48th Annual Pow Wow Returns

By Garth Webster

Reporter-Senior Photographer

With a weekend of perfect weather, a total of 6 drums and 274 dancers shared song & dance at this year's July 4th Pow-Wow, dazzling the crowd. Past attendance levels averaged just under 7,000 and this year's attendance was a new record of 9,500. New features at this year's event were a hit, including bleacher seating, and a large LED screen increasing visibility of the dance arena. Fireworks and dance specials were graciously donated by Cliff and Tammy Webster. The Pow-Wow Council has a list of improvements for handling the increased crowds. Next year, the council will be seeking your volunteer help to make a great event even better.

Happy Belated Birthday Charlie!

Groundbreaking Oneida comedian Charlie Hill received a salute on Google Wednesday July 6, 2022 on what would have been his 71st birthday. Hill was featured in the illustration, or "doodle," on Google's landing page.

By Garth Webster Reporter-Senior Photographer

The late Charlie Hill would have turned 71 on July 6, 2022. His career left quite the impact on the world of entertainment and thus, spiritually, the Indigenous community, and the world, marks July 6 not only as Hill's birthday, but also as a day of remembrance. This most recent birth date was made extra special by

Google, who commissioned Alanah Astehtsi Otsistohkwa (Morningstar) Jewell, a French-First Nations artist from Oneida Nation-Thames, to create a Google Doodle, featuring Hill's likeness on Google's home page. Hill aspired to be a comedian from a very young age and achieved this goal by appearing on several national shows such as The Richard Pryor Show, The Tonight Show with Jay Leno and Late Night with David Letterman, proving that laughter really is the best medicine. Thank you Charlie and Happy 71st Birthday!

On July 6, 2022 a site survey was completed at the Amelia Cornelius Culture Park by Oneida Engineering Services. The survey includes the grounds and maintenance area to the end of Finger Lake. Next, the site will have soil boring testing which will lead into the start of the design phase for the $2.6M TCSF obligation to enhance the park area. Stay tuned for more project updates around the rez as they happen.

Oneida Veterans Memorial Restoration

By Colton Doyen Big Bear Media

The Oneida Veterans Memorial, located at the corner of Hwy. 54 and Pleasant Lane, was created 15 years ago. Since then, the elements have taken their toll and thus, it's time for some refurbishing. On July 6, Cynthia Sweetland, owner of Surroundings by Sweetland, LLC, will utilize her company's 30 years of experience to begin phase 1 of the memorial's restoration.

Their work will include cleaning and resealing cracks, as well as repainting the wampum belt design. Also, the current design does not allow for proper water drainage and thus, "roof-capping," made with special molds by concrete specialist, Kevin Smith, will be added to divert rain away from the sides of the wall. To enhance the wall even further, a light-trough, built into the roof-capping, will help to illuminate the wall.

Smith feels a personal attachment to this project as he explains, "The Memorial is a really significant piece of historical information. Most people forget the value of what the Oneidas did for all of the wars. They have been fighting for this country as long as it's been around – and longer. It's a nice memorial and I think it's nice that they're fixing it up and trying to maintain it. I think this whole park area can be significant."

Smith expects phase 1 of the restoration will be completed in about two to three weeks, whereas the rest is anticipated to take about 1 month.

With guidance from the Oneida Nation Public Health Officer and Oneida Nation health professionals, the Oneida Business Committee took emergency action on Friday, July 15 to cancel the July 19 semi-annual General Tribal Council meeting.

Effective Friday, July 15, Brown County has been elevated from the low to medium category. Numerous Counties in the Milwaukee area were also elevated into the medium and high categories. The health and safety of our community will continue to be a priority. With elevated COVID-19 Community Levels, indoor gatherings put the well-being of our community at risk.

The Virtual GTC Meeting Sub-Committee has been directed to bring back a recommendation on steps needed to proceed with a virtual GTC meeting to the July 27 OBC meeting.

More information will be provided soon. For the most up-to-date Oneida Nation news, please follow our social media pages along with visiting www. oneida-nsn.gov.

the remains of Paul Wheelock, just 10-months-old when he passed, and Frank Green, 15, to Oneida on Sunday, July 3, 2022. Wheelock, the son of Carlisle band director Dennison Wheelock and his Chippewa wife Louise, is believed to have succumbed to tuberculosis. Green, son of James Green of Oneida, is believed to have died in an accident while on the run from Carlisle. The return of Wheelock and Green, along with Jemima Metoxen, Sophia Coulon, and Ophelia Powless in 2019, is helping to provide descendants and the Oneida community a sense of closure.

More than 10,000 children from 140 First Nations attended Carlisle between 1879-1918. As was the case with the more than 350 other government-funded boarding schools in the United States, virtually all forms of communication were cut off between the children and their families. Letters from parents were left unsent, and parents weren't notified in a timely fashion if their children died.

The Oneida Nation paid homage to Green and Wheelock, and their descendants Saturday afternoon, July 2, during the Pow Wow. A memorial service was also held at the Church of the Holy Apostles Sunday, July 3, which included the hymnal singers and a drive-through community meal.

While gathering information for this story, the Kalihwisaks had the opportunity of speaking with Cara Artman, who lives with her mother in St. Louis, MO. Artman was invited, along with Loretta Webster, Artman's aunt, to travel to Carlisle, PA for the disinterment ceremonies for Paul Wheelock, her 3rd cousin. Artman describes how much of an honor this was.

Artman's Experience at Carlisle Disinterment Ceremony

As an Indigenous individual, you can probably assume you have a relative who experienced boarding school, either by force or choice. But it's not every day you're asked to be present at the disinterment of a family member who died at school. Thus, when the opportunity came to go to Carlisle, PA, there was no question, we were going. It may seem odd to travel all that way for a family member I never knew existed, but it was something much larger.

As the granddaughter and greatgranddaughter of Carlisle attendees, it was a chance to get an up close and personal view of our ancestor's time there. We saw the train tracks and heard the train that brought the students to Carlisle and that many, including my grandfather, Walter House, used to run away from Carlisle. We were able to walk the parade grounds that the children had to report to for daily roll call. During the tour, our guide took our photo in front of the Pratt House, the same place those (in)famous boarding school photos were taken. We were able to see the girl's dorm, where I imagined my grandmother Pearl Archiquette House lived as she excelled at Carlisle.

As a whole, the history of Carlisle and Indian Boarding Schools is tragic and a dark chapter of history. However, I grew up with two versions of boarding school life. My grandfather ran away from many schools until he found out from a friend his mother (Celicia Wheelock House) died and he returned home permanently and went to work. He was never able to share stories from that time of his life. My grandmother, who strived to do her best, completed her education at Carlisle, went on to Haskell for college and earned a Master's Degree at the University of Kansas. I am told my grandmother always instilled a love of education in her 10 children. She set the example by not focusing on the problems, but by overcoming obstacles and bettering herself and doing the best for those around her. Because of this lesson, to be educated but not hostile. we were able to travel to Carlisle with no animosity. I am so grateful to be able to do that because those involved with the disinterment could not have been more respectful to us and the deceased.

Today, the Carlisle Indian Industrial School is the Carlisle Barracks. We worked with the best of the best from the U.S. Army, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Office of Army Cemeteries and a team of expert scientists. They guided us every step of the way up to and throughout our visit. A team from Arlington National Cemetery performed the disinterment. Throughout the process we were notified when they reached a new level and we were invited to the grave. They would halt work until we gave our okay to proceed. We were there to receive our cousin, Paul Wheelock, a 10-month old baby. The team warned us that after 122 years, there may not be much left. They were correct and the lead forensic scientist went over everything that was discovered.

If at any point we wanted to incorporate any tribal rituals, we could have. We never did anything elaborate but at the end we put tobacco in the empty grave as a thank you to Mother Earth for taking care of Baby Paul. The transfer ceremony was on the final day and the high level of regard and duty were on full display. As the family, we helped plan the ceremony and chose to keep it simple. Paul's coffin was there as the family entered, the rest of the team followed. Once seated, my aunt, Loretta Webster, stood and expressed the family's appreciation and gratitude for the work everyone did to allow Paul to go to his ancestral homeland. Then, the Executive Director of the Office of Army Cemeteries presented Loretta with an American flag and Arlington Cemetery coin. This presentation was extra special because the Executive Director, Mrs. KDA, is the civilian equivalent of a three-star general and traveled up from Washington D.C. specifically for the ceremony. After that, the family was given alone-time with Paul before he was carried out by members of the team, who served as pallbearers, to a waiting hearse before being flown to Wisconsin.

Afterwards when giving individual thanks to the team, every one of them thanked us for being there. Many added that there is nowhere else they would rather be and they were honored to be a part of the process. We cannot speak highly enough of everyone involved. I know going there educated but openminded allowed us to be open to the respect and warmth everyone showed us. For us, it was an honor to be included and a privilege to have this opportunity.

Miss and Jr. Miss Oneida introduction to the community

My English name is Alexis Madrid. I'm a member of the turtle clan and the people of the standing stone is the land and earth that I come from. I'm 24 years young. My parents are Robert & Wendy Madrid. My grandparents are the late Myron & Marlene Skenandore and the late Patsy Madrid & Kate Stevens. My platform is to end the use of Native American mascots. I'm currently working as an Emergency Dispatcher. I'm super excited to take on this role as an ambassador for my tribe! Also, to show and be a great leader and mentor to all the little ladies and gents! I am your Miss Oneida 2022-2023 yawa\u00e1ko

By Marissa Van Dyke Jr. Miss Oneida 2022

My name is yakolu⁹yakwl which, translates to "she takes up the sky." My English name is Marissa Van Dyke. I am part of the wolf clan. This fall I'm going to be a senior at Green Bay Southwest high school. My platform is mental health awareness. Many teens nowadays have to deal with a lot of stress that comes from school, working, sports, family, and other things. The exhaustion of having an eight hour school day, then having practice for another two hours or having to work right after school and then when you get home having homework or making time for family it becomes a long day. Having outlets to destress or to relax is important for having a healthy lifestyle. Having a person to talk to like a counselor, friend, or family about what is happening and not bottling up emotions is a big part of releasing stress. Being Jr. Miss Oneida has added stress, but it has allowed me to do things and develop skills that I wouldn't have before. Being able to introduce myself after every grand entry of the Oneida powwow has allowed me to develop my public speaking skills. Being at the powwow has also shown me the impact that I do have on the community especially with the younger generations. Having young kids wave and come up to me all excited to meet me warmed my heart and showed me that I am a role model and someone that they look up to. I'm excited for what the rest of the year will look like being Jr. Miss Oneida. Yawáko

Virtual Longhouse: Extending the Rafters

By Norbert Hill Jr.

To the Haudenosaunee, "Extending the rafters" means adding to the Longhouse in a sustainable way to make room for new families and adopted individuals. Today, Oneida citizens and descendants are seeking cultural connection. To enable this, the Virtual Longhouse is a concept that could be a starting point to strengthen this connection, regardless of where you live.

Imagine the opportunity-cultural renewal, relationship revitalization, and belonging. In fact, at it's core, this is the basis of this concept, a place where everyone belongs. Other benefits would be:

- Enhanced understanding of both the Great Law and the Creation Story
- Identification of clans and adoption
- An honor code of conduct

A thousand ideas will need to be ironed out, including incentives-management and key metrics. Another would include how to integrate this into the Oneida school system. No more cultural orphans.

To get started, our collective minds must come together to advance this notion. Immediately, two teams would be needed. One, a content management team who are intricately knowledgeable about our culture and two, a technical team to develop the virtual platform. Remember, the Longhouse is both a noun and a verb. Again, this concept could be a starting point in the struggle for a solution to create cultural connectedness. Stay tuned.

Journal Entry

Source: John Archiquette Collection; Yale University WA MSS S-2662

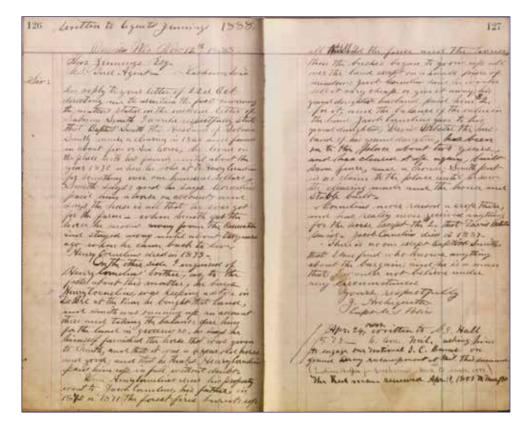

Letter to the Indian Agent:

Oneida, Wisconsin Nov. 12, 1888 Thomas Jennings Esq. U.S. Indian Agent Keshena, WI Sir,

In reply to your letter of 22nd Oct. directing me to ascertain the facts concerning the matter stated in the enclosed letter of Sabrina Smith. I would respectfully state that Baptist Smith the husband of Sabrina Smith made a clearing in 1866 and fenced in about five or six acres. He lived on the place with his family until about the year 1870 when he sold it to Henry Cornelius for something over about hundred dollars, Smith says. He says Cornelius paid him a horse on account, and says the horse is all that he ever got for the farm. When Smith got the horse, he moved away from the reservation and stayed away until about two years ago when he came back to live. Henry Cornelius died in 1873.

On the other side I inquired of Henry Cornelius' brother, as to the facts about this matter. He says Henry Cornelius, was keeping a store in De Pere at the time he bought that land, and smith was running up an account there and taking the balance due him for the land in groceries. He says he himself furnished the horse that was given to Smith, and that it was a 4-year-old horse and good,t and that he thinks Henry Cornelius paid him up in full without doubt.

When Henry Cornelius died, his property went to Jacob Cornelius, his father in 1870 or 1871 when the forest fires burnt up all the fence and the house, then the bushes began to grow up all over the land except on a small piece of meadow. Jacob Cornelius said he would sell it very cheap or give it away. His grand daughter's husband paid him $2 for it, and the balance of the value in the land Jacob Cornelius gave to his granddaughter. David Webster the husband of his granddaughter, has been on the place about two years, and has cleared it up again, built same fence, and a house. Smith put in no claim to the place until he saw the clearing made and the house and stable built.

Cornelius never raised a crop there, and has really never received anything for the horse accept the $2 that David Webster paid. Jacob Cornelius died in 1887.

There is no one except Baptist Smith, that I can find who knows anything about the bargain and he is a man that I would not believe under any circumstances.

Yours Respectfully J Archiquette Captain U.S. Police

A Message to the Membership

By Chris Cornelius, Oneida Land Commision Chairwoman

Page 31 of the July 19 GTC packet contains a motion to dissolve the Oneida Land Claims Commission on the basis that the Cultural Heritage Department would take over the OLCC's responsibilities. Originally, on August 28, 1986, John Powless, among others, proposed the creation of our Commission which of course, eventually came to fruition. From this point, our mission was and remains, "To ensure Oneida Tribal Community input, participation, and support in negotiating a settlement of the Oneida Land Claims in the state of New York." We feel that we are uniquely positioned to do so because we are elected officials, and thus, we have been electorily tasked by the GTC, apart from an employee based Cultural Heritage Department, to fulfill this responsibility. Despite the cancellation of the July 19 GTC, the OLCC encourages the membership to make a motion to table dissolving the Land Claims Commission until all land claims have been successfully resolved by Congress, the Courts, or other means. Our reason for this recommendation is based on two points:

- The original creation documents state that only the GTC can dissolve the OLCC.
- Dissolving the OLCC could be setting a negative legal precedent by making it appear to the opposition that we are relinquishing our land claim rights.

Respectfully, the OLCC requests your support to further discuss this motion.

Neilson Powless Continues His Pro Cycling Dream

By Garth Webster

Reporter-Senior Photographer

Britannica.com describes the Tour de France as the world's most prestigious and difficult bicycle race, which is staged for three weeks each July, usually in 21 stages. This year's race comprises 22 professional teams of eight riders each and covers about 2,068 miles of flat and mountainous country, mainly in France, with occasional and brief visits to Denmark, Belgium and Switzerland. Each stage of the race is timed, and the rider with the lowest aggregate time for all stages is the winner.

Oneida's very own Neilson Powless is the first Indigenous individual to compete in the Tour de France as part of the EF Education-EasyPost professional cycling team. Powless grew up in in northern California competing in triathlons but eventually turned his focus to cycling. He comes from a sporting family. His mother ran the marathon in the 1992 Olympics. His father, Jack, was in the Air force and raced ironmans with great success and his sister, Shayna, is also excelling in professional cycling as a member of the US National Team.

In a recent Sacramento Bee story by journalist, Chris Biderman, he wrote of the 25 year old Powless that this time last year, Powless was tasked with helping his teammates in the Tour de France by putting pressure on the other riders in an attempt to exhaust them with pace. Biderman went on to explain how this year, though, the Roseville High School Graduate (Roseville, CA) is racing like the top rider on his team.

At press time, after the completion of Stage 12 on Thursday, July 14, Jonas Vingegard is the current leader, donning the famous yellow jersey worn by the leader. Powless is in 20th place, about 28 minutes, 10 seconds behind. 1,093 miles are in the books with about 975 more to go. Go Neilson! You got this.

Sandra was born in Racine, Wisconsin on September 29, 1936 to the late Murphy and Pansy Baird of Oneida. She married Donald Lee Charnon in 1957. She attended Haskell Indian Nations University, and was an Executive Assistant for the Kettle Moraine UniServ Counsel. Prior to this, Sandra worked as administrative support for Lakeshore Technical College.

Sandra loved to travel, and took many of her friends, relatives and family around the United States. Sandra was a free spirit. We recall when she first retired and set off on her own in March to attend Mardi Gras in Louisiana. We didn't see her again until she returned in June just in time for the family vacation at Shawano Lake. Sandra also loved to play card games, for hours, with her friends and grandchildren. However, it was her gift for dance and obsession for music that made her venture around the country to blue grass festivals, live Cajun bands and polka music. She was known to jump on stage with her washboard to lend the band a hand. Sandra was a multiple time winner at Indian Summerfest with first place ribbons in the jigging contest. She loved sports, a most fanatic fan of golf, and always was the number one fan at all of her grandchildren's sporting events.

Sandra is survived by her children, Donald Jr. (Tricia), Michael (Lori), Brian and Wendy; grandchildren, Erin, Lystra, Christa, Jacob, Jesse, Mia, Murphy and Noah; step-grandchildren, Morgan and Mitchell; greatgrandchildren, Ember, Rhema, Ellie and Kai; nieces, Kari Schmitt, Stacy Sullivan; great-grand nephew, Wyatt Gleissner; and many other nieces and nephews.

Sandra was preceded in death by her parents, husband Donald, her siblings Donald Baird, Warren Baird, Vivian Zavis, and her niece Wendy Wolf.

The outpouring of love and support during this difficult time has been greatly appreciated.

A celebration of Sandra's life will be held from 10 AM to 12 PM on Saturday, July 16, 2022 at Ryan Funeral Home, 305 N. 10th St., De Pere, WI 54115, with a prayer service to follow. Burial will be at Church of the Holy Apostles Cemetery, Oneida following the service.

The family would like to thank Aurora Home Hospice caregivers for their compassionate care.

A memorial fund will be established in Sandra's name for the Aurora at Home Hospice.

The family would like to say Yawáko (thank you) to everyone that helped take care of mom. We are especially thankful to her granddaughters Twyla and Irene for taking such wonderful care of her around the clock. To her Great Granddaughter, Kaylonni, instead of being a 9 year old kid and enjoying your summer break, you chose to take care of your Dodo and we are truly thankful for that.

In lieu of flowers the family ask to please donate to the Oneida Hymn Singers for a special Hymn project.
