Chairman Hill Appointed to First-Ever Tribal Advisory Council

By U.S. Govt. Accountability Office

The United States Government Accountability Office (GAO) marked its 100th year of existence in 2021 as an independent, non-partisan agency. GAO works for Congress by examining how taxpayer dollars are spent and provides Congress and federal agencies with fact-based information to help the government save money and work more efficiently.

In 2021, the GAO, committed to hearing from leaders of federally recognized Indigenous Nations with whom they have government-to-governments relationships, identified the need to form its first-ever Tribal Advisory Council to provide insights and recommendations on issues affecting Indigenous Nations and their citizens.

The GAO appointed 16 members of federally recognized Indigenous Nations. Among the esteemed list of members in the GAO's first appointments is Chairman Tehassi Hill, who is very enthusiastic to be a part of this council, "I look forward to working with GAO so that their work accurately reflects the needs of Tribes and how federal programs uphold the treaty and trust responsibilities."

According to GAO, they plan to stagger future appointments to provide continuity between incoming and outgoing members. Individuals selected for the initial council will serve two or three year terms. Indian Health Service Secures Funding

By National Indian Health Board

Congress enacted a Fiscal Year (FY) 2023 omnibus spending package in December 2022 that included a historic provision providing advance appropriations for the Indian Health Service (IHS). Prior to this change, IHS was the only federal healthcare provider without basic certainty of funding from one year to the next.

The Indian health system serves approximately 2.5 million patients at IHS, Indigenous facilities, and urban Indian organizations, and was created to meet the U.S. trust responsibility to raise the physical, mental, social, and spiritual health of all Native people to the highest standard. Unfortunately, Indian healthcare remains chronically underfunded – a U.S. policy exacerbated by disruptions in the discretionary appropriations process.

With advance appropriations, American Indians and Alaska Natives will no longer be uniquely at risk of death or serious harm during delays in an FY 2024 funding agreement. Inclusion of IHS advance appropriations in the spending bill means that IHS services will be protected from the harmful effects of disruptions in federal funding for FY 2024 because Congress has agreed to an amount this year that becomes available immediately on October 1, 2023.

Debra Danforth, Oneida Comprehensive Health Department Manager, was very pleased with this decision, "The action in December to secure advance appropriations for the Indian Health Service is definitely a historic moment across all of Indian Country. In the many years that I have worked in health for Oneida this has always been on our agenda for our elected officials to fight for IHS funding! The impact of the advance appropriations will have long term impacts as we move forward. It will allow us to improve our planning to continue to provide healthcare services to our community without worry of funding in the event of a government shutdown. Advance funding secures our ability to prevent having to prioritize services as we have had to in the past. This step is definitely something that has been fought for by many of our tribal leaders and the National Indian Health Board! Now we need to move forward with the next achievement of full funding for IHS!"

Oneida Coach and Athlete Achieving Greatness

Kerry Danforth with wife Candace, and daughter Tiana.

By North American Indigenous Athletes Association

The North American Indigenous Athletics Hall of Fame recently announced two Oneida members, Kerry "Buggs" Danforth and Ayanna O'Kimosh, as 2023 inductees into the Coach and Athlete Categories, respectively.

Kerry "Buggs" Danforth

Danforth starting coaching in 1995 and was influenced by his dad, the late Bill Danforth, who coached Oneida Baseball in his early 30's until he was 50.

After his dad passed and he continued to play baseball and softball Danforth knew he was given a gift to help a player at any part of their game. He learned to help a hitter by just watching their hands, feet, and swing. As he, his wife Candace and three daughters, Nona, Olivia and Tiana, and son Jackson, got older, he stopped playing to coach. After 25 years of coaching, he's amassed over 600 wins compared to 100 losses, highlighted by an 85-6 record in 2009. Through the years, Danforth compiled a list of coaching accomplishments:

- 2006–Coached daughter Nona to win the Independent Softball Assoc. (ISA) Nationals.
- ISA world champions in North Carolina
- 2007–North American Fastpitch Assoc. (NSFA) National Champions
- 2011–His 18 & Under Team Wisconsin Indigenous Coach went undefeated to win the Gold Medal in the North American Indigenous Games.
- 2014–Assistant Coach at UWGB.
- 2016-2018–Assistant Coach at St. Norbert College.
- 2006-2019–Won six Wisconsin American Softball Assoc. (ASA) and NSA national titles for 10 & under to 18 & Under age groups while also placing as runner-up state champs in 2006 and 2018. At the national level, placed runner-up in 2010 and 2012.
- Coached several athletes to Collegiate level, including 58 athletes to the NCAA D1 level.

Kerry "Buggs" Danforth

Ayanna O'Kimosh

15 year old Oneida member and descendant of the Menominee and Arikara Nations, Ayanna "Naenwehtawukiw-Warrior Woman" O'Kimosh currently resides in Kashena, WI and attends Shawano Community High School. She began her journey in boxing in 2018 at the Menominee Indian Boxing Club.

As an amateur boxer, she won two Junior Olympic State Championships, two Silver Gloves State Championships, is a Silver Gloves National Champion, and is a two-time USA Boxing National Champion. In addition to her love of boxing, she spends a lot of her time training and playing softball for Impact Sports Academy in De Pere, Wisconsin.

Living up to her Menominee name, she is a warrior spirit who represents resiliency for her Oneida, Menominee, and Arikara lineage.

The Episcopal Church Office of Indigenous Ministries held their annual Winter Talk Conference, hosted by the Oneida Holy Apostles Church, at the Radisson Hotel & Conference Center this past January 20-24, 2023 to discuss this year's theme, "A Chain Linking Two Traditions."

Presiding Bishop Michael Curry and House of Deputies President Julia Ayala-Harris, were present January 21 as the Oneida community shared their experiences as members of the Holy Apostles Congregation. Part of these conversations also focused on the historical trauma caused by the treatment of Indigenous people at boarding schools like the one in Carlisle, Pennsylvania.

The Episcopal Church website (EpiscopalChurch.org) states, "As an institution, the church recognizes and repents of its harmful treatment of Native Americans." Thus, in 1997 a new Covenant of Faith was enacted to proclaim the church's approach to providing service to a diverse world. Part of this covenant states, "We are the Episcopal Church. We are a community of many cultures, many races, and many traditions, but this much we share in common: we are equal partners in the mission of Christ as it is proclaimed and lived out by the church we celebrate and serve."

The four-day event also featured a "State of the State Address" by the Rev. Brad Hauff, Indigenous missioner for the Episcopal Church and a Building the Alter ceremony on Sunday. This ceremony is the practice of creating an "altar" at the start of the gathering whereby participants bring items of significance to place on the alter. Each contributor then provides a brief summary about their gift.

Conversation with Norbert Hill Jr.

By Norbert Hill

You elected me to serve as a responsible member of the Trust and Enrollment Committee. I along with other Committee members – both past and present – take this responsibility very seriously. Our mission is to educate to the best of our abilities, and we have brought the community together for over 10 years to think critically about and discuss our future with the role of blood quantum. We have studied the limitations of blood quantum. We have worked with demographers to illuminate our population trends, which is available as a slide presentation at the Trust and Enrollment office or by scanning the QR code.

It is indisputable that using blood quantum to determine Oneida citizenship is not sustainable. With Oneida mortality rates higher than our birth rates, our population is declining. Doing nothing is a decision that will lead to our very demise. Time is not on our side.

Making all enrolled Oneidas full bloods is not doable. A language requirement is aspirational, but not practical today. The core conversation comes down to this - Are we members of a club with benefits or citizens of a nation with responsibilities? I hope it is the latter. We must ask ourselves, which is more important – identity and belonging or short-term benefits?

Many of us are not going to be here in 50 years, but our children and grandchildren will be. We have an obligation to make a place for them alongside future generations. What will those ancestors – who are not yet born – think of our decisions today? Will we leave them with only memories of what was or what could have been? This is not an easy conversation, but it is necessary.

Our great, great, great grandchildren are depending on us.

Wingate Hotel Sold

By Oneida Communications Department

Effective Tuesday, February 7, 2023, Oneida Airport Hotel Corporation (OAHC) has sold the Wingate by Wyndham Green Bay for $4.1 million. It will remain open as a Wingate and all staff have been retained by the new owners/management company.

OAHC was chartered under the Oneida Nation in 1985 and is responsible for the hospitality division. In 1986, the Oneida Nation opened their first hotel called the Rodeway Inn, which is now known as Radisson Hotel and Conference Center. In 2008. OAHC (wholly owned corporation of The Oneida Nation) purchased the Wingate.

Kathy Hughes, OAHC Spokesperson said, "We believe we made a good business decision to sell this property and we are confident the new owners will be happy with the purchase as well. The selling price will cover all outstanding obligations. This property is on County land, and we are more interested in investing in businesses on our lands."

The Oneida Nation does not hold title to the land where the Wingate is located, and it has been determined in the best business interest to sell this business.

The Oneida Nation intends to demolish the Flying Leaf Park Shelter in Site II as it is structurally unsafe and the cost to preserve and stabilize the shelter is not feasible. Community members who have guestions or wish to share information and stories about the shelter may contact the Oneida Tribal Historical Preservation Office by emailing oneida_thpo@oneidanation.org, or call 920.496.5379 no later than thirty days after the first publication of this notice. Lord Inspires Graduating Cadets, Personifies Leadership

Gussie Lord

By Virginia Military Institute

Gussie Lord, Oneida Member and class of 2001 graduate of The Virginia Military Institute, delivered the commencement speech to 22 cadets receiving their degrees on Wednesday, December 21, 2022.

The event marked the 25th anniversary of VMI's first co-educational class. Lord, as a member of the first class of females to attend the Institute, it was fitting that her words provided inspiration for the cadets, "Your experience here will not easily be forgotten. The relationships you have formed, the experiences you've shared, will endure. As VMI graduates, I believe, in many respects, you have an advantage over your peers. You have identified your capacity to persevere, and to be resilient. You understand what it means to lead, what it means to succeed, and to fail while others watch."

Currently, Lord serves on the VMI Board of Visitors, and is chairperson of the Academic Affairs Committee and sits on the Audit, Finance, and Planning committee, as well as the Nominating/Governance Committee.

She is also founder and managing attorney of the Tribal Partnerships Program at Earthjustice, a nonprofit public interest environmental law organization where she represents Indian tribes and Indigenous communities in their efforts to protect the environment and sacred sites. Prior to joining Earthjustice, Lord worked at the New Mexico Court of Appeals. She also spent several years in private practice representing tribes in environmental, administrative, and jurisdictional matters, and representing public housing authorities in efforts to expand affordable housing opportunities.

She graduated with distinction from VMI with a degree in English, with a concentration in writing. Lord was a member of the Institute's NCAA cross country and track and field teams. She also participated in cheerleading, soccer, the Promaji Club, and served as opinion editor of The Cadet newspaper and co-editor of the Sounding Brass. She graduated from the University of Michigan Law School in 2006 and currently resides in Potomac, Maryland.

Wise Women Announces New Exec Director

Beverly Scow WWGP Executive Director

By Brenda John

Wise Women Gathering Place (WWGP) is excited to announce Beverly Scow as its new Executive Director, bringing with her more than 24 years experience with WWGP's programs and services as Assistant Director. She was, in fact, a founding member of the grassroots circle of women gathered around Alice Skenandore's kitchen table and was also integral in the birth of the WWGP agency, developing and securing the funds for its well-known adult and youth programming.

Scow's background includes apprenticing and practicing as a traditional lay midwife with Alice Skenandore in the Oneida and Green Bay areas. She is certified in Technology of Participation Facilitation Methods as a facilitator, a trainer of facilitators, and training others to become trainers. She helped develop the Discovery Dating: It's not just about dating![©] healthy decision-making and relationshipbuilding curriculum and also trains facilitators and other facilitator trainers of this curriculum.

Her goal for the next generation of WWGP is to continue the work, which is also WWGP Mission, started by Alice Skenandore: To serve Native Americans and others in the Greater Green Bay area, promoting Peace, Respect, and Belonging through skill building, sharing of resources, and caring support for the community. "That mission is just as applicable today as it was when we first developed it 24 years ago," says Beverly. She's also working to grow WWGP's resources for homeless families with a 50-unit permanent supportive housing project in Green Bay. She's always excited to find new, innovative solutions like WWGP's Safe Place Parking Program, the only safe parking program in the state. "Everyone deserves a safe place to live, a living wage, and a belonging that allows them to heal and thrive."

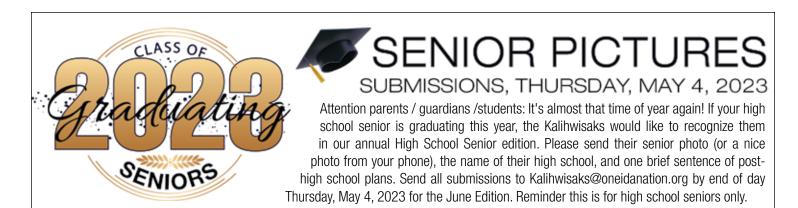

Beverly is passionate about social justice and raising diversity, equity, and inclusion in Green Bay's private, public, and non-profit sectors. Here are few ways she's pushed to make this happen:

- Helps to design and presents yearly to Green Bay's Implicit Bias Conference.
- Graduate of Leadership Green Bay's class of 2014, then coordinated Diversity Day for the following six years of classes.

Beverly is also passionate about the connection between violence against women and the environment, "How Women are treated reflects the state of a society's wellbeing. How we treat our Mother Earth reflects the wellbeing of all Creation. It's all connected, and I see the willingness to abuse one is a willingness to abuse the other. If we are going to create a community of Peace, Respect, and Belonging, we have to do better. It's one of the reasons I'm dedicated to the work Wise Women Gathering Place does."

Beverly is Kwakwakawakh First Nation in the territory now known as British Columbia, Canada and has lived in the Oneida Nation of Wisconsin community for over 30 years with her children and grandchildren. She is active in Oneida's culture with her family and is a founding member of Ohelaku, a group reviving the traditional practices of growing Oneida's heirloom white corn.

Wise Women Gathering Place has provided advocacy, healing, and prevention to Green Bay community members harmed by trauma and violence for over 24 years. Learn more at wisewomengp.org.

When the last gunshots of the Indian Wars of the nineteenth century faded away, a dark and desparate time began for Indigenous people. Poverty, neglect, and hopelessness hung over the land. But as the 1970s dawned, a powerful movement for change by newly urban Natives was born, American Indian Movement.

In I Will, Sheron Wyant-Leonard weaves the personal recollections of four members of the American Indian Movement (AIM), Leonard Peltier, Dennis Banks, Dorothy Ninham with her then husband, Herb Powless, into a unique narrative to expose their trials and tribulations over the course of two decades.

Dr. Carol Cornelius

In an inteview with the Green Bay Press-Gazette's Frank Vaisvilas, Cornelius says that so much of what we know about the time in the 1800s when First Nations ceded their lands in Wisconsin is told from non-Indigenous perspectives. Cornelius aims to change this through her book, which is expected to be published this year by the Wisconsin Historical Society. The book which currently has a working title, History of Indigenous Voices During the Removal Era, focuses on the writings of Indigenous leaders of this time to reveal what our elders were actually saying during treaty negotiations.

Oneida member, Cameron Cunningham, bashed open the doors to his Asylum Rage Room business, located at 790 Borvan Avenue in Green Bay, Monday, February 13, 2023.

The Asylum Rage Room, located just southeast of Lambeau Field, is only the second of its kind in the greater Green Bay and Fox Valley area. It offers customers the opportunity to literally destroy everyday household items in a safe way. Users wear protective gear as they throw items like plates or bottles against a wall or smash old televisions or computers with a sledge hammer. "Items come in from everywhere," Cunningham says, "Saint Vincent de Paul brings me old dishes and houseware items all the time."

Cunningham mentioned that he wanted to work for himself but wasn't sure what kind of business to start. After watching YouTube videos, he was inspired by others who also had rage rooms. He discussed the idea with his good friend, who happens to be really good with numbers, and they identified that it was a financially viable business that would fulfill a local demand that was not yet being met.

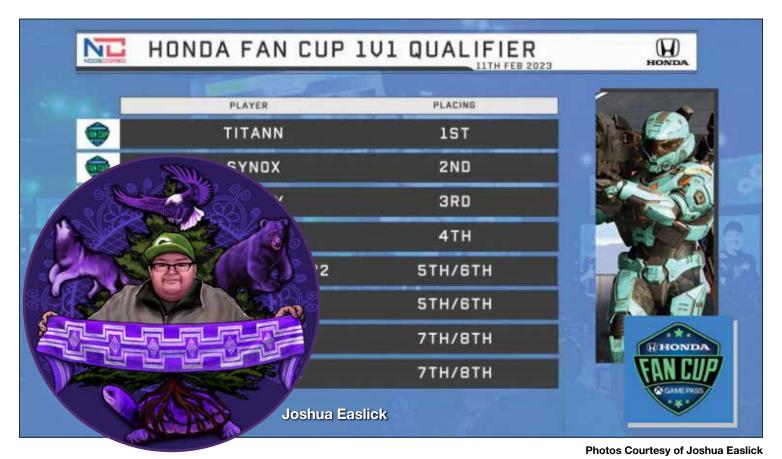

Cunningham mentions that he receives a lot of interest from pedestrian traffic in the area but also, from various groups for events like birthday parties. Jokingly he said, "Book your party here, with a side of crazy!" Cunningham plans to form partnerships with various businesses, such as local bars. However, he also has plans for more unique partnerships, such as working with mental health organizations where people can safely release their frustrations. Another opportunity is providing a canvas for local artists to decorate his establishment, a win-win whereby the Asylum Rage Room builds revenue streams and the artists receives publicity for their talent.

The Asylum Rage Room has various pricing packages. For details, call 920.265.0061, email AsylumRageRoom@gmail. com or follow them at Facebook.com/AsylumRageRoom.

EGO Brings Competitive Gaming to Oneida

EGO player "Titann" winning the Honda Fan Cup qualifier.

By Mercedes Danforth-Hernandez Contributing Reporter

When Oneida Member Joshua Easlick began playing Madden competitively 15 years ago, the Esports scene was unlike the competitive gaming environment of today, where Easlick has since built his Empire Gaming Organization (EGO) from the ground up.

Easlick and his VP, Wade Klein, are strategizing ways for EGO to foster a competitive and professional Esports scene in Oneida, one that encourages community-building and mutual support. EGO advocates for the growth of individual players in Esports, a profession that may appear as unattainable.

Easlick aspires to create an Esports headquarters in the Oneida community. Seeing his nephews take an interest in Esports inspired him to provide similar prospects for those that see a future in competitive gaming, "We have something for you if you want to be in the scene. We have a place for you. You have a home."

Empire Gaming Organization Logo

Still today, Easlick is in awe of EGO's journey from a "competitive group of guys" to an organization with sponsorship deals, merchandise, and marketing. EGO has roughly 15-20 competitive players that stream their content, as well as a women's team. Klein hopes that a successful participation in the Halo Championship Series (HCS) will spark even more growth for EGO.

In the future, EGO would like to help the community in different ways, such as supporting non-profits like the American Cancer Society, The Wounded Warrior Project, and the Oneida Youth Leadership Institution. They are on the verge of signing a sponsorship deal with the Indian Gaming Esports Association (IGEA). As of February 11th, EGO won the National Qualifiers in the National Honda Cup 1v1 tournament.

ONHS Students Engage in Glass Art

By Lydia Stevens

During their field trip to the Bergstrom-Mahler Glass Art Museum in Neenah, ONHS students learned a lot. They found out that there are many forms of art.

After arriving at the museum, students looked at art in glass form and about Buddha and its help to the projects. One of the interesting pieces of art was a pair of feet on the wall. There was also a glass library display. Art field trips are a great way for ONHS students to learn about different things, add to their knowledge of art, help inspire their own creations, and expand the possibilities of different art forms and styles.

Oneida Elders are especially welcome and invited to share their stories and recollections with the students and staff about various locations on the Oneida Reservation, including the Norbert Hill and boarding school site. Photographs, letters, and other documents brought by elders and other community members will be scanned and returned immediately. Keepsakes will be photographed and returned immediately. No scans or photographs will be done without permission.

Professional staff will be present to oversee the process. Other tribal departments are also engaged in the project including Cultural Heritage. Outcomes from the project will include a public display for use at events, a podcast produced by the students, and a timeline of local history focused on the Norbert Hill site and other locations.

Outside Principal Art Skenandore's office is a painting created in 1974 called "The Great Treaty of Canandaigua." by Robert Griffing.

It shows a group of many Haudenosaunee people and some white settlers listening to a smaller group of Indigenous leaders and one white man. They are identified as Colonel Timothy Pickering, and General Israel Chapin. This scene played a big part in the history of the Haudenosaunee people.

According to Lord Nelson's Gallery on the internet, "The Canandaigua Treaty is between the Haudenosaunee (Six Nations Iroquois Confederacy) and the United States of America - one of the first treaties the United States entered into. This treaty, drafted in Canandaigua, New York, which created a lasting peace and friendship between the Six Nations and the United States, was signed November 11, 1794, and ratified January 21, 1795, bearing the United States seal and George Washington's signature. Peace and friendship forever were the basis upon which the Haudenosaunee leadership signed the Canandaigua Treaty.

The treaty recognizes the sovereignty of the Haudenosaunee and the United States and establishes in writing that the aboriginal lands belonging to the Haudenosaunee are theirs. The Canandaigua Treaty remains, in the face of challenges, a valid legal document unaffected by its age.

The painting was donated to The Oneida Tribal Schools by the Merville Powless Family including his sons Robert (Shirley), Lloyd (Darlene), and David Powless and his daughters Ramona (Carlson) and Shirley (Moore), and Dr. Donna Powless (David Grignon) and his grandchildren Grant and Crystal Powless." In recognizing the gift of the painting, Principal Skenandore shared the many connections between ONHS, the Oneida Community, and the Powless Family.

Are You Ready? A story of elder responsibility.

By Michelle Danforth-Anderson, Marketing & Tourism Director

On January 9, 2023, I took my father Hugh into the hospital for a surgery. What has happened since then has changed my life to help elders get prepared.

After two weeks in the hospital, my father was advancing from soft foods to a carbohydrate-controlled diet. However, that is not what he was receiving. After a dietary evaluation, I discovered his hospital meals contained 121 carbs and sugars rather than just 65 carbs. Thus, we began arriving before as many food deliveries as possible to make sure his carbs were being controlled. Then, things went south.

My father had a mini stroke. He battled back and the day he was supposed to go to rehab, he tested positive for Covid with no symptoms. He would have to quarantine for 10 days, which in turn, disqualified him for rehab. That was when we had to get him out of the hospital, but the need for special care to be safe in our home was staring me in the face because his home had stairs and thus, not an option.

I had previously worked at Options for Independent Living 555 Country Club Rd. Green Bay (next to NWTC) and the primary focus was to work to keep individuals independent in their room. It was my first stop during the first part of my dad's hospital stay. I was able to borrow a shower chair, walker, and toilet rails. It was a good start, but they didn't have bed rails. We ended up purchasing two; one for the bed and one for the living room couch. What elders do is try to use their walker to get up but when your elder is unstable, they can fall back or forward, especially when there is not enough weight on the front of the walker or someone is holding it. Elders need to be able to push straight up with their arms.

As my father slowly walked with the walker at first, it was important that everything in the path of where he was going was clear, including no rugs. Our bathroom had just enough space to get him in and to the toilet. I did not baby my dad, or the expectation is that you will do it all. Weird to say but he struggled through personal care, but he did it with limited assistance. It brought back his self confidence and little by little he could put on his shirt. He could put on his own pants and continues to grow each day.

I was lucky, my dad is 88 years old and was a healthy guy, but as he used to ask me as a child, "Are you going to take care of daddy when he gets old?" I would always say yes. I could not have done this alone, our family, my friends, my boss and all the staff at our office helped me through this scary and mentally tough time. A special thanks to you all.

If you have other helpful tips, please send them to kalihwisaks@oneidanation.org.

COMMUNITY

What can I flush?

By Department of Public Works

There are only three things you can safely flush down the toilet into the sewer system —pee, poo and (toilet) paper. Just remember those three as the three Ps that you can flush. And don't forget, "flushable" wipes are not really flushable. Your assistance is needed to stop the practice of placing rags, towels, cleaning wipes, feminine hygiene products, as well as objects such as rope, mopheads, and even old clothing, into the Nations sewer system. Don't flush these items down the toilet even if they say they are flushable.

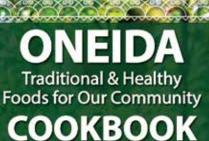

What you should know:

1. You do not want what is in the sewer in your home. Besides the horrible smell and mess to clean up, there are potential health risk for breathing or touching raw sewage.

- 2. Comprehensive Housing Division and the Utility Division will forward the cost of repairs to the tenant or homeowner identified for clogging the sewer. This could cost you tens of thousands of dollars.
- 3. Your personal property will not be covered by the Oneida Tribe. Check with your homeowner's or renter's insurance agent for coverage.
- 4. Ultimately, flushing items not intended to go into the sewerage system creates unnecessary maintenance expense that can eventually impact customers rates and bills.

These simple actions can help protect our environment, public health, and your pocketbook.
