Marvin R. Jarvey,
Petitioner

Docket No. 03-TC-187

v.

Date: July 10, 2003

Human Resources Department - Benefits
Crawford Insurance,
Respondents

Decision

This case has come before the Oneida Appeals Commission Trial Court. Judicial Officers Winnifred L. Thomas, Janice McLester, Stanley R. Webster, presiding.

I Background

The Petitioner filed a claim for worker's compensation due to a rash on his hands. The claim was initially denied because the Petitioner did not comply with filing requirements under the Worker's Compensation Law, which requires that an employee file a notice of injury within two days of the injury. In addition, the Respondents assert that the apparent allergic reaction suffered by the Petitioner is not unique to the working conditions of his employment and is therefore not covered under the Law. The Petitioner failed to appear for a hearing scheduled in this matter on July 10, 2003.

II Decision

A Petitioner who fails to appear and prosecute his or her claim may have the claim dismissed through default. The Petitioner did not appear to a duly notice hearing. This case is dismissed.
