

Wisconsin ranks second in revenue from Indian casinos

Milwaukee, Wis. - The state of Wisconsin will lead all other states in Indian casino revenues paid to them except for the state of Connecticut. The $118 million payments to the state of Wisconsin by the eleven casinos in the state puts the Badger State second among the twenty-two states that have Indian gaming according to a study done by the Milwaukee Journal Sentinel.

Connecticut will receive $400 million this year from their two Indian casinos. Foxwoods Casino and Mohegan Sun Casino are two of the largest casinos in the world.

Oneida Legislative Affairs Director, Kevin Cornelius, said that the Oneida Tribe realizes the significance of the sizable payments the tribes are sending the state and is surprised that the Republican legislature is still balking at the idea of new compact agreements.

"The economic impact and payment that we (the eleven Wisconsin tribes) have agreed to, far outweighs any amount that other state's tribes pay with the exception of

Operation Oneida Cares

Ceremony recognizes men and women in armed forces, Oneida veterans

Tears were shed, prayers were spoken as "Operation Oneida Cares" held an evening committed to patriotism, family and community unity.

Recognizing the commitment and valor of Oneida citizens in the armed forces, and paying tribute to their veterans, approximately 50 members of the Oneida Tribe gathered on April 16 to offer their support in the current war conflict, "Operation Iraqi Freedom."

A "Wall of Armed Forces" was shared with everyone in attendance, displaying photos of 21 names of Oneida citizens currently serving their country. A poster of Pfc. Lori Piestewa, a Hopi woman who lost her life in combat in Iraq, was also pictured. Piestewa is believed to be the first Native American woman enlisted in the armed forces to die in combat in defense of her country.

The Oneida Nation elementary school is holding a penny drive to raise money for the family of Lori Piestewa.

Vice-Chairwoman Kathy Hughes said the Oneida Nation, like any other nation, share in praying for the men and women, and families who sacrificed to "keep our land free."

"The freedom we enjoy today," said Hughes, "to gather and express our spirituality individually is possible because of our troops fighting to protect our land."

Hughes, an Army veteran, said the Oneida Nation is extremely proud of their history in serving "this great nation" and that Oneida men and women have fought to defend "this country in every conflict since the Revolutionary War.

"Our warriors, both men and women, have defended our homeland for centuries."

Tribal leaders criticize Republican party for "stereotyped" cartoon

By Keith Skenandore

MADISON, Wis. (AP) - Tribal leaders reacted with anger and indignation at the lack of sensitivity and ignorance of the Republican Party in featuring a stereotyped Indian throwing a tomahawk at the Wisconsin Taxpayers on their website with the voice-over, "As taxpayers, we got scalped."

In a press release issued by the United Tribe of Wisconsin, Lewis Taylor, St. Croix tribal leader, said

"Native Americans are taxpayers too. We should not be the subject of racist political cartoons sponsored by the Republican party. The Wisconsin Constitution opens the declaration of rights with the following, All people are born equally, free and independent, and have certain inherent rights, governments are instituted, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed."

Taylor continued, "The Republican lawmakers have a responsibility to uphold the constitution and represent all the people in this state. It is clear the Republican guard does not feel the Native Americans are citizens that deserve their representation honorably."

Forest County Potawatomi Attorney General Jeff Crawford initially accused the state Republican Party Tuesday of putting a "racist and derogatory" cartoon on a Web site the party created to

Hundreds mourn, honor Pfc Lori Piestewa

Associated Press

TUBA CITY, Ariz. (AP) - Hundreds of mourners stood and cheered Saturday when Arizona Gov. Janet Napolitano called for a Phoenix mountain to be renamed after Pfc. Lori Piestewa, the first American Indian woman in the U.S. military known to have been killed in combat.

"It's left to us to make sense of her loss and carry on the legacy she left behind," Napolitano said at a memorial service held in this Navajo Reservation community's high school gymnasium.

One way to do that, Napolitano said, is to rename a Phoenix mountain known as Squaw Peak to Piestewa Peak and also rename State Route 51 in Phoenix, now called the Squaw Peak Freeway, after Piestewa.

American Indian groups have tried for years to change those names, saying the term "squaw" is offensive.

Piestewa (pronounced py-ESS-tuh-wah) was among nine members of the Army's 507th Maintenance Company, based at Fort Bliss in Texas, killed in an ambush near Nasiriyah last month. Palestine, W.Va., native Pfc. Jessica Lynch, another member of the 507th and Piestewa's roommate, was rescued from an Iraqi hospital and returned to the United States on Saturday.

vicewoman killed in the Iraq war, was a member of the Hopi Tribe, whose reservation is near Tuba City. She was a 23-year-old single mother raising a 4-year-old boy and a 3-year-old girl in Tuba City. Piestewa's son and daughter attended the ceremony with her parents, Percy and Terry Piestewa.

Piestewa was buried Saturday morning on the Hopi Reservation, her brother Wayland told the crowd of 2,000. He offered no other details.

"It was very beautiful. It was very peaceful," he said.

The four-hour public ceremony was at Tuba City High School, which Lori attended. On a stage surrounded by flowers, speaker after speaker honored Piestewa with songs, poems and stories. Some read e-mails sent to the family.

Representatives of American Indian tribes from around the Southwest read statements of support. Above the speakers, slides showed Piestewa in high school and with friends. A picture of Piestewa and Lynch carried the caption, "Warriors Forever."

"I am so happy to have known her," family friend Christine Butler said. "Every time she would come home, she wouldn't sit with us. She would be outside jumping on the trampoline."

"The warrior may have passed on the baton, but we have to pick up and carry that baton," said American Indian recording artist Michael Jeans, who sang "America the Beautiful."

Wayland Piestewa sent best wishes from his family to Lynch, who is recovering from her wounds at Walter Reed Army Medical Center in Maryland, and invited her to visit.

"We pray that she one day will come out so we can share the love that Lori gave us with her," he said.

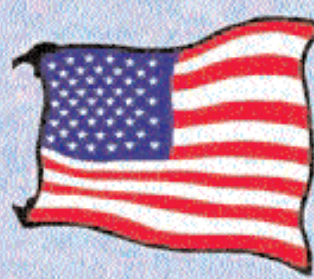

The ceremony began with a performance by a group of Aztec dancers, honoring Piestewa's mother's Mexican ancestry.

The crowd erupted, standing, cheering and whistling, when Napolitano said she would petition the Legislature to rename the mountain and freeway to honor Piestewa.

The Arizona State Board on Geographic and Historic Names normally approves such changes. State and federal policies on geographic titles say there must be a five-year waiting period after a person's death before the name can be used.

The board's chairman, Tim J. Norton, has said he supports the waiting period in this case. On Friday, Napolitano said Norton should resign his volunteer post if he refuses to consider the change.

Piestewa was one of the very few American Indian women in the armed forces. Hopi officials said that 56 Hopis are serving in the U.S. military, 48 of them in Iraq.

In Memory of Lori Piestewa

We had lost a Native Sister in the Operation Freedom of Iraq. We will miss her dearly. Please pray for her son (4 years old) and daughter (3 years old) and her family. She will be greatly missed in Arizona. ... She was a tough cookie ... and She did her best ... at everything. She was a true LADY WARRIOR! She will be alive in our memories and heart forever.

From Page 1/Operation Oneida Cares rallies community in support of troops, Oneida veteran Father Dewey Silas of the Oneida Episcopal Church offered a prayer and gave praise to the men and women currently serving in the armed forces.

"Because of these brave and courageous warriors we are proud to say, 'We are Americans,'" said Silas.

He recognized those who gave the ultimate - their life - so we could live in a free country.

"We of the Oneida Nation are proud to say that we are Americans."

Fr. Silas also spoke of sister warrior Lori Piestewa, who, he said, "gave her life for all of us, as Jesus Christ gave his life, at Calgary."

Oneida elder Lloyd Schuyler and Leander Danforth, performed a tobacco burning ceremony for prayers of the men and women in the armed forces.

Resolution 4-2-03-A, which supports the armed forces participation in "Operation Iraqi Freedom" was read by Councilman Vince DeLaRosa.

Councilman Paul Ninham read the list of men and women currently serving in the armed forces, a total of 26 in all. Ninham said the list was inclusive and encouraged community members to bring names forward as "Operation Oneida Cares" continues.

A proclamation authored by veteran Loretta V. Metoxen, that was adopted earlier that morning by the Oneida Business Committee, was read by Councilwoman Trish King.

The proclamation, entitled, "To the family of Lori Piestewa and the Hopi Nation from the Oneida Nation," stated the Oneidas, in the ceremonies given to them in ancient times, consoled the families of those who passed on to the Spirit World.

"We, the Oneida Nation of Wisconsin, now condole the family of Lori Piestewa and the Hopi Nation in this time when she gave her life, as a young woman, for us and all the people of the United States so that we may be safe and that we can continue to practice our freedoms," read King. "We honor her memory today and every day for her supreme sacrifice."

King further read, "We, the Oneida People, recognize that we all have a place, a purpose, and responsibilities to carry out here on Mother Earth. We also recognize that Lori Piestewa carried out her responsibilities to the fullest, and we, the Oneida People, are profoundly grateful to her and her family."

Treasurer Mercie Danforth read a transcript of the memorial service for Piestewa that was sent on the Internet. Danforth read from the transcript that Lori's son,

The ceremony included words of encouragement to all families with loved ones serving in the Armed Forces and was capped off with a gun salute and playing of "Taps" to honor all current service people and veterans.

Brandon, spoke out and said, "I want my mommy, but she has to rest in peace."

Powerful and moving words. More words of the same kind continued as Councilman Curtis Danforth followed with the reading of the origin of taps.

Councilman Danforth read how during the Civil War, a union soldier, Captain Ellicombe crawled to save a stricken man, not knowing if the man was a union or Confederate soldier. When he reached the stricken soldier, the Captain discovered it was his son who enlisted in the confederate army without his father knowing. Wanting a military burial for his son who studied music in the South, the Captain's request was only partially granted. He was given one musician.

"The Captain chose a bugler," read Danforth. "He asked the bugler to play a series of musical notes he had found on a piece of paper in the pocket of the dead youth's uniform. The wish was granted.

"The haunting melody, we now know as 'Taps'...used at military funerals was born."

Before "Taps" was played by Don Charnon, a 21-gun salute was fired with the echoes of the gun fire heard over the silence of those at the ceremony in the Norbert Hill Center.

Once again, tears were shed.

The tears, patriotism, community unity, and prayers were a bond between family members waiting to hear from a loved one serving in the armed forces. A bond between community members, Oneida veterans and the men and women in the armed forces.

"Our community support strengthens our message to the Creator for the safety of our troops all over the world," said Hughes.

Waste transfer station to open before trial

Oneida, Wis. - The Brown County waste-transfer station will be handling garbage well before a legal challenge from the village of Hobart reaches the courtroom.

Brown County Port and Solid Waste Director Chuck Larscheid said the transfer site should be ready to operate by early May, about the same time that the county closes its east landfill in Ledgeview.

Meanwhile, the legal controversy over the waste-transfer station will go to trial on Aug. 11.

The waste-transfer station is being built near the closed west landfill on Wisconsin 54 and is directly across from the Oneida Nation Environmental Department. The station is also located within the Oneida Reservation boundaries.

The village of Hobart filed a lawsuit in October, contending that Brown County government failed to obtain building permits from the village and that the construction violates an agricultural zoning ordinance.

Construction of the transfer station began in early October despite repeated objections by residents of both Hobart and Oneida to the project.

Oneida Councilman Paul Ninham said he was extremely disturbed by the fact that the county would consider using the landfill with the pending trial.

"We, along with the village of Hobart, are in opposition of the waste transfer station. I am extremely disappointed that the county would go ahead and use the facility with a pending lawsuit unsettled," Ninham said.

The county intends to use the station to consolidate and transport garbage to landfills in Winnebago, Outagamie and Brown counties over the next 25 years.

The county hoped in 2001 to put the waste-transfer station on a 12.8-acre parcel less than a half-mile south of the existing Materials Recycling Facility at South Broadway and Hansen Road in Ashwaubenon. That proposal faced opposition from area residents and never materialized.

Then early last year, the Hobart Village Board approved the project at the old West Landfill on Wisconsin 54 and entered into an agreement with the county, but it reversed its decision in September after opposition from area residents mounted. The Brown County Board approved continuation of the construction, however.

The former dump site was acted on by the county in the 1970's. At that time the County Board took action promising that once the dump was closed (after twenty years of operation), it would be made a park.

"With the recent decision of the County's Solid Waste Committee, the park that was promised by the county will instead become a major operation of over two-hundred trucks per day," stated the tribe. "This is a radical departure from what had been promised, and is a development that raises serious public safety and environmental concerns."

The village and the county have been ordered to numerous mediation sessions over the last few months, but the case will go to trial despite them.

Survey says gaming helps economy in Green Bay area

By Keith Skenandore

Kalihwisaks

The Oneida Nation released a survey which says a majority of residents living in part of Northeastern Wisconsin believes that Oneida Bingo & Casino has helped economic development in the Green Bay area.

Seventy-one percent of the residents believe that Oneida gaming has helped develop more business and create jobs in Green Bay for both the Indian population and the rest of the community. A total of 19 percent believe Oneida gaming has hurt businesses.

"It shows that the Oneida community is well-liked in the community and that they provide an economic boost to the community," said Gene Ulm, a representative from Public Opinion Strategies, which conducted the survey.

Summary and analysis of the survey was based on 600 likely voters in Wisconsin Senate Districts 2 and 30 which include Brown, Outagamie and Oconto counties on April 6 and 7. Margin of error for the survey is plus or minus four percent.

Kevin Cornelius, director of legislative affairs, said there is a movement in the population in the area that is more supportive of the Oneida Nation based on a similar survey conducted last year.

"The population, as far as in our area, when it comes to the lawsuit the challenges the compact," said Cornelius, "the people are against the legislature suing the tribe against compacts.

Survey results indicated that 52 percent strongly or somewhat opposed to the state legislature spending tens of thousands of dollars of taxpayers dollars challenging Gov. Doyle's right to renegotiate gaming compacts. Strong support or somewhat supportive of the state legislature resulted in 34 percent, with 15 percent not knowing.

"They would rather see the compact extended then services cut or taxes raised," said Cornelius.

He said 39 percent would rather see the gaming compacts extended, compared to 36 percent who preferred spending cuts and nine percent for raising taxes. Seventeen percent did not know.

As for the gambling laws in Wisconsin, 42 percent say they are about right or not strict enough. Twelve percent said they were too strict, with 3 percent not knowing.

The Oneida Nation organization received a strong favorable impression from respondents, 60 percent, while Oneida Bingo and Casino was 51 percent favorable, compared to 46 percent favorable to Indian gaming and casinos.

Survey summary noted that the local voters favorably distinguish Oneida gaming activities from their more polarized view of Indian gaming activities in general.

Gov. Doyle and the state legislature received a lower approval than the Oneida Nation. Fifty-five percent approve of the job Gov. Doyle and the state legislature is doing.

Oneida gaming accounts for 3,442 jobs in the state, according to a 2001 survey conducted by Michael Evans, an economist based in Boca Raton, Fla. The average wage for an Oneida Casino worker was $27,928 including wages, salaries and tips and $36,528 including fringe benefits. More than half of those employees are nontribal citizens.

The Oneida Tribe of Indians and Doyle haven't signed a compact but have a tentative agreement that contains no expiration date, allows around-the-clock operation of games, removes state-imposed betting restrictions and permits casino table games.

Vice-Chairwoman said at a gaming compact update meeting, where the survey results were released to the membership, that Oneida tribal officials were to meet with Gov. Doyle on April 17 and that they hoped to be nearer to a compact renewal agreement.

Political conduit works for the tribe

By Phil Wisneski

Kalihwisaks

Getting your voice heard in the state capitol is a pretty daunting task. No matter what an individual may do, he or she may be pushed aside by the “more important issues” in Madison. This was evident as current legislation was trying to get passed that would have affected gaming compacts. Many words fell on deaf ears in the state capitol. This could change if people that work for the Oneida Tribe take a stand and voice their opinion in unison on what is important to them and the nation. Oneida employees are invited to join the Oneida Nation Political Conduit (ONPC).

A political conduit combines monetary contributions of many individuals who share similar goals and interests. The conduit then channels the money collected from the individuals to political candidates selected by the conduit members who support the issues, goals and interests of the Oneida Tribe. This method uses the common phrase that there is strength in numbers. The collective support of the ONPC adds up to a very significant political force.

This force will help build relationships between the tribe and elected officials in the local arena as well as state wide. These relationships will help open up the lines of communication to help protect the tribe's interest and beliefs. Ultimately, these funds will help educate the local and state governments on who the Oneida are.

Currently in the month of April the ONPC is having a membership drive. The drive is designated to get more members in the ONPC. This past month the ONPC has held meetings to encourage employees to join and provide one, powerful voice for the Oneida Nation. Individuals attending the meetings are entered into a raffle that will take place at the end of the month. The winner of the raffle will win two tickets to the Weidner Center to see “Sam Bush”, Three Sisters buffet coupons, a basket of Tsyunhehkwa products and a stainless steel thermos. Also, all ONPC members are entered in a raffle for a framed Whitetails Unlimited Print, a limited edition silver coin set from the casino and other great prizes. Also during the month of April there is a member-get-a-member contest. The conduit member that signs up the most new members for the month of April will receive a Packer Weekend. Included in the prize are two Packer tickets, stay at the Radisson, an autographed Mike Sherman football, an autographed photo of Tony Fischer and Sunday brunch for two at Three Sisters Restaurant. Second prize is two Packer tickets, an autographed photo of Tony Fischer and Sunday brunch for two at Three Sisters Restaurant.

The amount of money that an individual contributes to the ONCP is strictly up to them. There is no minimum or maximum limit. Whatever the individual wants to donate will be automatically deducted from their payroll check and deposited into the ONPC. This account is managed exclusively by the individual and they are the only person who decides if and when money can be taken out to donate to a certain political candidate. The conduit administrator may make suggestions by calling and asking if the individual would like to make a contribution to a certain candidate. In the end however, the individual will always have a final say on where his or her money will go. Also, all contributions can be removed from the conduit and returned to the employee at any time.

The Board of Trustees is made up of two Oneida employees: Crystal Holtz, Director of Advertising and Sandra Hayes, Director of Purchasing. Kevin Cornelius and Tana Archiquette of the Oneida Nation Legislative Affairs department communicate regularly with the conduit administrator, Michelle Hough of Tenuta-Hermes Corp. regarding the tribe's political interests. Tenuta-Hermes Corp. is Oneida's lobbying firm in Madison. For more information on the ONCP contact Michelle Hough at (608) 255-5522 or email her at michelle@tenuta-hermes.com. Other contacts are Crystal Cornelius in the Communications Department, Sandy Hayes in Purchasing, Tana Archiquette in Legislative Affairs and Kevin Cornelius, also in Legislative Affairs.

Connecticut. Yet we still receive criticism,” he said. “We are by far paying our fair share to have these new compacts as compared to other states,” he added.

Currently the Forest County Potawatomi tribe is the only tribe with a new gaming compact. According to the Milwaukee journal sentinel however, Administration Secretary Marc Marotta says that negotiations with the other ten tribes in the state are continuing and some deals will likely be announced later this week.

The payments to the states are rare occurrences in Indian country. Only seven states receive revenue sharing payments. Joining Connecticut and Wisconsin are California,

New York, New Mexico, Michigan and Arizona. Other states have agreements that are small fees to police casinos or are payments that are directly paid to local communities in the surrounding area. States with such agreements include North Carolina and Oregon.

Some states are not so fortunate and receive no revenue sharing from Indian gaming. States like Minnesota, Iowa, Kansas, Colorado and Oklahoma fall into this category.

Gov. Jim Doyle has been expecting to use the $237 million in compact payments to help balance the state's next budget. The money is earmarked to help ease the huge deficit that the state is now facing.

Minnesota, as stated above does not receive revenue sharing from their eleven tribal casinos, has permanent gaming agreements. These agreements were done dating back to 1990. The newfound success of Indian casinos has caused many states to look at the money greedily, said John McCarthy, executive director of the Minnesota Gaming Association.

“Now people think everybody should get a piece of it,” McCarthy said. “These are not businesses in the normal sense. These are governments,” Wisconsin tribes should not be expected to make major new payments to the state based on comparisons with Connecticut or elsewhere, McCarthy said.

Offering cremation and offering on-site cremation are two entirely different options.

When other funeral homes say they offer cremation, they use other facilities... sometimes far away. We, on the other hand, don't have to so much as leave the front door. Our on-site crematory is just one way we show that closeness counts.

State

Company buys firm that owns Crandon mine site

The Associated Press

WAUSAU, Wis. (AP) - The new owners of a proposed underground zinc and copper mining site in northern Wisconsin pledge to forge ahead with the project and hope to have the needed operating permits within 21/2 years.

Northern Wisconsin Resource Group LLC bought Nicolet Minerals Co. and its rights to 4,850 acres, including the mine site south of Crandon, company owner Gordon P. Connor said Friday.

"It is a good project," he said. "It can be done in a manner that is great for Wisconsin and northern Wisconsin. ... We are going to push as hard as we can to get this permitting done. They have been dilly-dallying around with this thing for a long time."

The company did not disclose a sale price.

Nicolet Minerals, a subsidiary of BHP Billiton of Melbourne, Australia, has been seeking the needed state, federal and local permits to mine 55 million tons of ore from a site just south of Crandon since 1994.

The mining project has been for sale since September 2002. Several companies have owned the site since minerals were discovered there in the 1970s.

Connor, whose family also operates Nicolet Hardwood Corp. of Laona, said he has been interested in buying the mining project for 15 years.

Critics have long contended the project was too risky because it would harm the environment. Supporters say the mining can be done safely and would create badly needed jobs in Forest County.

Connor said the company will review the project but probably won't change it significantly. The mine can generate 200 jobs in Forest County, he said.

"We want to see the area participate economically in the 21st century," he said. "We are concerned about the environment. We live here. We are not going to foul our own nest."

Dale Alberts, a spokesman for Nicolet Minerals, said he will continue as part of the project's management group. The permitting process will continue as is because Nicolet Minerals is not changing, he said.

But Gov. Jim Doyle said he believes the new company may have to start from scratch in the permitting process with the state Department of Natural Resources.

"What this means, I think, it's really too early to tell," Doyle said in Madison. "I've said all along my great preference is there not be a mine there. I think it's better for the economic health of the state to make sure that we really protect the environment."

Nicolet Hardwood raises hardwood timber for its lumber and flooring business. It owns more than 30,000 acres in northern Wisconsin, much of it in Forest County, Connor said.

The Connor family is the lone investor in the mining project so far, but others have expressed an interest, including people from Wisconsin and other Midwestern states, Connor said.

Dave Wilson, president of the Crandon City Council, said the purchase caught him by surprise because many people thought the mining project was dead.

"I think it is good news because we have somebody who is going to see this through to the end," he said.

The Forest County Potawatomi American Indian tribe has been among the critics of the mining project. Tribal officials said the Connor family has no mining experience, and their company's financial capability was unknown.

"BHP Billiton is the world's largest mining company with net assets of $22.5 billion," tribal Attorney General Jeff Crawford said in a statement. "We do not understand how the world's largest mining company with all if its might cannot develop this mine but the Connor family is going to be able to safely extract minerals in this environmentally sensitive area at the headwaters of the Wolf River."

Dave Kunelius, DNR mining outreach coordinator, said the agency expects to tell the company soon it has all the necessary data. Once that happens, the DNR has four months to complete a draft environmental impact statement.

That would be followed by months of meetings and public hearings before a final decision is made, Kunelius said.

The history of a proposed mine dates back to July 4, 1975, when drilling discovered an ore deposit in Forest County. The deposit is estimated to be 60 million tons of zinc, copper, lead, gold and silver ore.

Mining interests have since spent more than $145 million related to the project, according to company officials.

criticize Gov. Jim Doyle.

Republican Party spokesman Chris Lato said the cartoon was not meant to be disrespectful and was intended to point out the flaws in the agreement.

In response to complaints that it was derogatory, the state Republican Party dropped the cartoon Wednesday its Web site.

"We do not consider the cartoon to be offensive; it certainly wasn't our intent," Republican Party spokesman Chris Lato said. "If a few people were taken aback by that cartoon . . . we want to address those concerns."

Oneida Councilman Paul Ninham said he was floored by the derogatory cartoon.

"I was absolutely appalled," he said.

"I'm at a point where I need to start defending the Oneida people against racism by the Republicans. I can't sit by and let those racists comments continue to come forward by the Republican party."

Doyle spokesman Dan Leistikow did not immediately return a telephone message Tuesday to The Associated Press.

Doyle plans to use at least $200 million from compacts with the state's 11 tribes to help fix Wisconsin's $3.2 billion budget deficit for the two-year period that begins July 1.

The Potawatomi compact has no expiration date, allows the tribe to offer new games like craps and roulette and removes some restrictions on its casinos, including on the number of slot machines. In return, the tribe expects to pay the state an estimated $340 million over the next 10 years.

After Doyle announced compact agreements with the Potawatomi tribe and the Oneida Nation, lawmakers passed two bills giving Legislature final approval over compacts. Doyle vetoed them both. Republican lawmakers then challenged Doyle's authority to negotiate compacts in the state Supreme Court.

"Legislators should be working to balance the budget, not to trash the people who are helping to solve a problem that Indian tribal governments did not create," Crawford said in a statement released Tuesday.

"The Tribes of Wisconsin are not responsible for the States' budget deficit," stated Lac du Flambeau President Henry "Butch" St. Germain. "The Tribes of Wisconsin have offered financial assistance to the State through their gaming compacts. I am angered by the remarks and bigoted statements made recently in the media. It is very disturbing that people who have been voted into such leadership positions are making racist remarks. These representatives and senators are responsible for representing all citizens of the State regardless of their race. I think it's a sad day in Wisconsin history and its relationship with Native American citizens."

Greg Garvin, Ho-Chunk Nation Executive Administrative Officer, said, "Republicans have taken their ideological differences with the Governor into the realm of the KKK. The cartoon reflects ignorance and an open dislike of Native Americans. We are demonized again. Ironically, this is done at a time when we are offering to relieve taxpayers of paying $200 million in governmental costs. The Republican party needs to publicly apologize for this insult to the thousands of tax-paying Native American voters in this state and the buffalo who thought it up needs to resign. This is Trent Lott all over again. If this is the big tent the Republicans have for us, it looks like they want Native American's camping outside. Simply removing the offensive cartoon is not enough. The person or persons responsible should step down."

But Lato said the party stood by the cartoon and insisted there was nothing racist in its content.

"The point of the cartoon is to deliver a really important message in a lighthearted manner," Lato said.

Republicans who control the state Legislature have been feuding with the Democratic governor for two months over gaming compacts.

State Sen. Gwendolynne Moore, D-Milwaukee, demanded an apology from the state Republican Party of Wisconsin.

"The use of the word 'scalped' is a blatant attempt by Republicans to inflame racial tensions on the issue of Native American gaming," Moore said.

But Lato said critics were missing the point of the cartoon.

"Sen. Moore is reading things into it that simply are not there," he said.

Moore disagrees.

"Republicans have sunk to a new low with the despicable use of this racist stereotype," said Moore. "In a way I'm grateful that the Republicans are finally being honest about why they oppose the new tribal gaming compacts. As this ad clearly shows, Republicans still view Native Americans as savages who run around the state scalping white people."

Ninham, who sits on the State/Tribal Special Relations Committee, created by the joint legislature, said he is going to bring forth the race issue to the committee. The committee is apprised of tribal representatives, senators and assemblymen.

"I'm putting this on the next agenda," said Ninham.

The United Tribes state they have demonstrated their willingness to help the state of Wisconsin out of a $3.2 billion dollar deficit and have continually been rebuffed by the Republican leadership. They say they are growing increasingly skeptical of discerning the value of committing millions of dollars to the State of Wisconsin when the state's good faith efforts are not reciprocal.

Stockbridge Chairman Bob Chicks said, "We are not sitting on our reservations with bottomless pockets of money waiting to be taken by the State of Wisconsin. We have needs in our community which are being hampered by our effort to pay for gaming compacts which we hope will secure a more stable economy in our communities in longer terms than five years at a time."

United Tribes say that smaller tribes that have marginal profits have been chastised by Republican Representative John Gard for not being able to make annual payments to the state. "Gard has deprecated those governments for wanting to use meager profits to improve the quality of life in their communities. Through his ignorance he compares the sovereign Tribal governments to poor individuals who are not sovereigns," stated the release.

"Governor Doyle promised not to raise taxes when he campaigned last year. He has worked to culminate the State resources to address the budget deficit without raising taxes. If the Tribes do not get compacts, they will not make payments. That will cost the state more than $200 million. The Governor will be faced to raise taxes because the legislature has refused to cooperate and support his budget proposal and initiatives aimed at cutting costs. A month ago they were attacking the Governor for his attempts to secure $237 million from Tribes, now they are once again attacking the $200 million he is seeking. Republicans like John Gard will not be satisfied until the Tribes pay nothing and the deficit continues to grow."

"The only plan Representative Gard may have offered to save the state money is in mileage and per diem by living in Sun Prairie and representing a district 150 miles north. Perhaps the entire legislature can live within 25 miles of the capitol and represent all of Wisconsin honestly."

Marotta says state won't get more than $200 million in gaming

MADISON, Wis. (AP) - The state's administration secretary says Wisconsin may receive no more than $200 million in American Indian gaming revenue in the next two years - $37 million less than Gov. Jim Doyle proposed in his budget plan.

The projected $237 million in tribal payments was a key part of Doyle's plan to close Wisconsin's $3.2 billion budget deficit for the two-year period beginning July 1. Administration Secretary Marc Marotta said Doyle would propose a funding alternative if gaming revenue amounts to only $200 million.

Marotta said Monday revenue projections have decreased because the state would take little or no money from five tribes with low-grossing casinos in remote northern Wisconsin locations.

The intent is to allow the Red Cliff, Sokaogon (Mole Lake), Bad River, Lac Courte Oreilles Chippewa bands and the Menominee tribe to reinvest in their casino operations in hopes of eventually paying more to the state. All but the Red Cliff would make some payments.

"What we are trying to do is to strike a balance between getting as much as we can for the state and still allow the tribes to invest in their operations, to hire people and to take care of the challenges they face on their own reservations," Marotta said.

Sen. Bob Welch, R-Redgranite, said the $37 million gap is the latest example of an unbalanced budget.

"We've been hearing since this budget came out, 'We're going to have $237 million. I'm giving away the store. I gave the tribes everything they wanted because we get all this money.' It's been a mantra," Welch, a member of the Joint Finance Committee, said. "Now we find out it's just a lie, that they never had the money lined up, that now they're going to give the tribes even more."

Assembly Speaker John Gard, R-Peshtigo, said the payment relief Doyle was offering poorer tribes was unfair.

"I think every taxpayer in the state would like to have that deal," he said. "There's a lot of families that would love to be able to take the money that they would pay to the state and invest it in their own family, their own small business, their own farm."

Marotta also blamed the decreased gaming revenue on Republican lawmakers' disapproval of Doyle's compact negotiations.

After the Democratic governor announced compact agreements with the Forest County Potawatomi tribe and the Oneida Nation, lawmakers passed two bills giving Legislature final approval over compacts. Doyle vetoed them both. Republican lawmakers then challenged Doyle's authority to negotiate compacts in the state Supreme Court.

"What the tribes thought was going to be a goodwill gesture on their part, to really step up, has been met with nothing but resistance from our Republican friends in the Legislature," Marotta said. "The antics have really caused our momentum to slow, and it really hurts our negotiating process."

Welch said the Joint Finance Committee will begin taking action next week on the governor's budget.

"Republicans in the two houses are going to have to sit down pretty soon and decide whether we even have a budget," Gard said. "We have a proposal for something, but it isn't a budget, because a budget has to be balanced, and it clearly isn't."

Census releases detailed undercount, over count

WASHINGTON (AP) - The 2000 census count was least accurate in Indiana and Minnesota and most accurate in New Mexico and Colorado, according to a state-by-state Census Bureau report that concluded the bureau did a good job overall.

States in the Midwest had the highest overcounts, while Texas and California had some of the largest numbers of people missed, along with parts of the mid-Atlantic and rural West. Two other big states, New York and Illinois, had overcounts.

The bureau estimated that it overcount North Carolina's population by .15 percent.

Also released Monday were estimates for counties and towns across the country. It's the bureau's follow-up to its announcement last month that it overcounted the country's population by 1.3 million people in 2000 after originally announcing an undercount of 3 million.

The latest estimates will not affect the government's official population count of 281.4 million in 2000.

Nor will it affect how the government distributes at least $185 billion to the states for social services and programs such as Medicaid, or the redrawing of congressional and local political district boundaries.

Still, census officials say they are releasing the estimates to prove how well it counted U.S. residents in the once-a-decade head count. All but 10 states and the District of Columbia had overcounts.

Conceivably, the new figures could be used by cities, counties and advocates for minorities in lawsuits arguing that blacks, Hispanics and other groups were underrepresented. "But there are still some troubling issues with the data," said associate census director Preston Jay Waite.

How well the Census Bureau counts the population, and what to do about errors that are uncovered, has been a contentious issue. Congressional Democrats and civil rights leaders maintain the bureau has not ensured that minorities are counted fully.

Critics say the bureau should have used a complicated statistical method called sampling to make up for historic undercounts of minorities.

Opponents of that method, mainly Republicans, have said the latest estimates prove that sampling actually inserts more error into a census they contend is one of the most accurate in history.

National findings released in March showed an overcount of whites, Asians, American Indians on reservations and young children, while many blacks and Hispanics were missed.

The Census Bureau estimates it was most off in Minnesota, where it overcounted the state's population of 4.9 million by 1.7 percent. Indiana was overcounted by 1.6 percent.

Nevada and Montana had the largest percentage of people undercounted, at 0.5 percent.

The bureau guesses it came closest in Colorado, where it overcounted the state's population of 4.3 million by 331 people, or 0.01 percent. In New Mexico, it undercounted by 321 people, or 0.02 of the state's 1.8 million residents.

Letter to the Editor

Native Soldiers

Today, as bombs blasted over Bagdad and as children and families were blown apart, AND as American soldiers of all colors and creeds marched down the road of war ready to give their lives for their country, I listened to a hater called Rush Limbaugh express glee at the destruction. Limbaugh, is the hate-mongering radio commentator who a few years ago called Indians "a bunch of drunks" as they protested the Atlanta Braves baseball team.

Limbaugh spends three hours daily spreading hate and racism on local and national radio stations that seem determined to feed the flames of hate and intolerance throughout Wisconsin and the entire nation. Isn't it any wonder that Indian leaders from throughout our state recently returned to their respective reservations, shocked at the intolerable racism they were exposed to in the State's Capital.

But this article is about war and the soldiers who do the fighting, the suffering, and the dying. Recently, I read of a weary Iraqi soldier who said, "We spend our whole lives living for wars and hiding from bombs." I know nothing else about this weary soldier. Maybe he's dead now. Maybe my relative killed him and I'd rather have him die than my relative, that's for sure. But, I also feel bad for those Iraqi soldiers, who most likely never realized why they've been fighting and dying for so long. And for what and for whom?

Iraq is one of the richest oil countries in the world, yet 60 percent of their population live in extreme poverty. Almost all of them live in fear for their lives while an elite class lives in palaces and kills anyone who dares to speak their mind, or dares to print the truth, or for women specifically, those who dare express any emotions at all.

But America is not all that innocent either. Who are the soldiers marching towards Bagdad? Who are the soldiers who soon may be marching on to Iran, to Syria, and on to North Korea? Who are the soldiers whose bodies will be burned on the battlefield if biological warfare should break out? And who will they be fighting for? The racists in Madison? Or will they be fighting and sacrificing for the intolerant hate mongers who spread their hate on hate radio and the growing millions of Americans who worship them?

Surely, it's not President Bush's children out there in the desert. Limbaugh's either. So far it looks that this war, and the wars to follow, will be fought by the same class of Americans who fought and died in Vietnam some quarter of a century ago, tens of thousands of young working class and poor Americans who couldn't afford college and didn't have the political connections to get out of the fighting, like G.W. Bush.

The strange thing is, thus far, I support this war. If Bush is telling the truth, the dictator and madman in Bagdad has to be stopped. But, with graduation coming, I don't want to see our Oneida children die for a country that is increasingly growing hateful towards Indian people. But to those who decide to go, and our heroes who are already there, heroes like Travis Smith, Paul Stevens and Yuma House, I know the love and the prayers of all Oneida people will be with them.

BC Briefing...

Business Committee

The Business Committee continues to negotiate the gaming compact with the State of Wisconsin. The approval of the Potawatomi compact by the Department of Interior is very encouraging. We are hoping for a signed compact very soon. For the most up-to-date information, please attend the Gaming Compact Community Meeting which is held every Wednesday at noon in the BCCR until the compact is signed.

Improving communication continues to be a goal of the Business Committee. In order to meet this goal, we have been holding retreats to work collaboratively with different areas of the Nation. So far, meetings have been held amongst the Trust Committee and the Finance Committee.

The planning phase of the Fiscal Year 2004 budget process has begun. We are working to meet an August 8, 2003 deadline for GTC approval.

Legislative Operating Committee

As the LOC nears the end of their first session, priority has been placed on the Oneida Gaming Ordinance; Oneida Constitution; Administrative Procedures Act; and the Alcohol Regulation, Control and License Law Amendments. The LOC is currently working on drafting the Constitution and reviewing drafts of the Gaming Ordinance and Administrative Procedures Act. The amendments to the Alcohol Regulation, Control and License Law have been forwarded for a public hearing on May 6 at 5:00 p.m. in the BCCR.

Individual Office

On April 22, the Oneida Business Committee will be hosting a listening session on the Venture Fund. The purpose is for the Business Committee to engage in a constructive discussion with the community and to gather input. The Oneida Nation established the Venture Fund as a line item in the Tribe's annual budget. The fund is used to provide capital to develop business opportunities. The goal of the Venture Fund is to aid in the diversification of the tribe's economy and to increase the long term revenue contributions to the general fund. The Venture Fund will also be used for investment projects and Government-to-Government opportunities.

Oneida's economy is based primarily in Oneida Bingo & Casino and Oneida Retail. As we know from our recent compact negotiations, our economic future is subject to political forces outside the control of the Oneida Nation. This leaves Oneida's Reservation economic base vulnerable to actions of the State. The goal of diversification is to ensure the financial well being of the Nation.

The listening session will include a brief overview of the Venture Fund Process. The Oneida Tribe receives numerous proposals offering various business opportunities. These proposals are directed through the General Manager's office to the Development Division for evaluation, which includes examining the proposals' strengths, weaknesses, opportunities, and threats (SWOT) and other information such as the market, financial feasibility and capital estimates. If the project meets the necessary criteria and is approved it moves into the second phase of the approval process.

The second phase of the approval process includes completing the due diligence. The due diligence process is an investigation of all factors that may affect the venture's economic performance. These factors include identifying and quantifying risks, assessing the proposals soundness, confirming assumptions and verifying all essential information. If the project is viable, the Finance committee will have a business analysis completed and provide a recommendation. This final phase ends with a completed comprehensive business plan.

The Business Development Department will be updating their targeted industry analysis in order to seek business opportunities in the area. The purpose of a targeted industry analysis is to select business opportunities that minimize risk and satisfy the goals of diversification.

By streamlining projects through the new process and revisiting the targeted industry analysis we hope to move the Oneida community in the direction of developing a viable self-sustaining economy into the future.

Community

My thoughts and prayers go out to the soldiers that are fighting overseas as well as their families who are anxiously awaiting their safe return home. I send my deepest sympathy to the children, family, and friends of Lori Piestewa. This has been a difficult loss felt throughout all of Indian Country. I can only pray that the outpouring of support and donations will help relieve some of the pain knowing that Lori has captured the hearts of this country. She is a true hero.

Councilman Paul Ninham

Life as a councilman for the Oneida Nation continues to be challenging and an honor. I had the honor of standing shoulder to shoulder with some of the most successful leaders of our nation at the National Indian Gaming Association annual meeting in Phoenix. At a reception to support Ernie Stevens Jr. for re-election to the Chairman's seat of the National Indian Gaming Association, I was proud to introduce retired Chairmen, Purcell Powless, Rick Hill and Gerald Danforth who represent more than 50 years of great leadership of the Oneida Nation. Once again Oneida representative, Ernie Stevens Jr. will serve as Chairman of NIGA for another term. He ran unopposed and was elected by unanimous consent. The Oneida Nation should be proud to have established leadership positions on a national level.

It was good to see all my Oneida brothers and sisters from all over the country converging in Phoenix for the NIGA annual convention. I had the pleasure of meeting Oneida people who live in Phoenix, California, New Mexico, and of course Wisconsin.

The Oneida Business Committee has also had the opportunity to enjoy recognition of our citizens in other arenas. Congratulations are deserving of the commendable achievement of Sharon Mousseau, our Oneida Nation School Administrator who has been named "Educator of the Year" by the Wisconsin Indian Education Association. This is an honor bestowed upon Ms. Mousseau for her accomplishments and dedication to providing our children with quality education and opportunities for future educational development.

On yet another note of congratulations, Lori Webster was named "Outstanding Parent of the Year" by the Wisconsin Education Association. Lori has served as an outstanding role model for parents throughout our community. She is active in meetings, fund-raising activities and helping in the community as a volunteer.

And last, but certainly not least, the Oneida Nation School System was selected as a recipient for the Department of Interior's award of merit for performance and outstanding service to the values of occupational health and safety. The Oneida school system has demonstrated genuine concern for the welfare and safety of the students and staff in securing a safe and stable environment. This award was accepted on behalf of the school system by Safety Director, Dan King in Phoenix, AZ on April 1.

In closing, I wish to also pay respect and offer prayers of support for the men and women serving in our Armed Forces throughout the world. We enjoy the success and accomplishments of our nation, because of the men and women who defend our right to exercise our sovereignty as the Oneida Nation. It was a very heart-breaking experience while in Phoenix, the world was informed that PFC Lori Piestewa was killed in action in the war in Iraq. On behalf of myself and my wife Jill, we will pray for the family and for the nation to honor the memory and sacrifice of a great woman warrior who gave her life for the freedom of her country and her children. Peace to the family of PFC Lori Piestewa, Hopi Nation.

Weather dampens spring sport season

By Phil Wisneski

Kalihwisaks
The weather has impacted all of the Oneida Nation High School spring sports schedules, but it has yet to hamper the enthusiasm and spirit of the coaches and players.

Baseball

Baseball coach Gary Lancelle can barely contain his giddiness as he talks about the upcoming season.

“We are going to be a lot better than last year,” he said. “The kids are serious about getting better and I feel real confident that we will have a good year.”

The confidence is well earned as the team returns numerous players from last year’s team. Last year the team was competitive, but wasn’t able to garner a victory in four tries. The returning players are pitcher Lee Laster, Marlon Skenandore, Cody Peters, Josh House, Marvin Spruce, Thomas House, Julio Flores and Loli Hill. Lancelle looks to these players to provide leadership and experience to the newcomers. The top newcomers for the team include Presley King, Jermaine Delgado, Isaiah Smith, Tony Stevens and Little Bear Skenandore. The newcomers will be expected to contribute to the team from the start as the team only has about 15 players.

This season the team will face stiffer competition in the schedule playing the likes of Oshkosh Lourdes, Gresham, Crivitz and Marinette Catholic Central. The Thunderhawks have a total of eight games this season and Lancelle has set a lofty goal of winning half of them.

“The only way we are going to get better is if we play better competition,” Lancelle said.

Lancelle is in his third season as baseball coach and is assisted by Mark Ninham and Brandon Metoxen. Their first game is next Thursday, April 24 at Crivitz.

Track

The track team is hoping to jump to new heights and distances this season. This year marks the largest team assembled by Oneida Nation High School and it looks to be a promising year. Coach Thom Burke looks to his more experienced runners and jumpers to show leadership and dedication to the younger athletes.

Burke is hoping Katrina Red Hail will break her own school record in the long jump event this season.

“She set that mark last year and we will be working to break it again this upcoming season,” Burke said.

Burke also has high hopes for Coleman Reed in the shot put.

“He definitely has a chance to break the record,” Burke said.

The team is working hard and the season outlook is looking positive. Burke said he wants one of his athletes to advance to the state sectionals this year. Qualifying for sectionals would be a school first and Burke thinks the team has the athletes that can do it as long as they work hard and stay true to the sport.

In all there are 8 athletes competing.

Burke is in his sixth year coaching the track team and is assisted by Becky Anderson.

Golf

The golf team this year may struggle due to the numbers game. With the rise and optimism of the baseball team this spring many golfers have decided to give baseball a shot and not participate in the school’s golf program. Due to the numbers crunch the school is allowing students to participate in two spring sports if they choose to do so.

One golfer who is concentrating on golf exclusively is Jermaine Webster. Last year Webster qualified for sectionals in the state tournament. This year coach Lance Kelley has the same hopes for Webster and also believes he may be able to advance to the state level.

“He was real solid for us last year, and we are looking for him to build on his success from last year and carry the load this year,” Kelley said.

Latsi Hill is also returning from last year and Kelley wants him to become a little more consistent this year.

“He really improved from day one to the end of the season last year and hopefully he and the other team members will do the same this year,” Kelley said.

Other team members are Presley King, Jameson Wilson, Jonathon House and Scott Link. King and Wilson both participate in other spring sports.

The team has 13 meets this season with the first one next Thursday, April 24 at Crivitz.

Oneida returns eight players from last year’s team and there is plenty of optimism for a successful season. Their first game is next Thursday, April 24 at Crivitz. The track team has eight participants this year and hopes to advance someone to sectionals this year.

Family Fitness April Members of the Month

Brandon Waupekenay

Brandon has been a member of the Oneida Family Fitness for three years. He was motivated to begin an exercise program by following Bruce Lee’s philosophy of “being able to move when you want to move. When you think ‘move’, you are moving!” By utilizing this philosophy, Brandon now feels good about himself because he has kept his body slim and improved his health.

Standing in Brandon’s way of achieving his goals, however, was a sprained ACL in his knee. Now that his knee is better, he performs weight training, cardiovascular exercise and aquatic exercise to stay in shape. By continuing to set goals for himself, Brandon keeps the ambition going to achieve and maintain a healthy lifestyle.

Brandon enjoys working out at Oneida Family Fitness because of the great atmosphere friendly staff and cleanliness of the facility. Besides exercise, Brandon sleeps and eats.

Last of all, Brandon’s advice for changing your lifestyle habits is this, “You only have twenty-four hours in a day. You can choose to lay around during them or do something to make the next twenty-four hours of your life better.”

Ruth Mostek

Ruth has been a member of the Oneida Family Fitness for six and a half years. She first started and exercise program many years ago because her doctor instructed her to do so. Her biggest obstacle to begin and continue with an exercise program was to exercise on a regular basis. However, Ruth overcame this obstacle and made exercise a regular part of her life. Because of this, she lost weight and improved her overall health.

For her exercise program, Ruth enjoys participating in a variety of classes. She participates in Yoga, water exercise classes, low intensity step classes and elder strength training to name a few. Thanks to the variety of classes, Ruth has increased her overall strength, flexibility and energy.

Ruth enjoys exercising at Oneida Family Fitness because the staff is friendly and always helps her when she needs assistance. Besides exercising, she enjoys crafts, going up north to her trailer, dancing and spending time with her grandchildren and family.

Finally, Ruth’s advice for changing your lifestyle habits is this, “I would tell them, why don’t you join a health club. I love it very much.”

"OPERATION ONEIDA CARES"

Arizona governor draws criticism for trying to rename peak after Piستewa

PHOENIX (AP) — Democratic Gov. Janet Napolitano drew criticism Monday from some Republican lawmakers after asking a state board to rename a mountain peak to honor an American Indian woman killed in the war with Iraq.

Some Republican lawmakers said Napolitano was "politicizing" the death of Army Pfc. Lori Piستewa, a Hopi Tribe member from Tuba City who was killed in Iraq last month. Many American Indians find the name of Phoenix's Squaw Peak offensive and have tried for years to rename it.

"It seemed to me (an opportunity) to make lemonade out of a lemon," said Napolitano, who considers the name an embarrassment.

Republican state Rep. John Allen said Napolitano inappropriately merged renaming the peak with honoring Piستewa. The state should deal with the issues separately and honor all Arizonans who died in the war, he said.

"They have taken an individual who has done a great service for their country and tried to use that person posthumously to get a political end they couldn't get themselves," Allen said. "That's wrong."

Even though the chairman of the Arizona Geographic and Historic Names Board has threatened to block her plan, Napolitano said she will continue to push the name change.

Critics claim "squaw" is derived from an Indian word for female genitalia, although some linguists disagree.

Call to duty separates soldier from wife, upcoming birth of firstborn

Staff Sergeant Marty Antone departs for Kuwait; wife Bana 8 1/2 months pregnant

By Keith Skenandore

Kalihiwisaks

The first baby of Marty and Bana Antone is expected to be born on May 11 without complications, according to their doctor. Unfortunately for the Antones, their doctor didn't anticipate the complications of war in Iraq.

When little Dorian James Antone is expected to arrive on May 11, his proud father will not be at the hospital in Green Bay. Instead, Marty Antone and the 432nd Civil Affairs unit were deployed last weekend to Kuwait and will eventually be based in Iraq in the rebuilding efforts of the torn city and their infrastructure. Marty is expected to be in Iraq for at least a year, possibly two.

A commitment to to serve your country can be difficult when it interferes with a commitment to family.

Marty Antone is certainly not the first and more than likely, will not be the last to experience such a difficult decision.

A call to duty for his country has separated this dedicated soldier from his wife Bana and the upcoming birth of their firstborn son.

Bana, who is eight and a half months along in her pregnancy, said the news of a baby was unexpected, but exciting to say the least. What wasn't exciting was the escalation of the war and Marty having to leave home.

"We had to get ready for everything," said Bana. "Marty was busy with everything."

Marty first left Green Bay back on March 1 to be stationed in North Carolina.

"It was very hard to see him go," she said. "Everybody was emotional."

While in North Carolina, Bana and Marty were able to stay in communication with each other via his cell phone. She spoke to him last Thursday, April 10, and she said Marty wanted to make sure that "the baby and Mom are healthy."

"He seemed pretty calm but he was worried about me and the baby. He was a little nervous."

They both eventually knew that he would go to Kuwait, and when he was deployed last weekend, Bana and Marty's communication link was broken. She said there contact with each other now relies on the mail.

Marty had hoped to be home for the birth of their son, but according to the Red Cross, he could only come home if there were complications during the delivery.

"We will be going through the most exciting time of our life and it will be difficult not having him here," said Bana.

"He won't be able to look at the baby and hug him.

Marty and Bana Antone, above, share a good-bye as he prepares to depart to North Carolina back on March 1. Antone later departed for Kuwait on April 12. At right, the Antones share a happier moment together. The war in Iraq has separated the couple as Bana prepares to deliver their first child, a son, on May 11.

That's hard."

With a newborn comes additional responsibilities. Responsibilities Bana says she is ready to handle. She currently works at a local TJ Maxx department store, but says after April 29, her days of working are over.

She said it would have been too difficult for the baby, already minus one parent, to deal with her returning to work and going off to a sitter almost every day. Being their first child, she feels the need to be there with their son as he begins to grow.

"The baby will be growing up and Marty will not be around to see his smiles and hear him cry."

Dorian James Antone will be able to hear his father's voice as Marty plans on sending recorded messages back home for Bana to play for him. Bana knows that will be good for their son, but it doesn't replace the absence of his father.

"We plan on exchanging lots of tapes and photos," said Bana.

Bana can't wait for the day her husband comes home and is able to hold his son for the first time. A time, she said, is going to be a transition as Dorian is physically introduced to his father.

"It's going to be difficult," said Bana.

Difficult transitions are not new to Bana and her family. She was born and raised in Kucova, Albania. She lived there 16 years until her family moved to Greece where they lived three years. It was through immigration that Bana and her family were able to move to Massachusetts.

Bana lived in Massachusetts two years, and it was during that time she met Marty while hiking in her home state. After a year and a half of dating, they married last Sept. 14.

From Albania, to Greece, to the United States, says Bana, those transition periods will help her deal with Marty being gone.

"It was different coming here," she said. "It was a different society."

The immigration to the United States, she says, was somewhat of a lonely time not knowing anyone. But now she can rely on many friends to help with the pregnancy and Marty's departure.

"I am alone without him not being here," she said, "but I have a lot of friends to rely on."

Bana's parents will be here the first couple of weeks following the birth, then she says her friends will take over.

"I appreciate all the help," she said.

OPD, past and present, receive best badge awards

By Keith Skenandore

Kalihwisaks

Newly elected Outagamie County District Attorney Carrie Schneider didn't miss a beat when it came to carrying out the offices 4th annual "Best Badge Awards."

In doing so, Schneider and her staff selected Oneida Police Officer Matt Ninham for outstanding work as an officer including community involvement, and newly retired Oneida Police Chief James Danforth for the career service award.

Former District Attorney Vince Biskupic began the awards three years ago, and Schneider felt it was important to continue the recognition.

"It's important to recognize officers and other parties in our criminal justice system who do outstanding work," said Schneider. "They are never given a thank you, so it was important to give them a night out where we can reflect back."

The DA's office received nominations from surrounding agencies in the county, but when it came to the career service award, Schneider took it upon herself to nominate former Chief Danforth.

Schneider said in selecting the career service award recipient, her staff looks at someone who has given much of their life and dedicated that to serving their people while protecting their citizens.

"Chief Danforth was an example of that," she said. "On top of that, he was instrumental in creating and forming the Oneida Police Department."

"That in itself is deserving of recognition."

Schneider said the recipient of the career service awards are sometimes notified prior to the banquet, but in this case, Danforth wasn't.

"They definitely caught me by surprise," said Danforth.

He said he was conned into attending the award ceremony on behalf of Officer Matt Ninham and the department. He was informed that interim Chief of Police Greg Powless and Lt. Ron King could not attend.

"I was asked to be there for Matt and the department," he said.

Danforth said he was at a loss for words, and that he had mixed emotions as he stood at the podium receiving a standing ovation.

"It's an honor receiving this award from the Outagamie County District Attorney's office," said Danforth. He said the award was an accomplishment for the Oneida tribal law enforcement agency and that it was deserving.

"This is not an individual award," said Danforth. "Through the efforts of the county, the DA's office, surrounding law enforcement communities and efforts of the tribe we were able to accomplish what other counties haven't been able to."

"This is a team effort and it's a reflection on everybody involved, especially the Oneida law enforcement people I had the pleasure of working with."

Assistant District Attorney Rob Sager recognized Officer Ninham for the work he does in his respective community.

The Easter Bunny was in town April 14 in conjunction with a Pancake and Porky Supper at Three Sisters.

Approximately 75 children were in attendance - with two of the youngest being only 5 months old.

Isabel Parker, Community Coordinator/Library Director, expressed appreciation to the volunteers who helped in the kitchen and of course, the Easter Bunny for bringing along the beautiful weather.

The Easter Bunny gave candy bags to all the children and posed for photos with individual families after the supper.

A coloring contest was held as well. First place honors went to Felicia Thomas while Angela Polanco was the runner up. Both girls received a large Easter basket.

The event was sponsored by the Oneida Housing Authority.

A variety of local health care representatives were set up in the school gymnasium which was held "to increase access to services in the community," as well as for "anyone who works at living a healthy lifestyle," said Tara. This was Tara's last 'Fling' as it were. She has accepted a PR position at Aurora. "It's a great stepping stone," she added. Please see related story on page 4B.

"A lot of things he has accomplished are things he has done outside of his job," said Sager. "But there are things he does as a police officer and he is recognized as a police officer when he does those things."

Sager noted Ninham's work with the "Shop with a Cop" program, specialized training in street survival and the dark side of the Internet, and assisting other officers in dealing with stress.

Ninham said a future youth event is a bike rodeo sponsored by the Oneida and Hobart Police Departments set for May 17 at Hillcrest Elementary School.

Recognition of Ninham's work with the Hobart Police Department during the loss of their two fellow officers, Stephanie Markins and Robert Etters, received high praise by Sager.

Sager said Ninham spent time counseling the families and officers who worked with the two slain officers, and his efforts were not only recognized by his own department, but by the Hobart Police Department and the Brown County District Attorney's office.

"They (Brown County DA's office) commended Officer Ninham for his standing by the families of the fallen officers way beyond what he had to do," said Sager. "It became apparent to them what he was doing was out of the goodness of his heart."

Ninham said during the trial that the mother of Stephanie Markins was informed by him about the autopsy report and that it was going to be very detailed. Markin's mother said she wanted to know if her daughter suffered but wasn't sure if she wanted to hear the autopsy report. It was during the autopsy report that Ninham and Markin's mother stepped outside the courtroom and had their own conversation.

"That's something that I don't normally do," said Ninham.

What evolved from that conversation is a friendship.

"I told her what we (Ninham and Officer Denny) did for Stephanie in detail," said Ninham. "Her mind was at peace.

"I needed to do that and she needed to hear it. It bought closure for both of us."

As for his work with the youth, Ninham says they will be our future leaders so he prefers to be a good role model for them.

"They are the tomorrow," he said. "I like getting in touch with them, and I have a good rapport with them."

"It's nice to have that contact and that relationship in their life."

Like former Chief Danforth, Ninham was surprised by his recognition.

"I was in awe of receiving the award," he said. I couldn't believe I was getting an award so early in my career."

Ninham, 27, has served two years on the tribe's police force. A force he says who has supported him.

"Even though I'm being recognized for my actions, there are a lot of reasons that other people support me," he said.

"This award is representative of the whole department. Their support helps me become a better officer and a better person."

Danforth said it is actions like Ninham's that deserves recognition.

"It was good to see a young officer that has taken the initiative to get involved and wanting to make a difference," said Danforth.

"It's not everyday you find an officer willing to go beyond what is required to do."

Danforth says an award for any officer of the Oneida Police Department does a lot of good for the entire force.

"People outside the community, both tribal and non-tribal, recognize that sincerity in giving back to the community."

Schneider said Ninham was nominated by interim Chief of Police Greg Powless. She said the nominations are reviewed by the DA staff, and that they make the decisions as to who will receive a "Best Badge Award."

As for Matt, Schneider said Ninham is an officer who is involved in the lives of the youth in the community.

"He's a perfect example of that," she said.

OCIFS finding time to care about you

By the OCIFS Coordinator

The Oneida Community Integrated Food Systems (OCIFS) Members would like you to become more involved with Oneida agriculture and our food systems. There are numerous opportunities throughout the year for you to get involved with the OCIFS projects. For more details please look for the OCIFS Newsletter due to come out in July 2003.

The Oneida Food Distribution Program is always looking for volunteers to assist at the pantry, and various fund raising events. The Apple Orchard has many opportunities for the community and especially the youth to learn and participate in harvesting assorted fruits, and Tsyunhe'hkw^ has so many workshops, classes and harvesting opportunities that they are too numerous to list here. All the OCIFS members are concerned about the health, education and welfare of the community members.

The OCIFS members realize the need to once again get our youth involved in agriculture. That is why they support the Falling Leaves 4-H club and the projects that they do. OCIFS has made it possible for the 4-H youth to plan on planting Colorado Blue Spruce seedlings on Saturday, April 26th. They want the youth to be able to look at their 'forest' as they grow up to become adults, and to help encourage young people that a little effort goes a long way to achieving success.

Also coming soon, a community fund raising booth right outside Tower Foods grocery store. We are anticipating this to be completed by the end of April, and will be looking for youth to get involved with the finish decorative painting of the booth. For more information about this please contact Bill Ver Voort at 869-4530.

For additional information regarding the OCIFS programs, please contact the appropriate person listed: Oneida Food Distribution / Food Pantry - Ms. Nori Damrow at 869-104; Oneida Nation Farms/Apple Orchard - Ms. Pat Cornelius at 833-7952; Oneida Tsyunhe'hkw^ Center - Mr. Jeff Metoxen at 869-2141; Oneida Grants Office - Ms. Frieda Clary at 869-4263; Oneida Health Center - Ms. Jane Powless at 869-4912.

College of Menominee Nation

Oneida site grand opening scheduled

Keshena, WI – College of Menominee Nation cordially invites the public to a grand opening ceremony and open house to celebrate the opening of its Green Bay auxiliary campus site.

The Green Bay Site, located at 2667 West Mason Street, opened in January 2003 as an auxiliary site for College of Menominee Nation. Since 1993, the college has provided higher education opportunities to American Indian communities and non-Indian communities in Northeast Wisconsin. ## Career Week events scheduled at ONHS

Career Week events are scheduled for ONHS students throughout the week of April 21-25, 2003. Students will be touring Kimberly Clark Paper Mill on Monday, 4-21-03 as part of Career Week Festivities at Oneida Nation

High School.

Students have requested to hear guest speakers from the following career fields during this week: Writers and Journalists; Police Persons, Detectives, and Security Personnel; Registered Nurses;

Clothing and Fashion Design; Cosmetology; Computer Programming; Chefs, Cooks, and Restaurant Management; Carpenters and Building Construction Trades; Auto Technician and Auto Collision Repair & Refinish

Technology; and other career fields that students are currently requesting guest speakers from. We want to give the students the opportunity to select the career fields they want to hear about and not what we want them to hear about. We had great Career Week Speakers and presentations last year and we are looking forward to this year's Career Week Events at our high school.

Students Connect To Careers

Oneida - The final touches are being put on the career week activities scheduled for April 21-25, 2003. This year, the theme is: "Career Connections." Throughout the week, students will be treated to a variety of presentations including: police and fire protection, wild life conservation and preservation, computer technology, dog training, nursing, veterinary science, dentistry, careers in the fine arts, counseling, teaching, tribal government, and social work.

"Career week has 3 purposes," said Fred Sanderson, member of the career week planning committee. "First, to give students the opportunity of learning about the variety of careers available to them in the world of work.

Second, To provide students with information on what skills and characteristics are necessary to function successfully in specific careers.

Third, to show students that their friends and relatives (Native Americans) are already working in a variety of careers, and they can do likewise.

Career week is a valuable and practical educational experience linking education and vocational exploration," Sanderson said.

Democrats: Federal budget leaves Wisconsin education underfunded

MADISON, Wis. (AP) - The recently approved federal budget underfunds President Bush's plan to overhaul education by $250 million in Wisconsin over the next five years, Democrats said Tuesday in expressing their concerns the spending plan will further damage the state's already weak economy.

The plan also would continue to leave federal funding for special education well short of the 40 percent it is supposed to provide, adding another burden to Wisconsin's strapped budget, said U.S. Rep. Ron Kind, D-Wis.

The lack of federal funding means the state and local schools must make up the money for special education and the federal No Child Left Behind program that includes standardized testing and other measures, Kind said.

"If the federal government doesn't step up and partner with the state, then the burden comes back home," Kind said. "It's not right, and it's not fair to do to a state like Wisconsin."

Wisconsin faces a $3.2 billion deficit through mid-2005.

Congress approved a record $2.27 trillion federal budget Friday. The budget puts in place a nonbinding outline that lawmakers will use to write tax and spending policy.

State Sen. Joe Leibham, R-Sheboygan, said Democrats were missing the point of Bush's budget - stimulating the economy. The president had proposed $726 billion in tax cuts to jump-start a sluggish economy, but Bush said Tuesday he would accept a more modest plan to cut taxes $550 billion over 10 years to stimulate growth and encourage companies to hire new workers.

"First and foremost, that's what our federal government and state government has to be focused on at this time, and that's to provide jobs that individuals can provide for their families and support themselves," Leibham said.

Kind used figures from the U.S. Department of Education and the Congressional Research Service, a reference bureau for lawmakers.

The federal government is supposed to provide 40 percent of the costs for special education but has never come close, according to the state Department of Public Instruction.

For the current school year, the federal government is providing roughly 16 percent of the costs. Though the budget Congress approved would leave Wisconsin $218 million short of the 40 percent mark, the budget would still increase slightly the percentage of special education the federal government would pay for in the upcoming school year, DPI said.

Gov. Jim Doyle, who joined Kind and U.S. Rep. Tammy Baldwin, D-Wis., at a news conference, said it is still unclear how the federal budget would affect Wisconsin's finances in other areas like homeland security and prescription drugs.

"We knew enough putting this budget together that we weren't budgeting on the hopes that we were going to get more money there, but, boy, it would be helpful," Doyle said.

Controls sought on high-capacity wells for farms, water bottlers

MADISON, Wis. (AP) - A proposal to set new controls on construction of high-capacity wells, such as those used for water-bottling operations, has gained support of some farm interests that opposed an earlier version.

The bill introduced by state Rep. Spencer Black, D-Madison, would require a permit for wells that pump more than 100,000 gallons of water per day.

Under existing law, the state Department of Natural Resources can only regulate those high-capacity wells that would harm municipal water supplies, giving the DNR no oversight of such wells in rural areas even though they might hurt trout streams, wetlands or private wells.

The move for more control of the wells grew out of unsuccessful attempts by Perrier in the late 1990s to develop water-bottling operations in Wisconsin.

People who fought the Perrier plan for pumping water at the headwaters of the Mecan River and near springs in Adams County discovered the state had little oversight.

High-capacity wells pump at least 70 gallons of water per minute and are used by water bottlers, municipalities, industries and farmers for irrigation.

Mike Carter, executive director of the Wisconsin Potato and Vegetable Growers Association, said he had urged members to come up with suggestions that make the legislation fairer to farmers.

"My members really can see we have a choice to make," Carter said. "We can either fight this and maybe put it off for a year or two, or we can work with a coalition of groups and come up with a law that allows us to keep putting food on peoples' tables."

Myth: Adults can't learn languages

By the time a child is four or five years old, she speaks her language fluently, although her thoughts are relatively unsophisticated and there are many things she can't express well. Children soak up language quickly and effortlessly; where as for adults, it seems like a very difficult chore. But if you are exposed to a language for four or five years- as a child is exposed to her first language you will speak it at least as well as a five year old. And given that you are a much more experienced thinker, you will be linguistically ahead of the five-year-old in almost every way. An adult learner will probably always have an accent, but otherwise, it is primarily an adult's inhibitions and desire for perfection that make language learning seem so difficult. My eighteen month old grandchild is delighted with herself for being able to name objects and people ("baba" for bottle, "mawmaw" for grandma.) If you could learn to delight in small, simple language accomplishments as a toddler does you path to language learning would seem much easier.

The master must remember that the apprentice should be treated with the same patience given to a toddler learning her first language. You would never say to a two-year old, "How come you can't remember that word? Remember that the learner must hear a phrase dozens of times in many different situations before mastering it. The teacher's impatience with the learner and the learner's impatience with himself are the greatest obstacles to adult language learning. Bring back childish delight and the childish confidence, and language learning becomes as easy for adults as it is for children.

Also, remember how children learn their first language. They learn it with-out effort, because they are immersed in it. By leaving English behind and doing your teaching and learning in the context of activities, you are re-creating the childhood learning situation. Adults can learn a language as well as children if they learn it like children do.

(The Maple Sap Thanksgiving [Closing])

Once the sugar camps are all done harvesting the sap, and everything is cleaned up, a day is picked by the Faith-keepers to give thanks for what the people have been able to harvest. At this time, the sap is used as medicine for everyone to drink and give thanks. Two Great Feather Dances are done as a way to honor the maple tree and for creation's cooperation during the harvesting of the sap.

ONEIDA Pronunciation System

VOWELS:

- “a” has the sound of the “a” in ah or father
- “e” has the sound of the “e” in egg or eight
- “i” has the sound “i” in ski or machine
- “o” has the sound of the “o” in o hope or low
- “u” has the sound of “un” in une
- “<” has the sound of “on” in on

CONSONANTS:

These consonants have the same sound as they usually do in English: h, l, n, w, and y. The letters ‘t’, ‘k’, and ‘s’ each have two (2) pronunciations depending on other sounds near them.

‘t’ normally has the sound like a ‘d’. If a ‘k’, ‘h’, or ‘s’ follows, then the ‘t’ sounds as top.

‘k’ normally has a g-like sound but if a ‘t’, ‘s’, or ‘h’ follows, it has the sound as kill.

‘s’ coming between two vowels makes a ‘z’ sound, before or after an ‘h’ like the sound in sea.

‘>’ glottal stop. Stops sound like in the word like ‘oh, oh’

‘tshy’ or ‘tsi’ sounds like ‘j’

‘tshy’ or ‘tshi’ sounds like ‘ch’

‘sy’ sounds like ‘sh’

‘#’ accent mark over a vowel indicates stressed syllable in a word.

Combination of ‘#’ makes of falling tone sound.

‘=’ lengthens the sound of a vowel and underlined sounds are whispered.

Bay Beach Wildlife Sanctuary

April Calendar of Events

Watch the migrating birds on a guided bird hike

(Green Bay, WI) Discover what's flying at the Bay Beach Wildlife Sanctuary by joining Sanctuary Director and avid bird enthusiast on a guided bird hike on Saturday, April 26 and Wednesday, April 30 at 6:30 a.m.

The hikes will take you through the Sanctuary's diverse habitat, which makes a great resting area for a variety of migrating birds. "Early spring provides a great opportunity for birders because the birds are in the process of migrating back to their summer nesting areas," Baumann explains. "And, because there is very little foliage on the trees, spotting the birds is much easier."

To take part in the hike, all you will need is a pair of binoculars and comfortable shoes for hiking. Birders will meet in the first parking lot to the right as they enter the Sanctuary grounds. The hikes are free and open to the public. No pre-registration is required.

Bay Beach Wildlife Sanctuary is a 700-acre urban wildlife refuge featuring live animal exhibits, educational displays, miles of hiking and walking trails, and excellent wildlife viewing opportunities.

After April 15, the Sanctuary's hours change to their summer hours, which are 8 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. with trails closing at 4:30 p.m. There is no admission charge. The Sanctuary is located at 1660 E. Shore Drive on Green Bay's east side across from Bay Beach Amusement Park.

Notice of Availability

Project Description: The Oneida Nation is proposing to construct a 40' X 48' garage on Parcel H, part of Lot A, Section 36, T23N, R18E, 1301 Ray Rd., Town of Oneida, County of Outagamie, WI. The need for the project is to assist a Tribal member maintain a small business. Construction of this garage will allow a tribal member space to store and repair commercial trucks associated with his business.

Location: The project is located on Ray Road, Parcel H, part of Lot A, Section 36, T23N, R18E, Town of Oneida, County of Outagamie, WI. A draft environmental assessment (EA) has been prepared regarding this proposed action in compliance with the Oneida Environmental Policy (2-13-93B) and National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA). The draft EA contains project information, affected environment, project alternatives and consultation letters. Comments were requested from the US Fish and Wildlife Service regarding possible impacts to threatened and endangered species, and from the Oneida Tribe and State Historical Society of Wisconsin about possible impacts to historic properties. No significant impacts to these resources are anticipated, and recommendations from these sources will be followed.

Need for Project: The Oneida Tribe has as a goal and need to encourage creation of local jobs that will stimulate the economy for the Reservation and surrounding area. This purpose of this project is to provide an increase in employment opportunities within the local community.

Alternatives: The preferred alternative is to construct the 40' X 48' garage at the location described. This alternative provides needed income for a Tribal member, and improves the local economy.

The "No-Action" alternative was also evaluated. It would not meet the goal of expanding the local economy of the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin. "No-Action" would limit economic opportunity for a Tribal member while supplying needed community services.

Comments & Availability: Interested parties can obtain copies of these documents from the Oneida Environmental Quality Department. Comments regarding the proposed action may also be submitted within 30 days of the date of this NOA. Contact Tom Nelson at (920) 497-5812 Ext. 146 or write Oneida Environmental Department, PO Box 365, Oneida, WI 54155 for additional information.

Project Description: The Division of Land Management is proposing to construct an 5,525 square foot expansion to the existing building to provide additional space for staff, land records, and to combine several organizational elements into one facility. Adding a 44 space parking lot and widening the driveway is also proposed in the project. The site is located at 470 Airport Drive in Township 23 North, Range 19 East, Sections 2 and in the Village of Hobart, Brown County, Oneida Nation Reservation, Wisconsin. A draft environmental assessment (EA) has been prepared regarding this proposed action in compliance with the Oneida Environmental Policy (2-13-93B) and National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA). The draft EA contains project information, affected environment, project alternatives and consultation letters. Comments were requested from the US Fish and Wildlife Service regarding possible impacts to threatened and endangered species, and from the Oneida Tribe and State Historical Society of Wisconsin about possible impacts to historic properties. No significant impacts to these resources are anticipated, and recommendations from these sources will be followed.

Need for Project: The proposed expansion to the Division of Land Management building is needed to provide additional space for staff, land records, and to combine several organizational elements into one facility. Alternatives: The preferred plan is to construct an approximately 5,525 square foot expansion onto the existing Division of Land Management Office and adding a 44 space parking lot. The new facility will be added to the existing structure in an already cleared area of the property. The No-Action Alternative was also evaluated, however, this will not provide necessary space for staff and land records. This would not provide for the needs of the department. Comments & Availability: Interested parties can obtain copies of these documents by contacting the Oneida Environmental Department at PO Box 365, Oneida, WI 54155 or calling Lisa Miotke at (920) 497-5812.
