida. Ken, if you have received a substantial amount in damages. I suggest that you send an itemized bill to Jeff Metoxen the manager of that department. I understand that the cattle have been on your property at least five times. There is an old saying that good fences make good neighbors. I know how it is when a buffalo or steer tries to escape. I'm sure that this issue will be resolved and taken care of.

Legislative Update

Greetings Oneida Nation, this time of the season brings great joy in seeing Mother Earth's colorful transformation from winter season into spring and also the time of year we prepare for the planting season.

Councilwoman
Melinda Danforth

It's also the time of year for honoring and acknowledging the accomplishments of all our Oneida graduates who've completed educational milestones beginning from Head start, 8th grade, high school, and college. Congratulations on your accomplishments and continue to reach for all of your dreams!

I have always been a strong proponent of higher education and continuous learning and most recently I had the opportunity to expand my own learning about a very important life lesson—the consequences of drinking and driving. "Every 15 Minutes" was a lesson presented to the Oneida Nation High School students. The title "Every 15 Minutes" comes from the alarming statistic that every 15 minutes someone in the United States dies of an alcohol related traffic collision. High School students were recruited to role play as characters in a car crash scene caused by drinking and driving. An actual scene was laid out in front of the Norbert Hill Center with actual damaged cars, Oneida police, firemen, county rescue, first responders and county rescue, and got to see first hand their fellow students role play as injured and deceased vehicle passengers. This was a very powerful lesson presented and coordinated by the Oneida Nation High School and C.A.P.S. (Community Analysis and Planning Strategies) grant. As a witness to watching the "re-enactment" unfold, I watched my sister, Twyla Danforth be treated at the scene as a passenger victim who became paralyzed as a result of the crash. It was very painful to again be faced with this reality of drinking and driving. These types of accidents have happened in our community and will continue to happen if we don't take a strong stand and educate our children about the effects of drugs, alcohol, gangs and all the other negative forces our children will face. It's our responsibility as leaders of the community, as parents, and educators to stay involved in all aspects of our children's lives and prepare them with knowledge and tools, so they make good decisions.

The high school students whom participated are too be commended for an excellent job. They were called upon to re-create one of life's most horrific experiences of being involved in a mock alcohol related crash that ultimately claimed the lives of two students. Special thanks to all the participants that made this learning experience possible: so to our Oneida Police Department, Oneida First Responders, Oneida Volunteer Fire Department, County Rescue, St. Vincents Hospital, Ryans Funeral Home, Joe Steven's Auto Salvage, Outagamie County Sheriff- Brad Gehring and Emergency Dispatch, Outagamie County DA, 911 caller- Luwasanahawi Danforth, Lifetouch National Studios, Radisson Hotel, Videographer-Ernie Stevens III, Oneida Juvenile Diversion, Oneida Trails Program, Oneida Behavioral Health, Oneida Singers, Bob Brown, Duck Creek Crossing Singers, Heather Hougard, the parents and families of the students, and lastly the Oneida Nation School Systems and CAPS Coordinators-Justine Souto and Tracy Metoxen. A video has been done on this project and I hope each community member takes the time to view this powerful message when the opportunity presents.

Along with keeping our youth healthy and traveling down the right path in life, I'd like to commend the following students for their outstanding athletic performances. Oneida Nation High School Senior, Jonas Hill, has been playing golf since he was five years old. Since then he has become a scratch golfer averaging 39.88 per nine holes.

Recently Hill participated in both sectional and regional competitions for ONHS and just missed the state competition by three strokes shooting an 83. Hill has made the top five in every competition he has entered this year.

Hill will also be participating in the Indigenous Games in Denver, Colorado on July 2nd through the 6th. These games are open to all persons indigenous to North America.

"It's gonna be a sweet little thing, we're gonna march into Mile High Stadium in a parade type thing," Hill said. Hill will be competing with other golfers from Wisconsin for Team Wisconsin.

Future aspirations include attending college this fall. He is hoping to get into Haskell Indian Nation College in Lawrence, Kansas on a golf scholarship. "I plan on golfing at college, maybe Haskell for two years, and then maybe going to KU or a bigger school and hopefully improve my game," said Hill about his future.

Mr. Baird is a 40-year veteran on the PGA tour. Mr. Baird retired from the tour in 1999. He has played golf with Legends such as Jack Nicholas, Arnold Palmer, Lee Trevino etc . . . He has also been instructed by the great David Leadbetter.

In addition to the 6 - 8-year-old program, Mr. Baird will be conducting a number of clinics. Friday, July 14, 06 at 10:00am for youth of all ages, Friday evening at 5:00pm for all instructors teaching or leading golf programs, Saturday, July 15, 06 at 9:00 a.m. for ALL golfers followed by lunch and a round of golf TBA.

This is an event you cannot afford to miss. Mr. Baird's interest in our community stems from his belief that there should be more Native American representation on the PGA tour. His focus is to assist our community to build a solid foundation for our youth to assist in reaching their fullest potential.

There will be NO FEE required to attend either of the clinics. Food will be provided. All Clinics will be held at the Hidden Valley Driving Range. If you have any questions, please don't hesitate to call Conrad at 920-869-1088.

Oneida Poker Room to send three to Las Vegas' WSOP

By Steven Gandy
Kalihwisaks

Oneida Casino's Poker Room, located in the Mason Street Casino, held its final satellite tournament on June 4th for the World Series of Poker (WSOP). This was the third and final chance to play in the satellite with the other tournaments held in January and April. The players who win the Oneida Satellites will all have the chance at the big money to be won in Las Vegas at the WSOP Main Event. In addition to the WSOP buy-in of $10,000 they will also receive three days at the Rio Hotel and Casino, air fair, $500 spending cash and show tickets for themselves and a companion. Oneida Casino Poker Room will be sending three luck winners to Las Vegas.

The 2006 World Series of Poker (WSOP) is set to begin on June 25th and slated to run through Aug. 10th. There are a number of events that will take place over the six week poker marathon, but there is none more intriguing or popular than the Main Event which is slated to begin on July 28th of this year. The Main Event is a $10,000 buy-in and should draw more than 6000 entrants this year. The game played will be no-limit Texas Hold'em, a type of poker widely regarded as the premier choice in poker for no-limit action as well as tournament style games. No-limit Hold'em is by far the most popular choice of poker game for casinos as it is a quick tempo game and fairly easy to learn.

"Texas Hold'em is our most popular game here in the Poker Room," said Shelly Schoen the Oneida Casino Poker Room Manager.

The 2005 WSOP drew a record 5619 entrants with a total prize pool of $52,818,610 with 7.5 million being paid out to the winner. 2006 is expected to be even bigger as the popularity of poker grows and on-line poker sites give more and more seats to non-professional poker players through satellites and super-satellites. Schoen says, "On-line Poker has created a new base of customers for our poker room, they learn it on-line and want a to see what a real game is like, so they come here."

A satellite is a tournament style game played with a lower buy-in than the event one is trying to get to. The idea is to win a seat by out-playing other opponents. A super satellite is basically the same thing except one needs to win more than one tournament to get to a main event. For example, the WSOP main event is $10,000 to enter, a satellite for that event might be a single table tournament (ten players) who will all buy in for $1000.00 and the winner takes all (10 x 1,000 = 10,000) to the main event. A super satellite for that might be a single table tournament with a $100 buy in and the winner takes all (10 x 100 = 1000) to the satellite event. "We're giving our players a chance they may other wise not have, a chance to play in the Main Event at the WSOP, it's a good promotion for them," Schoen said.

Satellites have proven to be popular way for many players to join the professional poker players in Las Vegas and try to win piece of the action, and for the past three years an amateur has won the Main Event. A professional poker player has not won the WSOP main event since Robert Varkonyi back in 2002. This year the winner may be someone sent by Oneida Casino Poker Room.

Every Fifteen Minutes...

The drunk driver, played by Roland Christjohn, is being given a field sobriety test by two officers from the Oneida Police Department. ONHS Students and community members were able to both watch and listen to OPD officers while the test was being administered. After the test, Christjohn was arrested, handcuffed and then placed in the back of an OPD squad car.

By Joe Christjohn
ONHS Junior

I'm sure that most of the high school saw what happened these past two days. Tuesday and Wednesday there was a mock car crash and that happened fifteen minutes before death came into our school and took a couple of our students and they died in that car accident.

But I was kind of amazed when they pulled that blue tarp off the cars and then my friend Eddie Metoxen opened the door and fell out of the car.

And then I looked at the other car and the was my other friend Debbie Santiago. She was laying outside of the windshield that looked kind of real with all of the blood going down the side of the car. And then my brother Roland, started out of the car and then he was staggering toward the other side by Debbie and tried to wake her up but she was dead on the scene. Like I said before, that looked very graphic. Imagine if that was real. That would be really tragic if both of my friends died. I would be very disappointed at my brother for driving while intoxicated. And for driving he went to jail for doing what he did. But I am glad that they did that because people should know when not to drink and drive. They are taking the life of themselves and maybe someone else. So, if you had watched what happened these past two days, you would know what happens when you drink and drive with friends because it causes nothing but pain.

X-Men, The Last Stand

By Scott Lynk
ONHS senior

If you like action and special effects, then this movie is for you. If you just want to see a movie that's worth $8.75, then this movie is not for you.

In X-Men, The Last Stand, it's pretty much the same from the first movie to the third. You still have the good mutants, the bad mutants, a few new mutants, but the story was just boring and the movie was longer than most, making it even worse.

Yes, there are some big-name actors who star in the film like Patrick Stewart from Star Trek; Halle Berry from... well, it's Halle Berry; and the guy who played Frazier - what's his name.

If you're a fan or if you've heard this movie was good, then by all means go see it. I don't rate movies on how good or bad they are, I rate them on whether or not I get my money's worth. On that basis, I give X-Men, The Last Stand 2 stars.

My Scoop

Too much racism in America

By Stakwas Danforth
ONHS Senior

Racism affects so many people around the world, especially people in the United States.

Unfortunately, I think the U.S. has the most racism. It's not a good thing at all and it puts so many people down.

Yes, racism has happened to me so many times. It has happened mostly in public schools from students and teachers. There's not much I could do about it besides get into fights, but that wouldn't make things better. If I said something to teachers, they wouldn't seem to care at all because many of them seem to be racist themselves.

I can honestly say that I have never been racist to anyone, because I know how it feels. It really makes you mad.

I hope that it won't be around in later generations, but I think it most likely will. I don't think racism will really ever stop because there are so many messed up people around this world.

Softball Season ends on a damp, sad note

Darrell Skenandore
ONHS Junior and Thunderhawk Times second semester editor

The girls softball team did not have a great season, definitely not as good a season as they wanted.

They lost all of their games by the "ten run rule." But their season was also hurt by the wet weather. They only had two games, because the rest were were rained out in early May. Their last game, set for May 17, was also canceled due to rain.

ONHS only has two spring sports that an athlete can go to state in - track and golf. The baseball and softball teams cannot go to state because they are "club" sports. Baseball season was cancelled early in the season because of poor grades. But the girls have played through

Boiling down ideas for new sugar shack

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks

It takes 43 gallons of sap to make one gallon of maple syrup. Architect Chris Cornelius is boiling down hundreds of ideas from students at the Oneida Nation Elementary school (ONES) and the community to make one small building.

"Our job is to help design the maple sugar shack and to get input from the students," said Cornelius of Studio Indigenous, LLC from Milwaukee.

Cornelius met with students Thursday, June 1st to get ideas and look at posters created by the children.

"How did you decide on the shape of it?" he asked eighth-graders Maria Metoxen, Shanica Hill and Loyni Stevens who won the poster contest.

"We thought it was cool looking, on accident, really," said Stevens of her illustration of a six-sided-building.

The sugar shack is being built with help from Environmental Health and Safety and the Conservation Department to replace a building that was destroyed by an arson fire two years ago.

The fire and vandalism is still fresh in the students' minds as heavy doors and security cameras are prominent in their designs.

"We have, like, bulletproof windows and metal doors," said sixth-grader Haley Hill of her poster.

The sugar shack will be made of cordwood, an environmentally friendly if labor intensive building method.

Middle school students have been stripping bark from 10" softwood logs which will season for a year. Next spring, a foundation and roof will be built and the students will begin stacking the logs for the walls of the 16 by 32 foot building.

"The kids will be mixing the mortar by hand with a wheelbarrow and garden hose," said Laura Manthe of the Environmental Board.

Once completed, the building will be more fire resistant than the previous sugar shack. The thick walls will also act as an insulating barrier against the elements. There's even an advantage to the labor involved in putting the structure up.

For a typical building "you would have to have a hard hat and you would have to be an employee. Kids would not be allowed to go near," said

Manthe.

With cordwood construction, students and community members can participate in various stages of the building process. It's hoped that student and community involvement will create a sense of ownership.

"Even though it's small, it has the ability to be part of the school, part of the community. And the students having an input in it is what makes it exciting for me," said Cornelius.

Once completed, the building will be available to the public year round for picnics, as a warming shelter in the winter and as an example of an alternative building method.

"It will be bigger than just the small sugar shack. It's going to be a very big small building," said Manthe.

year loan it acquired that was backed by future revenue from its casino, Phillippe said.

It was important for the tribe to pay off the mortgage and "honor our debt," he said.

But the tribe had approached BHP about making a donation to help the tribe, given the tribe's long and costly legal fight against the mine, when the mining company offered the trust, with no strings attached, Phillippe said.

"They are not maintaining mineral rights or anything. We own it all," he said.

The offer left tribal leaders "flabbergasted," he said.

"They decided, I think, it might be good publicity to show they were helping out this tribe that actually won the war," Phillippe said. "We fought tooth and nail on this for 28 years."

He added, "They have been unbelievably forthcoming with us, working with us on putting together the trust agreement. Good press is always worth money to these mining companies."

BHP was the last of a string of mining companies to own the land, including Exxon Coal and Minerals Co. of Houston.

The Madison Community Foundation has been made the trustee of the $8 million endowment, which the tribe being the sole beneficiary of its annual $400,000 to $600,000 earnings, Phillippe said.

The money can only be used for certain things, such as education or environmental projects, the tribal leader said.

"It is not going to be used for industry building or for gaming," he said. "This is strictly for the people of the community."

Gibson Pierce of Toronto, BHP's project director for closed mining, declined comment Tuesday because of a planned ceremony Wednesday at the tribe's bingo hall regarding the mine mortgage.

"We are actually on our way up there right now," Pierce said.

Tracey Whitehead, a BHP spokeswoman in London, also declined comment.

The Crandon mine had been disputed for years after the minerals were discovered in 1976 in a deposit described as one of the 10 largest ore bodies of its type in North America.

In 1994, Exxon and Rio Algom Ltd. of Toronto applied for state permits to mine 55 million tons of mostly zinc and copper ore.

The regulatory review was expected to take about three years.

But a study by the state Department of Natural Resources never reached the point of recommending whether the project could be done without harming the environment, in part because new owners kept getting involved.

Exxon eventually sold out its interest to Rio Algom, which sold out to BHP.

In September 2002, BHP decided to close its Nicolet Minerals office in Crandon and sell the mine project to pursue more profitable ventures, leading to the sale to Northern Resources.

Over the years, the DNR billed the mining companies about $7 million to pay for the review, officials said in 2003.

Community Members needed... To serve on Lake Board

Members will help guide the planning, design, and creation of a 20+-acre lake on the Reservation. The purpose of the Board is to provide both a cultural and community perspective for the project. Meetings will be called during various phases of the project.
